WARNS MEXICO TO BEWARE OF US

Foreign Minister Gamboa Tells Deputies Misstep Now Might Be Fatal.

HUERTA IS DEFEATED

Despite Cabinet Plea, Liberals Reject His Appointee as Minister of Instruction.

ONE TALKS OF INVADER

And Suggests Need of Standing Shoulder to Shoulder to Repress the Foreign Legions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—Provisional President Huerta and the Liberal Deputies in the lower house of Congress came to an open break this afternoon, the Deputies refusing to grant the votes which Eduardo Tamariz required to procure the permission of the Chamber to accept an executive appointment involving monetary remuneration—that of Minister of Public Instruction.

Federico Gamboa, Minister of Foreign Relations, appeared before the lower house to ask the Deputies to reconsider their action, which they refused to do.

Minister Gamboa spoke to the Chamber twice. The second time he could not finish what he was saying, owing to frequent interruptions and motions on points of order. Señor Gamboa said:

"We now are facing two conflicts—internal and external. The international situation is extremely serious. The United States is watching every move we make. Lack of harmony between the executive and legislative powers possibly would be fatal."

Deputy Querido Moheno, an Independent Liberal, who was supposed to be voicing the views of the Administration, made frequent mention of the possibility of "invasion of our territory by foreign legions and the necessity that we stand shoulder to shoulder to repress the invader."

The Catholic minority voted consistenly with the Government, showing that the fight really was between the Catholic and Liberal factions. Deputies representing the former régime voted with the old and Independent Liberals.

It is thought probable the Chamber will take action against Señor Tamariz, forcing him to face a Grand Jury for having accepted the portfolio without permission.

The situation here is regarded as extremely serious, owing to the probable impulse it will give to the revolutionists, as showing that President Huerta is not supported by Congress.

There is evidence of tension between Minister Gamboa and the United States Embassy. Chargé O'Shaughnessy evidently is worried over the situation and attaches much importance to the political events of the last few days.

Foreign Minister Gamboa was not willing to-night to make any statement regarding either the local or the international situation. The financial situation came into discussion this afternoon in Congress, a prominent Deputy saying it was useless to vote appropriations when it was "public and notorious that the Government hadn't a peseta and that Government officials expected to go to collect their salaries any time and to be told that there was no money."

ASSAILS POLICY IN MEXICO.

Senator Sherman Also Attacks Bryan's Lecture Side Line.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, Republican, decided to-day that it was time to end the tentative understanding in Congress that the course of the Wilson Administration in dealing with Mexico should not be criticised. Mr. Sherman, who has traveled extensively in Mexico, gave out a statement this evening denouncing the Administration's Mexican policy. Incidentally, he condemned Secretary Bryan's speech-making on the Chautauqua circuit.

"Mexico is doing the drifting," says Senator Sherman, and the Secretary of State is doing the talking. Mexico is miles away from peace. Meanwhile the country is devastated by warlike bands, law and order are at an end and neutral aliens without protection either in person or property. The war is conducted without regard to the rules that govern civilized nations in military operations. Every boat steaming toward the United States and every northbound train are bearing American fugitives from that country.

"The bonds of civil society seem to be dissolving in that hapless place. No American with a home there is safe, no man with a dollar's worth of accessible property or money that can be reached can escape the roving bandits that roam at pleasure from one point of plunder to another.

1,000 Americans Killed, He Says.

"This has been going on, not for months, but for years. During that time at least 1,000 Americans have been killed while peaceably pursuing their lawful occupations. Nearly $20,000,000 worth of American property has been destroyed, confiscated, or stolen.

"The only advice so far given to a neutral American in that country is to

SUBWAY TRAFFIC DELAYED.

Car Derailed at the Bridge in the Height of Evening Rush.

Traffic in the Subway was delayed for more than two hours at the rush hours last evening when the rear car of a southbound local train was derailed on the switch at the south end of the Brooklyn Bridge station, across which local trains enter the City Hall loop. The forward cars had entered the loop, when the forward trucks of the rear car jumped the switch. No one was hurt.

As a result of the derailment the third rail on the City Hall loop was torn up and short circuited, the loop being thus put out of commission, even after a crew of forty men had jacked up the derailed car and replaced it on the tracks.

The derailment occurred at 5:15 o'clock. After that the first southbound local train, leaving Eighteenth Street at 5:15, was run on the express tracks, and no local stops were made between Fourteenth Street and the bridge. This caused delay, and practically the entire Subway system was congested until 7:18 o'clock.

Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit system, and Supt. A. T. Merritt personally directed the work of clearing the track and moving trains.

PAID TO BACK ROOSEVELT.

Polish Paper Got $5,000 for Support from Campaign Managers.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—A house cleaning in the Polish National Alliance, in session here, disclosed to-day that the "Chairman of the Central Government" of the association accepted or authorized the acceptance of $5,000 from a political committee for the support of the Polish daily for Roosevelt for the Presidency last year, and that $1,000 of this amount was retained by an official as a commission on the deal.

The presentation of the following letter brought out the fact that the Bull Moose organization of 1912 paid the money:

D. Cara, National Publishing Company,
815-17 C. and A. Building, Cleveland.

Dear Sir: In reply to yours of the 17th inst., where you ask if our paper is in position to support the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt, will say yes on the following conditions: We agree to give the full support of our columns and pledge our full support of Theodore Roosevelt's candidacy for President of the United States during the entire campaign. For such pledge and support we are to receive $5,000, of which sum $2,500 is to be paid to this office Aug. 15, 1912, and the balance, $2,500, to be paid not later than Oct. 15, 1912.

(Signed) PHILIP W. KAYOKI,
Advertising Manager.

Casimir Zydlinski, the "Chairman," was the man on the grill. He confessed that the charges were true, but declined, on the plea of a pledge of secrecy, to give details. He suggested, however, that a special committee be appointed to investigate the charges, and stated that he would be willing to go to Washington, if necessary, to reveal what took place. This statement came as a climax when he was confronted with the letter which has been quoted.

DIRECTS HIS OWN RESCUE.

Man Caught Under a Large Tree Also Gives Funeral Directions.

Special to The New York Times.

BASKING RIDGE, N. J., Sept. 19.—Realizing that he had only a few hours to live and was fast losing consciousness pinned beneath a fallen tree, Emery Payne, a farmer, of Pleasant Plains, directed the work of the rescuers and gave directions to his wife regarding his funeral.

Payne was cutting down a large oak tree yesterday. He had sawed half way through the trunk, when the tree toppled over, the heavy trunk falling across his body and pinning him to the ground. Arthur Crane, a boy who was near-by herding some cattle, heard the cries of Payne and summoned help.

The heavy trunk had to be sawed through again, and when a team of horses was brought to the rescue Payne directed which section of the tree should be removed first. He asked to see his wife, and told her how he desired his funeral to be conducted. He died soon afterward.

Payne moved here from the Bronx about a year ago.

RIIS IN A SANITARIUM.

Author Resting at Battle Creek After an Attack of Heart Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 19.—Jacob Riis, the author, lecturer and settlement worker of New York, recently became ill while on a lecturing tour and sought treatment to-day in a private sanitarium here. He is suffering from heart trouble, the old affliction that has bothered him for the last ten or twelve years. It became aggravated from the strain of travel and hard work.

His physicians have ordered him to give up his work for the present and to seek rest in the sanitarium for at least a month. It is not believed that his condition is serious.

Mr. Riis was first affected with the trouble about twelve years ago. It was diagnosed then as angina pectoris, and he has spasmodic suffocating attacks, accompanied by contraction of the lower part of the chest. This forced him to retire from active newspaper work.

Mrs. Riis is with her husband.

ASKS U. S. JUDGE TO RESIGN.

Alaskan District Attorney Also Asked to Give Up Post.

NOME, Alaska, Sept. 19.—United States District Judge Cornelius D. Murane has been asked to resign by the Department of Justice. The term of office for which he was appointed has one year more to run. United States District Attorney Bernard S. Rodey, who was formerly Delegate to Congress from New Mexico and Federal Judge in Porto Rico, has also been asked to give up his post.

Charges against Judge Murane are alleged to have been filed in Washington by representatives of large gold-dredging interests of Nome.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Officials of the Department of Justice said to-night that the resignations of United States District Judge Cornelius D. Murane of Alaska, and United States District Attorney Bernard S. Rodey of that Territory, had been asked for by Attorney General McReynolds for "the good of the service."

It was stated that no charges had been preferred against either of the officials, but that the Attorney General acted on his own initiative, carrying out a general policy of improving the service.

CHAIN OF MURDERS SCHMIDT'S PLAN.

Slayer of Anna Aumuller Admits That Blank Death Certificates Were for That Purpose.

POSSIBLE VICTIM SOUGHT

Though Prisoner Denies Killing Any Other Person—His Aim to Lessen Human Suffering.

Means for Forging Church Documents Found—Birth Certificates Cast Doubt on Identity.

Hans Schmidt, the priest and counterfeiter, who killed and dismembered Anna Aumuller, admitted yesterday to his lawyer and to detectives under Inspector Faurot that he had intended to use the blank death certificates in his room to make the official records show that a number of his parishioners and others, whom he meant to murder, had died of natural causes. He said also that he had meant to forge one of these certificates to register the death of Anna Aumuller, but that he decided it would be safest to do nothing after the finding of a part of the girl's body had started an inquiry into the murder.

Schmidt said that he was arrested before he had killed any one except Anna Aumuller, but Inspector Faurot nevertheless ordered a search of the records of the Board of Health to see whether any papers forged by Schmidt had been filed there.

Schmidt refused to name any of the persons he had chosen as his victims. Most of them, however, he admitted, were parishioners of St. Joseph's Church, at 405 West 125th Street, where he was a curate.

"I intended to end their lives painlessly," said Schmidt, "and those whom I meant to kill were persons who would be better off in the other world. I meant to end the suffering of cripples, paralytics, persons suffering from incurable ailments, and others who were leading miserable lives and would be better off out of the world.

"Any man is foolish who wishes to live out his life on earth. I meant to benefit those I killed."

Detectives Cassassa and McKenna, who talked with the priest, believe, however, that he had other motives for killing those whose end he had meant to cover up by means of the certificates of natural death. They asked Schmidt if he had thought of using the certificates to explain death in the case of women who might have died after treatment by him under his assumed name of Dr. Molière. Schmidt denied such an intention.

Not for Enemies.

When Schmidt was asked if he had not thought of filling out the blanks with the names of enemies or persons whom he feared, he replied:

"I had no enemies. I had nobody to fear."

The priest, in admitting that if the police had not arrested him he would shortly have committed other murders, said that he had not decided who the victim of his next murder should be, but that he was considering several whose lives were unhappy. He intended, however, to wait until the excitement over finding parts of the body of his first victim had died down.

"How were you going to kill them?" he was asked.

"Oh, any way, so long as it was an easy death," he said. "Probably with a knife. I might have used a poison that acted quickly."

Schmidt added that he had not thought out the technique of any of these intended crimes. It was pointed out that, if his victim had no relatives who were likely to become suspicious, there would be no need of hiding the body, as the person would have appeared to have died a natural death. Schmidt said that he thought he would have dismembered and disposed of other bodies, as he had done in the case of Anna Aumuller. He said he was thinking of others beside this girl when he bought the butcher knife and steel saw with which he dissected her body.

The priest was asked how he had obtained photographs of the death certificate of Robert Smith, a retired business man of 215 West 123d Street, on April 29 of this year. Schmidt admitted that he had been able to steal the certificate by getting into the confidence of the family when he officiated at the funeral. The day after he had employed a photographer to make copies of both sides of the certificate, Schmidt paid a visit of condolence, he said, to the wife of the dead man and left the document at the residence.

The priest said he had two purposes in photographing the certificate. In the first place, he thought it would be necessary for him to make counterfeits, because he knew of no way of obtaining the blank death certificates. In the second place, he wanted a copy of the signature of the medical man who had signed the certificate, Dr. J. J. Slevin, of 47 East 126th Street.

Obtained New Certificates.

The form of the certificate which Schmidt had copied by the photographer was discontinued by the Board of Health shortly after this happened. The priest evidently found this out, for he made no copper-plate engravings from the photographs, although at this time he was experimenting in making plates for printing counterfeit bills.

A book containing eight blank death certificates with the printed form now in use was found yesterday in one of Schmidt's trunks. There are ten cer-

WHEELER THE VICTIM OF EMBASSY FOE?

His Friends Say a Fellow-Diplomat Resented Rebuke for Attentions to a Woman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Is there going to be a scandal in the American diplomatic service? is a question which many persons here are asking in connection with recent events in the United States Embassy, which have for some time been kept in the family, so to speak, in order to prevent an open rupture, and with the general hope that the whole affair might blow over with time and patience.

Now, however, that Post Wheeler, the First Secretary of the Embassy, is on his way to Washington, having been summoned by cable to explain certain allegations against him, the affair is becoming a matter of general discussion.

It is difficult to present the exact facts of the situation, but the one thing certain, as admitted by those concerned, is that another member of the embassy corps came here with strong feelings against Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler.

This sentiment, which is regarded as something more than an antipathy, is said to date back to the time when Wheeler and this other official were attached to another post, and Wheeler, as Chargé d'Affaires, objected to his fellow dipolmat's attentions to a woman at the same hotel as not befitting his position.

This action by Wheeler, according to the story, was resented and the rebuked official has cherished a grudge ever since.

After Mr. Wheeler was transferred to Rome the incident might have come to an end, if, by an unfortunate coincidence, the State Department had not some time afterward given the other diplomat a place in the embassy here.

The ill-feeling continued and manifested itself in a long series of incidents. The two members of the embassy were not on speaking terms. In one way or another unfavorable reports were spread about the Wheelers in the American colony and Italian society, and the unpleasant situation became known to other diplomatic missions and the Italian Foreign Office.

Last June Mr. Wheeler was suddenly ordered to the legation at Rio de Janeiro. His friends attributed this to hostile influence here, but the Wheelers were able to have this transfer rescinded. The effect of this incident, however, was to accentuate the conflict in the embassy.

A few weeks ago a report got about that the Italian Minister of Finance was investigating irregularities concerning the exemption of foreign diplomats from paying duty on gasoline imported for automobiles, and that the inquiry concerned Mr. Wheeler especially. A story about this, which mentioned no names, appeared in the Socialist paper the Avanti, which printed it under the heading, "A Diplomatic Smuggler."

To an inquiry from Ambassador O'Brien, the Minister of Finance sent word that no blame was attached to Mr. Wheeler in this matter. Nevertheless, according to Mr. Wheeler's friends, attempts have been made to undermine the Secretary at Washington, with the idea that he may be transferred from his present post even if he is not dismissed.

Something of this kind, it is said, recently happened in the case of the American Vice Consul at Milan, who, although his innocence was entirely proved after a thorough inquiry made by the Embassy at Rome, and Mr. Smith, the Consul, at Genoa, was transferred to another post.

Americans here say that if such results are possible, any official in the United States diplomatic service is at the mercy of any person who may choose to start a campaign against him. Such a condition of affairs, they urge, is seriously detrimental to the prestige of American diplomats, inasmuch as other countries act in the opposite manner. If they are convinced that one of their agents abroad is unjustly attacked they maintain him at his post for the purpose of showing that he enjoys the confidence of his government, and that the accusations brought against him are groundless.

PAPERS IN MR. BRYAN'S DESK.

Assistant Secretary Knows Nothing About the Charges Against Wheeler

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The papers in the Post Wheeler case are locked up in Secretary Bryan's desk, while the head of the State Department is away on his lecturing tour.

Assistant Secretary Osborne states that he does not know what is in them. Mr. Bryan's private secretary, who does know, could not be found to-night.

It is stated, however, that the department will not make anything public on the subject of the charges against Mr. Wheeler.

It was announced to-night that Mr. Bryan's lecture tour would end to-morrow night.

NAME STATE DEPUTY IN EXCISE SCANDAL

Saloon Keeper Accuses Jose E. Pidgeon of Taking $180 Fee to Quash Nyack Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, Sept. 19.—José E. Pidgeon, Second Deputy Secretary of State, came in for some sharp censure at the hands of Justice Tompkins in the Supreme Court to-night, but he was not there to hear it.

The case was that of the State against William Hegner, a Nyack saloon keeper, who was charged by the State Excise Department with violating the liquor law, and Hegner said he had retained Pidgeon as his lawyer. Mr. Pidgeon not being present, the saloon keeper asked for an adjournment.

This caused Justice Tompkins to ask some questions, and Hegner told the court that he had paid the Deputy Secretary of State $180 to take his case, believing that Mr. Pidgeon, through his political influence, could have the proceeding dismissed. Mr. Hegner said he had been informed by Mr. Pidgeon that the case had been discontinued.

A report that the excise department had discontinued the action was circulated throughout the town, and the temperance people wrote to Excise Commissioner Farley to ask why this was done. Mr. Farley denied th story, and then told Mr. Pidgeon that the action must proceed. Mr. Pidgeon came to Nyack a day or two ago and informed Mr. Hegner that through some misunderstanding the action must go on.

Mr. Hegner, believing he had been deceived, demanded his money back, but Mr. Pidgeon did not return the $180. Mr. Hegner, it was said, contemplated having Mr. Pidgeon arrested had he come to Nyack to-night.

In granting an adjournment Justice Tompkins said that Hegner was entitled to the return of his money and that the matter should be presented to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. He also said Pidgeon should be punished, and that action should be taken for his disbarment. The Justice added that this proceeding and all others in his court would be decided on their merits, and neither political influence nor personal friendship would have any influence.

"Such a thing does not count here," he said, "and will not with the State Excise Department."

It was said to-night that Mr. Pidgeon's absence from court was due to the fact that he had missed the ferry boat at Tarrytown.

ANSWERS TO LIBEL OF A DOG

Insists "Countess Toots" Never Beat Her Dog "Dollar Princess."

Despite the fact that she is being sued in the Supreme Court for $5,000 damages by Arthur P. Bender for causing to be printed remarks derogatory to Countess Toots, his pedigreed prize winning dog, Mary Winthrop Turner still considers her dog Champion, the Dollar Princess, the better animal, and is willing to say so publicly. She is being sued for libelling the rival pet, and her answer to the suit is this:

"The alleged libelous matter is true: that the plaintiff's Countess Toots was never at any show or under any judge put over the sensational Champion, the Dollar Princess; the said Countess Toots has never, as a grown up pup, beaten at any dog show Champion, the Dollar Princess, by me owned, and that any one who knows the two animals would discredit the statement that Champion had been ever bested. My dog won the championship in 1912, and since then has never been beaten."

MRS. BONAPARTE ILL HERE.

Stricken with Pneumonia on Her Way to Baltimore Home.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19.—Ex-Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte will go to New York to-morrow to be at the side of his wife, who is ill with pneumonia at the Holland House. The attack is a light one, according to Dr. George Draper. He said, however, that serious complications might appear.

Mrs. Bonaparte became ill while on her way home from Boston on Tuesday and stayed in New York to obtain a physician at once. Dr. Draper diagnosed the case as pneumonia. Mrs. Bonaparte took to her bed and a nurse was engaged.

It was reported to-night that Mrs. Bonaparte was comfortable and that the crisis would not be reached for a week. It was said that a similar attack in the case of a younger person would be considered of no consequence.

ARREST BANK DIRECTORS.

Authorities Say $650,000 Was Stolen from Hamburg Institution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—A great sensation has been caused at Hamburg by the arrest of two Directors of the Hanseatic Bank, Herren von Clausbruch and Buethe, who are charged with numerous defalcations and with falsifying the balance sheets. It is believed that they appropriated something like $500,000 in addition to $150,000 belonging to depositors and customers.

It is not thought that the affair will affect other banks outside Hamburg.

This affair follows on the heels of the frauds committed on the Hamburg-American Line by its harbor agents.

SULZER BEATEN IN FIRST SKIRMISH; TO FIGHT ALL IMPEACHMENT CHARGES

WILL SEEK WRIT TO FREE GARRISON

Counsel for Captive Press Agent of Sulzer Predicts His Release To-day.

MAY GO TO FEDERAL COURTS

Argues That Garrison Never Really Refused to Answer—Dreary Day Spent in Cell.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—Throughout a dreary, grizzly day James C. Garrison, formerly managing editor, city editor, and dramatic critic of The New York Press, and more recently a critic of the Frawley Investigating Committee and the Assembly members who voted for the impeachment of William Sulzer, sat to-day in a cell in the county penitentiary, following his arrest on the floor of the Assembly chamber early this morning on a charge of contempt of the legislative body in charging that four of its members had been bribed to support the impeachment proposal and refusing later to answer questions put to him by the Judiciary Committee regarding his assertions.

Not until this evening after Gilbert E. Roe, his counsel, had arrived from New York and conferred with him and with Judge John T. McDonough, whom the captive press agent of the Sulzer administration had summoned this afternoon, was it plain what efforts would be made to get him free.

Then Mr. Roe announced that action would be taken the first thing to-morrow morning to get Garrison out of prison at once.

"We are confident that the commitment will not stand a court review," he said. "We may sue for a writ of habeas corpus, or possibly a writ of certiorari, which would permit a court review of the case. Mr. Garrison, when I saw him to-day, told me all the statements he made to the Judiciary Committee and to the Assembly, emphasizing always the fact that he was willing to talk nd answer questions provided he was permitted to be represented by counsel. I shall go over the committee's proceedings and prove that Mr. Garrison was testifying when the committee left him, and also that he told the Assembly last night that he was willing to testify, if he had counsel."

Mr. Roe added that in case the proposed writs failed, he was considering the question of obtaining a Federal writ for his client.

"If this action is allowed to stand," he went on, "no citizen's liberty will be safe."

Aaron J. Levy, the majority leader in the Assembly, said to-day that no writ of habeas corpus could be obtained by Garrison, and that the Appellate Division had held that the Assembly had plenary power to punish for contempt. Under this view, Garrison might be kept in prison until next January, when a new Legislature meets. The offense does not permit of bail.

Judging by the light air with which Mr. Garrison took his imprisonment just after his arrest in the early morning, he felt in no immediate hurry to undertake a process of purging himself of contempt. He joked with several friends, who visited him, and readily posed for photographers in the waiting room of the prison.

"I understand that the food up here is just as good as in some Albany eating houses, anyway," he remarked.

Later, however, Mr. Garrison's taste seemed to turn more to the epicurean, for "Garry" Benson, proprietor of the hostelry where he stayed in the city, paid him a visit with a basket of non-penitentiary edibles on his arm.

In his new quarters Mr. Garrison slept late. Newspaper friends who called up the penitentiary on the telephone to speak with him were told by Deputy Custodian William C. De Rouville, in charge of the "pen":

"Mr. Garrison was up late last night, you know, and he left orders that he did not wish to be called till 11 o'clock to-day."

Nevertheless, at 9 o'clock in the morning Garrison was allowed out of his cell to exercise with the other prisoners of the penitentiary.

No Special Privileges.

While a prisoner at the penitentiary Garrison will be subject to the same rules and restrictions as ordinary prisoners, according to the prison authorities. Sheriff Peasley was at first in doubt as to what he should do in the case, but, on consulting his attorneys and laying the matter before Recorder J. Sheldon Frost, he was advised that the Assembly had the right not only to order Garrison's arrest, but also to specify, as it did, that he be held "in close custody at the penitentiary." Thereupon the comforts of the hospital ward, which at first it had been thought might be extended to Garrison, were denied him and he was put into a cell.

At first Mr. Garrison remarked that he would regard his incarceration as a sort of vacation, and especially a vacation from politics. But under the depressing influences of the dreary day his vacation surroundings appealed less and less to his sense of the restful and acsthetic, and in the afternoon he sent for Judge McDonough.

Judge McDonough, who was Secretary of State during the administrations of Govs. Roosevelt and Odell, and Judge of the Supreme Court in the Philippines under President Roosevelt, said later:

"There is no question that the Legislature has tremendous plenary power.

"I myself am awfully careful as to what I say about this court of the Assembly. I don't want to be punished for contempt.

"There was a man once punished for contempt, you know, who pleaded that he had not been in court at the time of the alleged contempt. The Judge replied that that did not matter. 'This court is a matter of contempt everywhere,' he said."

Asked whether the Assembly had any further powers of punishment than that of imprisoning Mr. Garrison, Judge McDonough replied:

"Have you gunmen in New York?"

He added, however, that under the law all that the Legislature could do to Mr. Garrison was to keep him imprisoned.

"Maybe he wouldn't have as much contempt for the next session," he said.

He added that his client, while not happy over what had befallen him, felt no remorse, but simply felt that he had not been fairly treated.

"He has never refused to answer any questions," contended Judge McDonough, "but simply refused to answer unless he was allowed to be represented by counsel. If they allowed him to testify under these conditions, it might result in summoning Charley Murphy and others to prove Mr. Garrison's assertions."

Judge McDonough sent dinner to Garrison in his cell this evening.

A message was sent to Garrison in the penitentiary from Mr. Sulzer to-day. There were those who said that the impeached official sent his compliments to the prisoner and asked him to drop in and see Mr. Sulzer when he got out.

SARECKY IS IN BUFFALO.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Sept. 19.—Louis A. Sarecky, with John A. Hennessy, special investigator, is in Buffalo to-night. They arrived here from Albany this evening. Mr. Sarecky issued a statement soon afterward denying that he had run away from the jurisdiction of the Legislature and saying he would be in Albany next Monday. A warrant is out for his arrest because he declined to answer certain questions when called as a witness before the Frawley Committee. His arrest was ordered for alleged contempt.

Chairman Levy of the Assembly Board of Managers asserted that Mr. Sarecky had run away, and he sent Lee Betts, Sergeant at Arms of the Assembly, in search of him. Mr. Betts was here yesterday on a fruitless search for him.

Mr. Sarecky said to-night:

"I have seen Aaron J. Levy's statement that I have run away from the jurisdiction of the Legislature. This, of course, is not true. I have been constantly in Albany under subpoena from the Frawley Committee for a period of more than six weeks. In that time I have never been more than four hours' traveling from Albany until to-day. I have always been ready to respond to any notice, and Senator Frawley, I believe, will cheerfully admit this. Assemblyman Levy has never requested my presence at any time before any committee or anybody.

"I was in Albany to-day as usual and came to Buffalo on the Empire State Express, leaving Albany at 11:31. I will be back in Albany on Monday and will be ready if they want me.

"Mr. Levy's statement is on a par with his recent statements about the testimony alleged to have been taken secretly by one of his lawyers against the Governor. It has been shown that there was no truth in this statement of Mr. Levy in respect to certain testimony which he said had been obtained, and there is no truth in his statement that he had sought me nor is there any truth in his statement that I am attempting to escape the jurisdiction of the Legislature."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—Louis A. Sarecky, Gov. Sulzer's campaign agent and confidential man, who is wanted as a witness at the impeachment proceedings and over whose head hangs a warrant for arrest issued by the Assembly's Board of Managers of Impeachment, was spirited away from the threatened arrest, it was learned to-day, in an automobile owned by the State Highway Department and containing Major Schermerhorn, the Military Secretary of Gov. Sulzer, and one other man, a sort of bodyguard, attached to the Executive Department.

Sarecky is the young man who largely had charge of Mr. Sulzer's campaign funds, and to whose credit large amounts of those funds were found to have been deposited. He refused to answer questions on this point before the Frawley Committee, and was adjudged in contempt by the Assembly, which issued a warrant for his arrest at its last meeting in August. An understanding was reached that the warrant should not be served until the Legislature reconvened on Wednesday night.

On Tuesday night, however, it developed, Sarecky left this city in an automobile, No. 389, belonging to the Highway Department. It is said he was taken to Lake Lucerne, where Major Schermerhorn's family is living in its Summer home.

Questioned by a TIMES correspondent to-day, Major Schermerhorn admitted that he had been in the automobile that took Sarecky away.

"I lost him in the woods," said the Governor's military secretary.

When the Board of Managers meets again Major Schermerhorn and the other attaché of the executive office probably will be asked to divulge more about the part they had in helping Sarecky to escape from arrest. The chauffeur also will be examined.

Counsel to Gov. Sulzer said Sarecky would be one of their witnesses and would be in the city when they needed him. They made the same statement as to F. L. Colwell, who was alleged to have been Gov. Sulzer's dummy in stock speculations, and still is missing.

DR. SUN IN VANCOUVER?

Former Chinese President Said to Have Returned Incognito.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 19.—Traveling incognito as Wong Kwok-yin, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, formerly Provincial President of the Chinese Republic, and leader in the recent revolt against President Yuan Shi-hai, is said to be in Vancouver.

He was recognized by compatriots in spite of the fact that his appearance had been altered by shaving off his mustache, and he was said to be on his way to England.

It is said that Dr. Sun Yat-sen landed at Victoria from Japan on the recent trip of the Japanese liner Chicago. He remained in Victoria several days with friends, and later tried to enter the United States disguised as a Japanese student, but was refused admittance.

The impression here is that Dr. Sun does not feel secure in disclosing his identity among his fellow countrymen in British Columbia, who are nearly all supporters of President Yuan.

STEAL $300 IN CHAMPAGNE.

Thieves Make Off with Importer's Wagon While Driverless.

A delivery wagon from the importing house of David A. Sherard at 60 Stone Street, while making the rounds of the uptown hotels last evening, halted at Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue while the driver left it for a moment to make a delivery. When he returned the wagon was gone, and it was not until three hours later that it was found again, discarded at Eleventh Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street. The thieves had evidently not coveted the horse and wagon for they abandoned that.

What the thieves coveted and took was the contents of the wagon. That was $300 worth of champagne.

NEW COMET'S PECULIARITY.

Prof. Barnard Points Out Its Similarity to an Asteroid.

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Sept. 19.—The peculiarity of the new comet is that it is nearly destitute of the usual nebulosity. It is nearly all nucleus. Its orbit makes it possible that it is an asteroid, and a nebulous asteroid would be unique.

The comet to which Prof. Barnard refers was discovered in Russia by photography. It was found on a photographic plate, among the asteroids, of which there are many between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter.

High Court Votes to Seat the Four Challenged Senators.

JUDGE CULLEN DOMINANT

His Elucidation of the Law Accepted—Demurrer Again to be Argued Monday.

ASSEMBLY TAKES A RECESS

Lacks Only One Vote to Prefer Additional Impeachment Charges —Meets Again Thursday.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—When the High Court of Impeachment adjourned late this afternoon the first line of the Sulzer defense had been utterly demolished, while the lawyers for the respondent were making a determined stand on the second. Adjournment was taken until Monday at 2 P. M.

The court had been in session a little more than an hour when Mr. Sulzer suffered his first severe reverse. At that time the court, by unanimous vote and after listening to a spirited argument by D Cady Herrick, chief counsel for the defense, and an elaborate reply by Alton B. Parker, representing the Assembly Board of Impeachment Managers, refused to entertain challenges interposed on behalf of Mr. Sulzer against Senators Robert F. Wagner, James J. Frawley, Felix J. Sanner, and Samuel J. Ramsperger, sitting as members of the court.

The challenges were made on the ground of bias. Senator Wagner, it was declared, was an interested party, inasmuch as the removal from office of Mr. Sulzer would make Lieut. Gov. Martin H. Glynn Governor, whereupon Mr. Wagner, as temporary President of the Senate, automatically would become Lieutenant Governor. The other three Senators were challenged on the ground that they were members of the Frawley Committee, and as such had subscribed to a report virtually pronouncing Mr. Sulzer guilty of the charges he is now called upon to answer before the High Court of Impeachment.

The Dominant Figure.

When the argument on the motion to disqualify the four Senators had been concluded Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen of the Court of Appeals, as President of the High Court of Impeachment, made his influence felt in a manner to clinch the conviction that the presiding judge, with his strong personality and clear, calm logic which had characterized his utterances from the bench, would be the dominant figure in this trial. The presiding judge also made it plain that he would not countenance dilatory tactics or any undue deliberation.

The lawyers on both sides, after they had concluded their argument, expressed a desire to submit briefs for the Court's perusal. Judge Cullen replied with the declaration that in his opinion the matter should be determined immediately. He said he had concluded to leave the decision to a vote of the Court, although he felt that, under the rules adopted, he had ample power to decide the matter himself. Before he submitted the question he addressed the Court, concisely declaring it to be his opinion that neither in precedent nor principle was there any ground for the challenges put forth in behalf of Mr. Sulzer.

The statement of the Presiding Judge seemed to carry decisive weight with the other members of the Court. When the roll was called no voice was raised against permitting the four Senators to sit. Even the most ardent of Mr. Sulzer's friends in the Senate voted to sustain Judge Cullen in his opinion.

The fight of Mr. Sulzer's lawyers thereafter was entirely along technical lines. Of that tenor was the answer of Mr. Sulzer, presented by Louis Marshall of counsel for the defense, after the articles of impeachment had been read and issue was about to be joined.

Challenges Jurisdiction.

Mr. Sulzer's answer was a challenge of the jurisdiction of the High Court of Impeachment on the ground that because the Legislature was in extraordinary session when the impeachment resolution was adopted, it had transgressed the constitutional prohibition under which "no subject" may be considered at an extra session except upon the recommendation of the Governor. Other irregularities in the legislative procedure surrounding the adoption of this resolution were also alleged in Mr. Sulzer's answer.

One of the lawyers for the defense pointed out that this was merely a demurrer, and that Mr. Sulzer's plea to the charges themselves would be given in no uncertain tone, if an answer were called for, after the preliminary motions had been disposed of. This lawyer told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that it was the purpose of Mr. Sulzer and his lawyers to meet squarely every charge that had been made in the Articles of Impeachment and to combat these, article by article.

This statement followed the circulation of a rumor about the Capitol that Mr. Sulzer was on the point of giving up the fight and resigning his office in order to escape trial. An official letter from Chester C. Platt, secretary to Mr.

Sulzer, to Martin H. Glynn, the Acting Governor, recognizing, for the first time, the latter's power to transact the business of the Governor's office, was regarded as lending decided color to this report. Mr. Platt, however, explained that Mr. Sulzer scrupulously had refrained from transacting any official business ever since Supreme Court Justice Hasbrouck, in his decision in the Robin habeas corpus proceedings, declared Mr. Sulzer disqualified from exercising the functions of his office as a result of the impeachment found against him by the Assembly.

The first business undertaken by the Court to-day after the gentle voice of the crier had declared it open was the adoption of rules, which had been drafted overnight by a committee composed of Senators Wagner and Brown and Judge Bartlett.

What the Rules Provide.

The rules provide that the court shall sit five days a week, Saturday and, of course, Sunday being omitted. On Mondays the court will convene at 2 P. M. and sit until 6 P. M. On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays the court will sit from 10 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. and from 2 to 5 P. M. On Fridays two sessions will be held also, but the hour of adjournment for the day will be 3:30 P. M. The hours may be changed from time to time by the court, for lack of witnesses or other reasons.

The conduct of the trial is to be governed by the rules prevailing in the Supreme Court of the State. Rule VI. reads:

The final decision of the court upon the articles preferred shall be taken by the President of the Court, who, upon each of the articles as it shall be separately read by the clerk, shall, with its number, propose to each member of the court, in alphabetical order the question:

"Senator (or Judge) how say you, is the respondent guilty or not guilty as charged in the ——— article of impeachment?"

Each member of the court, when so questioned, shall rise in his place and answer "Guilty" or "Not guilty," and the President of the Court shall also give his vote upon each article, either "Guilty" or "Not Guilty"; and when the roll call shall be completed upon each charge, the result upon each charge shall be announced, and shall be entered upon the records of the court.

If two-thirds of the members present shall concur in the finding, "Guilty," upon any one or more of said articles, the President shall then ask the court in the same manner put, and the members of the court shall in the same manner answer separately, the further questions:

"Shall William Sulzer be removed from his office as Governor of this State, for the cause stated in the article (or articles) of the charges preferred against him upon which you have found him guilty?"

"Shall William Sulzer be disqualified to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under this State?"

And the final judgment of the court shall be certified by the President of the Court and Clerk of the Court.

The question as to the number of persons who may address the court is left to the discretion of the presiding Judge.

Any member of the court may ask for private consultation during the trial, and if the request is indorsed by a majority of the members it shall be accorded.

An Advantage for Sulzer.

The fact that in the rules adopted provision was made for the application of the rules of evidence in use in the Supreme Court was pronounced a distinct advantage to Mr. Sulzer. These rules, it was pointed out, would surround him with safeguards such as seldom had been erected about a respondent in impeachment proceedings.

A great deal of latitude in the presentation of evidence always has characterized trials of this nature. On the other hand, it was not many minutes after the rules had been adopted that Judge Cullen from the rostrum declared that in his opinion no technicalities such as a defendant might seek shelter behind in the criminal court should be permitted to intervene in the meteing out of justice in the case of a public official tried on impeachment.

One of the Senators said to THE NEW YORK TIMES man's correspondent that the adoption of similar rules in the midst of an impeachment trial in England 130 years ago virtually had changed the entire trend of that trial.

"The respondent in that case," said this Senator, "had almost been convicted of high treason when the Lord Chancellor entered the impeachment court and succeeded in putting through a rule requiring the application of the rigid rules of evidence obtaining in the regular courts. The entire trend of the trial from that moment changed, and the respondent was acquitted."

The rules to-day were adopted without a dissenting voice. This was the first vote on an important question taken by the High Court of Impeachment. It was awaited with interest, because it was thought it might develop a division which would furnish a key to the future.

Political Complexion of Court.

On party lines the High Court of Impeachment divides as follows: Democrats, 31 Senators and 8 Judges; Republicans, 17 Senators and 1 Judge—William E. Werner. It will require thirty-eight votes—a two-thirds majority—to sustain a verdict of guilty.

But nobody at the Capitol believes that there will be a division along party lines on any question coming before the High Court of Impeachment. Should such a division occur on the Sulzer question, that of Mr. Sulzer's guilt or innocence, the Democrats would have one vote to spare provided the entire Democratic representation in court and Senate could be held in line.

If votes in the Senate on questions where the lines have been drawn between Sulzer and anti-Sulzer Democrats may be taken as a basis for prognostication, the Democratic Senate majority will divide as follows: For Sulzer, 24; for Sulzer, 5. Among the Republicans, Mr. Sulzer was able to muster less than half a dozen votes when his direct nominations bill was before the Senate.

Judge Herrick's Argument.

The rules having been adopted, the court immediately took up the challenges. D Cady Herrick was heard first. He declared the challenges were not perfunctorily proposed, nor was there any imputation upon the personal integrity of the Senators challenged.

"We are well aware of what has taken place in previous impeachment cases, but the world has moved since the last impeachment trial in this State," said Mr. Herrick. "Courts are more subject to keen scrutiny than ever; the bar is more subject to scrutiny and criticism than ever before.

"This case, certainly the greatest in this country since the trial of President Johnson, is arousing the attention of the whole country. What shall be done now and here is precedent for future time; more, while this court is convened for the purpose of trying the Governor of the State, the court itself, I say with all due respect, is upon trial. Like Caesar's wife, you must be above suspicion in all your membership."

Mr. Herrick said there could be no doubt that all the Senators who have been members of the Frawley Committee had formed and expressed an opinion as to the guilt of Mr. Sulzer. In support of this contention he quoted extract upon extract from the report that he had signed.

Mr. Herrick referred to various precedents in this State, among them that of Senator Stanford, whose right to sit as a member of the Impeachment Court that tried Canal Commissioner Dorn in 1868 was challenged because he had been Chairman of a legislative investigating committee which had turned up the material for the impeachment charges.

"He was an honorable man and he begged to be excused from serving," said Judge Herrick.

Judge Parker's Reply.

Judge Parker, in responding, cited precedent after precedent to show that in former impeachment trials it always had been held that members of the court could not be challenged. In conclusion he said:

"Without referring to this particular case, I wish to point out that if the contention of the other side were upheld it might be possible, through a process of successive challenges, to so decrease the number of Judges that it would be impossible to comply with the requirements of the Constitution that the Impeachment Court shall be composed of at least the major part of the Senate and of the Court of Appeals each. In that case an impeachment trial could be blocked simply by this process."

After Judge Parker had finished, Judge Cullen said he would state his own opinion as to what should be the proper disposition of the question. He spoke slowly in a clear, strong voice. His right index finger was upraised from time to time to punctuate his remarks. He was a picture of judicial dignity and authority as he laid down the law, saying in part:

Judge Cullen's Opinion.

That the challenge cannot be entertained is the uniform current of authority. All the precedents are against it. I equally think it is not sustained by principle. This, as has been well said, is a court. The distinction between the disqualification of a juror and the disqualification of a judge is marked.

Now, I shall speak to you of the question from a legal point of view, but do not consider that the question is one which, in the vernacular of the day, may be termed, a legal technicality. It is a question of power, and the question is, have members of this court power to exclude other members of the court, except for reasons defined by law, either in the Constitution or in the statutes?

I should say, in the first place, that there is this marked distinction between a challenge to a juror and a challenge to a Judge, though the word is an entirely inappropriate term to apply to the disqualification of a Judge. A disqualification of a juror may be waived by consent. A legal disqualification of a Judge renders his judgment void, and consent will not permit him to act.

Now, at common law, nothing disqualifies a Judge from sitting except direct interest in the case. It is doubtful whether the statutory disqualifications do apply to the membership of this court, for the reason that none of the objections suggested by the counsel for the respondent come within the statutory disqualifications.

Even in an ordinary court of justice members of a court could not exclude one of their brethren. This was so decided by the Court of Appeals in the case of the People vs. Patrick.

I do not mean to say that if any member of the court feels that such action as he has previously taken in regard to the matters which are now to be tried or that his personal feelings toward the respondent are such as to disqualify him or to impair his ability to render a just and fair verdict, according to the oath which he has taken, he may not appeal to the court to be excused from sitting; but that appeal must be made by himself and must be considered solely on his application, and cannot be considered as a challenge to his qualification to sit in the court.

The question which will be submitted to you will be in this form—not as to the right to challenge, but it will be, Shall the court entertain the challenge which has been interposed by the counsel for the respondent?

Reject Executive Session.

Senator Herrick moved that the court go into executive session to consider the challenges. This was voted down unanimously. The Presiding Judge asked if any member of the court desired to speak on the subject. Nobody did. Then the roll was called. All the Senators involved in the challenges, beginning with Senator Frawley, asked to be excused from voting. The other members of the court without exception voted against sustaining the Sulzer challenges.

Judge Cullen directed Clerk McCabe to read the Articles of Impeachment. Louis Marshall, after the reading was finished, rose to enter a demurrer on behalf of William Sulzer. To this Mr. Sulzer challenged the jurisdiction of the court and the right of the Assembly to consider the question of his impeachment at an extraordinary session, and asked that the proceedings be dismissed.

At this point the Court adjourned until 2 p. m., not, however, until a resolution had been adopted under which the members of the Court of Appeals and of the Senate will form in procession in the Senate lobby and walk into Court together at the hour fixed for the opening of each session.

This gave a touch of added solemnity to the proceedings in the afternoon session, and kept the audience that filled the galleries on its feet for five minutes while the long procession filed into the Senate Chamber and the members took their seats.

As the afternoon session opened, John B. Stanchfield, one of the managers of the Board of Managers, contested the assertion that the Assembly was not legally in session when the impeachment resolution was adopted.

Mr. Marshall's Argument.

Mr. Marshall, responding for Mr. Sulzer, said he was prepared to introduce testimony in support of his contention. He then read from the rostrum a long brief, in which the jurisdiction of the court and the validity of the impeachment were challenged, on the ground that the Assembly was not constitutionally convened or qualified to act on the subject at an extraordinary session. He pronounced as unsound and fallacious the opinion handed down by Attorney General Carmody, who held that the finding of the impeachment was a judicial and not a legislative act and one which the Assembly was empowered to undertake at any time.

"This court might just as well be called upon to act on charges presented by a private citizen, by the manager of a political party or by the anonymous enemies of the person it is sought to impeach," said Mr. Marshall with great rhetorical effect. "It is our contention that the Assembly has no power of impeachment when convened in extraordinary session unless the Governor shall have recommended the impeachment of the person sought to be proceeded against."

Mr. Marshall contended that the Assembly not possessing power to convene at will to consider impeachment charges, as has been maintained in recent court decisions.

Veiled Attack on Murphy.

"Assuming that by concert of action, by the exercise of potent political or personal influence, a large majority of the elected members of the Assembly should be brought together, what is there to prevent them under such circumstances from meeting in secrecy at a private house, at a hotel, at a political club, in an atmosphere supercharged with prejudice, hatred, and malice, without giving notice to the other members of the Assembly, and concocting, under the shroud of an absolute despot and under the cover of darkness, articles of impeachment against a judicial officer, who, because not subservient, has gained the enmity of him who initiated so extraordinary a convocation?"

Mr. Marshall declared that such practices readily would lead to revolution and anarchy and to the virtual suspension of the constitutional safeguards about life, liberty and property.

Mr. Marshall had not concluded when the hour of adjournment arrived. He will continue his argument Monday afternoon when the court again will meet. The present prospect is that the arguments on preliminary technical questions, before the issue is joined on the charges themselves, will be long drawn out, unless Chief Judge Cullen should cut them short.

Some of the counsel for the prosecution were to-night disposed to believe that the preliminary hostilities would have been fought out by Wednesday. When the time has come, the case for the prosecution will be opened by Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for the Frawley committee, who will outline the evidence. The taking of testimony will follow immediately. This program was sketched to-night by Mr. Brackett, who added that if Mr. Sulzer should take the stand, the task of cross-examining him would fall largely to John B. Stanchfield.

"Mr. Stanchfield and myself will bear the burden of the cross-questioning," he said. "We hope that Mr. Sulzer will take the stand in his own defense, but we have grave doubts of it."

Should the question of jurisdiction raised by Mr. Marshall be determined adversely to Mr. Sulzer, his lawyers are prepared to contest every inch of the remaining ground. Austin G. Fox, after Mr. Marshall is through, will urge that the offenses charged against Mr. Sulzer in the Articles of Impeachment are not impossible, partly on the ground that they were not committed while he was an official of the State. This has particular reference to the alleged juggling of the campaign fund accounting.

Alton B. Parker will answer the Marshall argument, and Edgar Truman Brackett the argument made by Mr. Fox.

In addition, objections will be raised against the form of the impeachment articles, and the contention will be made that they are technically defective.

Let Assemblymen Go Home.

The Assembly leaders, after waiting all day for a sufficient number of members to report to render it safe for them to attempt the adoption of three additional articles of impeachment, finally were compelled to give up the attempt at seven o'clock to-night and let the Assemblymen go home for a week. They were short just one vote to make a majority of 76 for the proposed articles. Speaker Smith and Chairman Levy of the Board of Managers both expressed disgust with the difficulties placed in their way.

In making the motion for a recess, Mr. Levy explained that the Senate had adjourned until Thursday, and that if the Board of Managers were to put additional charges through the Assembly to-night the Senate could not be notified immediately. He, therefore, thought it best to take no action until both Houses were in session. Closing his address, Mr. Levy made an impassioned plea for a full attendance next Thursday, pointing out the gravity of the situation. The fight for additional charges, it is said, will be resumed immediately on the convening of the Assembly, and in the meantime the Democratic leaders will use every means to obtain a full attendance.

It is generally understood that the charges were completed to-day. The three chief allegations are, it is said, that Mr. Sulzer usurped the powers of Governor following his impeachment, made a pre-election promise to appoint Dr. Julius Broder State Commissioner of Health and failed to account for the fund which he obtained to wage his direct primary campaign.

Sulzer's Surrender to Glynn.

The letter from Secretary Platt giving official recognition to Lieut. Gov. Glynn as Acting Governor was received by the latter this afternoon in connection with a demand for extradition papers. Here is the letter:

State of New York. Executive Chamber, Albany, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1913.

Hon. Martin H. Glynn, Lieut.-Gov., Capitol, Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—The judicial department of this State having at the present time decided that Executive functions should be performed by yourself as Acting Governor, under advice of counsel, I transmit herewith for your attention a letter from the District Attorney of the County of New York, dated Sept. 19, 1913, with inclosures relating to the extradition of one Moses Gutman.

I also transmit herewith certain commutation sheets concerning certain prisoners whose terms are about to expire by commutation, pursuant to statute, which I am informed under the present circumstances require your attention and signature. Very respectfully,

CHESTER C. PLATT,
Secretary to the Governor.

Inclosures.

The Moses Gutman mentioned in the above is a fugitive from justice from New York State, and his extradition has been asked of the Chilean Government. District Attorney Whitman had advised the Acting Governor that in returning the fugitive to this country it may be necessary to bring him through the Argentine Republic, and he requests the Acting Governor to send a warrant to the Secretary of State at Washington with a request that he forward it to the Argentine Government and ask permission for the transit of Gutman through that territory on his return to New York, if he should be surrendered by Chile.

Rejects Sulzer Commissions.

Secretary of State May to-day returned the commissions of several railway employes who had been designated as special officers with police powers by Mr. Sulzer. His action, he said, was based on the ground that on the date the certificates were signed "the power of William Sulzer as Governor to make such appointments was suspended by certain articles of impeachment."

Acting Governor Glynn to-day for the first time since he assumed the role of chief executive, affixed his signature to bills, thereby enacting them into law. The measures approved were passed earlier in the week and completed the Democratic leaders' programme of financial legislation. One bill appropriated $75,000 for the expenses of the impeachment trial.

At the "people's house," Mr. Sulzer spent a quiet day. Late in the afternoon he went automobile riding. Before leaving he told attaches of the mansion that he positively would not grant any interviews to-day.

HIGGINS SUGGESTS KLINE.

Says He Would Be a Good Man to Lead Gaynor Forces.

Charles M. Higgins of Brooklyn, who was a member of the committee to fill vacancies of the disbanded Gaynor League and is the Chairman of the Brooklyn Gaynor League, has written to Herman Ridder and Benedict J. Greenhut to suggest that the Gaynor movement be continued and that the name of Mayor Kline be substituted for that of Gaynor. In his letter Mr. Higgins betrays considerable dissatisfaction over the choice of Mr. Mitchel.

"It has seemed to me," Mr. Higgins says in the course of his letter, "that it would not be difficult to turn over all the strength of our movement to the good men of our present Board of Estimate, whom our late Mayor assured me before his death he wished to have with him on his ticket."

Then Mr. Higgins goes on to say that no one man is essential to any cause. If they could get a man as good as McAneny they could carry on the campaign, says Higgins.

Mr. Higgins then suggests that Mayor Kline be put at the head of the Gaynor forces.

Tammany Re-elects Darlington.

The Tammany County and Borough Committees met for reorganization at Tammany Hall last night. Dr. Thomas Darlington, Tammany's candidate for President of the Borough of Manhattan, was re-elected Chairman of the County Committee. Alphonse G. Koeble was re-elected Chairman of the Borough Committee. The Judicial Committee will meet for reorganization at 1 o'clock to-day.

Democrats Re-elect James D. Bell.

Col. James D. Bell last night was re-elected chairman of the Kings County Democratic Committee at the annual meeting held in Sangerbund Hall, Smith and Schermerhorn Streets, Brooklyn. Resolutions were adopted expressing regret at the death of William J. Gaynor.

POSTMAN QUIT HOME, WOMAN ALSO GONE

Mrs. Voss's Furniture Marked for Los Angeles—Bosworth Got Transferred There.

HE DIDN'T TELL HIS WIFE

Mrs. Bosworth Told of Husband's Departure for the West by Jamaica Postmaster.

Mrs. David B. Bosworth, a New York City school teacher, who resides in Floral Park, L. I., yesterday learned that her husband, a letter carrier, who carried mail to the residents of St. Albans, a settlement on the eastern border of Queens, had obtained from the Post Office Department a transfer to Los Angeles, Cal. He departed yesterday, or possibly the night before for the West, without taking anything with him from his home. Mrs. Louisa Elsie Voss, wife of H. C. Voss of St. Albans, a wine salesman, also left her home yesterday.

De Milt Brothers of Jamaica, who have a storage warehouse and moving van business, upon orders of Mrs. Voss, went to the Voss residence on Thursday and carted all the furniture to their warehouse. Yesterday was spent in crating the furniture and marking it by her instructions: "Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Voss, Los Angeles, Cal.," preparatory to shipping it by freight.

Mr. Voss had an advertisement inserted in the afternoon in a Brooklyn paper, in which he says, "My wife, Louisa Elsie Voss, having left my bed and board, I will no longer be responsible for any debts she may contract." Voss's daughter, a girl of 18, is believed by neighbors to have gone with her mother.

Bosworth, who is about 50 years of age, had been prominent in the work of the Methodist Church of Floral Park. Mrs. Bosworth visited the Jamaica Post Office in the morning to ask Postmaster Warren B. Ashmead if he knew the whereabouts of her husband, who had not been home the night before.

"Why, your husband got a transfer to Los Angeles," said the Postmaster, "and has gone there. Didn't you know about it?"

"He told me nothing whatever of any such transfer, and simply left me without a word of intending to stay away," she replied. "He was as kind as usual when I saw him last, and I had no reason to suspect he was going to leave me."

Mrs. Bosworth later learned that her husband had sold his automobile for $150.

Mrs. Bosworth, when seen at her home last night seemed broken in spirit. She admitted she was alone, but declined to make any statement. She is Bosworth's second wife. He has a grown son.

It was impossible to find Mr. Voss last night, and no information was to be had whether he would take steps to prevent the shipment of the furniture to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Voss is described by neighbors as about 42 years old, rather good looking and attractive in dress.

JAIL FOR PRIMARY FIGHT.

Four Men In One Auto Sentenced—Witness Threatened.

Four of the armed men who rode in one of the automobiles that cruised through this city on primary day were each sentenced to three months on Blackwell's Island yesterday by Magistrate March in the West Side Court. This was a result of the gunfight that occurred when two of the cars met at Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway.

The police caught one of the cars, and found a revolver on the floor of the tonneau, but as there was no means of fastening it on any one of the four passengers, a disorderly conduct charge was the gravest the police could prefer.

The four penalized yesterday for their part in the primary contest were all visitors from the lower East Side. They were Isaac Sobel of 1 Willett Street, Frank Martin of 8 Kenmare Street, Frank Rocco of 156 Mulberry Street and Vito Macchetta of 215 West Tenth Street.

At the court proceedings yesterday, which were attended by many evil-looking persons, the chief interest was in Mrs. Evelyn Horn, who stubbornly stuck to her identification of two of the men as occupants of the car. The Magistrate excused her from giving her address, and she said that during the noon recess, which interrupted her testimony, two men came to her with the threat that if she did any more talking something would happen to her.

LOEB WILL NOT SERVE.

Tells Fusionists That He Cannot Direct Their Campaign.

William Loeb, Jr., declined yesterday to undertake the management of the Fusion campaign. It was expected that this would be his attitude when he would not accept the job when it was offered to him personally by Mr. Mitchel on Wednesday. He then, however, was about to start for Washington, and he promised to think the matter over while he was away. He returned yesterday and definitely refused to undertake the work. His business engagements, he said, made it impossible for him to accept.

Mr. Mitchel was in consultation yesterday with his advisers, Frank Polk, Montgomery Hare, and ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Woods. The names of several possible campaign managers were considered. Because of the decision to refrain from political discussion until after the funeral of Mayor Gaynor, no announcement was made of the identity of the men who might be invited to serve.

McCULLOUGH CASE DELAYED

Max Finkelstein, Louis F. H. Betts, and Mrs. John W. Herbert Among Those Whose Baggage Is Held Up.

Gen. Henry, Surveyor of the Port, continued the hearing yesterday at the Custom House of the charge against Mr. and Mrs. John H. McCullough, who arrived here on the Imperator with six trunks and declared only $200 of dutiable goods.

They were present at the hearing, with Dr. Joseph Fraenkel, a trained nurse, a maid, and a valet. The case was adjourned until the appraisers have completed their examination of the trunks.

Until two years ago Mr. McCullough was a partner in the firm of Harriman & Co., 111 Broadway, and his wife was Miss Anna G. Dodge, daughter of the late William Earl Dodge, and was said to be worth $10,000,000.

Several cases of smuggling on ships that arrived in port were dealt with by the Commissioner.

Abraham Brown, dry goods dealer, of 878 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, who arrived on the Imperator, failed to declare a pair of diamond earrings and three silver watches, valued at $800, all told. The jewelry was ordered seized.

Mrs. Marie Webber, a dressmaker, living at 155 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, a passenger on the Imperator, was summoned to the Custom House to explain why she had $150 worth of foreign laces concealed in a skirt which was in her baggage. There was also some undeclared wearing apparel valued at $150.

To the surprise of Surveyor Henry and his chief adviser, Special Deputy Surveyor George W. Smythe, Mrs. Webber frankly admitted that the goods had been concealed with the object of evading duty. When the Surveyor recovered from his astonishment, he said it was quite refreshing to hear any one admit the facts, and ordered the goods to be seized pending an official appraisement. Decision in the case was reserved.

Louis F. H. Betts, lawyer, of 830 Park Avenue, arriving on the Lusitania yesterday, declared that his dutiable goods were $150. When questioned as to whether he had any jewelry he produced a gold bracelet watch, and examination of his trunks showed that they contained dutiable articles in excess of the $150 declared. The baggage was sent to the Appraiser's Stores for examination.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram G. Work of 15 East Fifty-first Street, arriving on the Imperator on Wednesday night, declared their dutiable baggage was valued at about $1,400. Customs Inspectors found fourteen dresses in their trunks valued alone at $1,500, instead of $780, as stated in their declarations. Mr. Work told the Surveyor yesterday that his child was ill, and that it was worry about that which caused his wife to make a mistake in her valuation.

Miss Grace Headley, who arrived on the Majestic yesterday afternoon, omitted to declare a foreign-made hat and gown she wore when she left the ship. Her baggage was held for examination.

Mrs. John W. Herbert of 507 Fifth Avenue declared, when she arrived on the Imperator that her dutiable baggage amounted to $450. In looking over her effects, the Customs Inspectors discovered a quantity of wearing apparel, jewelry, and furs that she had not declared. There was also a gold mesh bag and a scarf pin that had not been included in the declaration.

Mrs. Herbert explained to Surveyor Henry yesterday that she had been in the habit always of traveling with her husband, and that he made out the customs declarations, of which she was ignorant. No disposition was made of the case yesterday.

Max Finkelstein of 233 East 112th Street, proprietor of a chain of five and ten cent stores, arrived here on the Lusitania, accompanied by his daughter Pauline, and he was summoned to the Custom House to explain why a Paris hat and suit belonging to Miss Finkelstein were not included in the declaration. Neither was a gold bracelet watch which had been bought in Paris. The baggage was all sent to the Appraiser's Stores. Mr. Finkelstein told the Surveyor that he was not familiar with the customs regulations.

tificates in each complete book as it is issued by the Board of Health. A stub from which one of the two missing certificates had been torn was made out in the handwriting of a physician, giving the required facts about the death of a patient. The other stub was blank, and Inspector Faurot made a search for the certificate which had been attached to it. When it could not be found among the priest's effects, he gave the order that the mortality records should be searched to see whether Schmidt had not actually committed one of the crimes which he said he had in contemplation.

"The Board of Health is strict in issuing certificates of death," said Inspector Faurot. "They are only given to physicians who have been thoroughly investigated. It may be shown that either Schmidt or Ernest A. Muret, his confederate, appropriated the certificates from the office of a physician."

Schmidt said that he wanted a copy of the signature of Dr. Slevin so that he could practice writing it till he became expert in imitating it. Dr. Slevin, who is an undertaker as well as a physician, signs many certificates, and the priest thought, he said, that Dr. Slevin's handwriting could be easily passed through the hands of the clerks in the Health Department.

"I am a believer in euthanasia," said the priest. "I believe that the crippled, the diseased, and all who are suffering beyond remedy from physical or mental troubles should be put to a painless death.

"There are many sufferers who want to die and I would have helped them die. Other sufferers fear death, but that is because they do not know that they would be better off if their lives were over. I believe that I would be fulfilling God's will in doing this work."

"Did you kill Anna Aumuller because she was unhappy on earth?"

"No," said Schmidt hastily, "that was another matter. I killed her for a sacrifice."

Plans to Defeat Law.

The priest said that as the law conflicted with his inspirations, he was driven to such things as committing murder in secret and planning to divert suspicion by forged death certificates. He realized, he said, that he could never accomplish the work for which he had been selected, unless he was able to outwit the detectives. This was the reason, he said, why he had planned his crimes with so much care and had taken his steps so slowly. He insisted that his plans bore no relation to the crimes of men who had killed persons and used death certificates to make it appear that they had died naturally, with the purpose of stealing their property, profiting by their wills or deceiving insurance companies.

"I have acted for the good of mankind," said the priest. "My mission has been to relieve suffering. I was going to make money on my printing-press until I had enough to serve a great deal to all the poor. That would be for the people whose misery could be relieved by money. Many who are miserable cannot be helped, and it was only those that I would do away with."

The priest said that he thought it would be easy to entrap his intended victims in one of his flats. Any pretext would induce them to come as no one would suspect harm from a priest.

Schmidt denied that Muret, the pseudo-dentist of 301 St. Nicholas Avenue, who is in the Tombs charged with being a partner in Schmidt's counterfeiting plant, had anything to do with his scheme to end the suffering of the miserable by putting them to death.

"I have only killed one person," said the priest. "If I had killed any more I would say so. I had planned to kill many for the sake of humanity, but I killed only one. The police could easily prove that I was not telling the truth if I confessed any more. I wish I had killed more, because that might hurry me to the electric chair.

"I would be pleased to say that I had killed the girl in Louisville—I wish I could confess to that crime and get free the man who is now in jail for it. I wish I could convince people that I have done all the deeds I have been charged with, because it would give freedom from prison to many men. But I would have to tell lies and the lies would be easily traced.

Anxious to Pay Penalty.

"I am as anxious to go to the electric chair as the District Attorney is to send me. Why do you ask me questions? Haven't I told everything? There is no need for useless delays and all these legal formalities. I know I am guilty and everybody else knows. The District Attorney wants me to go to the electric chair and I want to go myself. Then why should there be any delay?

"I have faced death many a time and will go to the electric chair without the quiver of a muscle."

The priest spent part of the morning yesterday reading accounts of himself in the newspaper and seemed to take a good deal of pleasure in this. He read some statements that he wanted to correct.

"I was not the father," he said, "of the five-year-old boy whom I introduced as my nephew August when I lived under the name of Van Dyke with Mrs. Mary Manzer at 124 West Eighty-fourth Street. The boy was the son of a friend of mine. I won't say who it was, because that would cause trouble for the family.

"I did not murder the Haas girl who was killed when I was a priest in Mainz. You should believe this, because I have frankly told all that I have done and I have no reason to conceal anything.

"Dr. Muret's story of the reason why we quarreled is true. I told Dr. Muret that I wanted to be like Christ and that I was making money on my bread. I was acting under the patronage of St. Elizabeth. It was that that made him angry. I wish they wouldn't drag that man into this. He is wholly innocent."

Schmidt did not become talkative until the afternoon. The Tombs keepers found him evidently in a morose and despondent frame of mind in the morning. This note was sent to him

Have you a son? Is Muret your cousin, as reported by cable? Did you ever kill any other persons beside Anna Aumuller?

The priest replied with a verse by Goethe, written to Queen Luise of Prussia when she was fleeing from Napoleon in 1807. This is a translation of the verse:

He knows not the Almighty power
Who ne'er in tears partook his bread,
Who ne'er upon his weary bed

Two Birth Certificates Found.

The Rev. Father George Bruder, rector of St. Joseph's Church, on East Eighty-seventh Street, said yesterday that he had seen two birth certificates which were found in Schmidt's trunk. One was the birth certificate of a Hans Schmidt, and the other the birth certificate of a Frank Schmidt.

The discovery of these two birth certificates, it was learned yesterday, was what led Inspector Faurot to believe that there was a strong likelihood that the man in the Tombs charged with murder was never ordained a priest, but that he had impersonated a dead priest after stealing his credentials.

The Rev. Father Bruder, who was present when Inspector Faurot searched Schmidt's trunks, said last night that he did not remember the dates of birth or places of birth on the two certificates, but that he was firmly convinced that Schmidt, the confessed murderer, had never been ordained a priest.

"I will never believe that he is a priest until his personality has been identified," said Father Bruder. "There have been many cases of impersonation of priests, and I firmly believe that this is one. Schmidt, in my opinion, is a shrewd and brainy criminal, who has forged his way into the priesthood in the belief that, disguised as a priest, he could commit all sorts of crimes without being suspected.

"We found among Schmidt's belongings six or seven diplomas certifying that he had been graduated from that many German gymnasiums. Why should a man graduate from more than one? It was for forging papers of this kind that Schmidt was suspended from the priesthood. All those diplomas of his are probably forged.

"We also found several seals of the Bishop of Mainz and of the Archbishop of Cologne. There were also a number of blanks from the Chancery Office of the Archbishop of Cologne—blanks such as are used in declaring the orders and qualifications of a priest. He had evidently stolen the seals and blanks in order to forge testimonials for himself.

"Schmidt had a diploma which purported to be from the seminary at Mainz. This was certainly forged. The theological seminary at Mainz is one of the best in Europe, and Schmidt was very deficient in instruction for a priest.

"Only a week before his arrest Father Huntmann, rector of St. Joseph's Church on West 125th Street, who was over Schmidt, started to investigate various reports which were made to him to the effect that Schmidt had made continual errors in saying mass, that his Latin seemed to be very poor, and that he had a faulty understanding of much of the Church's doctrine.

"In this connection Father Huntmann went to see Father Braun of St. Boniface's Church, where Schmidt had formerly been a priest. Father Huntmann asked Father Braun if he was sure that Schmidt had ever really been ordained a priest. The fact that Muret had assumed the name of Miller in renting the counterfeiting apartment with Schmidt.

"Neither Muret nor Miller is far from Mueller," said Inspector Faurot, "and every one knows that the psychology of aliases teaches that an assumed name is almost certain to resemble a man's right name."

Alphonse G. Koelble, Schmidt's lawyer, has arranged with Assistant District Attorney Deacon Murphy for an examination of Schmidt by alienists employed by the prosecution. Mr. Koelble said yesterday that, if necessary, he could go before a jury without alienists and get a verdict that Schmidt was insane solely upon his appearance and actions.

The recovered parts of the body of the murdered girl were taken to Bellevue morgue yesterday from Volk's morgue in Hoboken, N. J. The priest may be taken to-day to identify the remains. Schmidt has offered, against his lawyer's advice, to do this. Without Schmidt's help, Mr. Koelbel said yesterday that he believed the prosecution would not be able to establish the "corpus delicti," unless the head of the girl was recovered. Harbor police are now dredging the river for the head.

Inspector Faurot went yesterday to Englewood, N. J., where he conferred with Chief of Police Titus of Englewood and Sergt. Frank O'Brien of Edgewater, N. J., a town near the place where the first part of the body was found.

MURET IN HOCH CASE?

Suspicion That He Was the Dr. Held Arrested with Wife Murderer.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—"Dr." Ernest Arthur Muret, who was known in this city as Dr. Arnold Held, is probably the Dr. Held who was arrested in Chicago in 1905 in the case of Johann Hoch, murderer of many women, in the opinion of Police Lieutenant Michael Loftis of the West Chicago Avenue Police Station. Lieut. Loftis had charge of the investigation at that time.

"I remember that Dr. Held was mentioned in letters written by women to Hoch, and also that women who had letters from Hoch had letters from this doctor," said Lieut. Loftis.

"When the New York police discovered that Muret had once lived in Chicago under the name of Dr. Arnold Held, I tried to remember the first name of the man, but my memory failed me.

"At that time he was with some promoters who announced that they were starting a hospital for epileptics and sent women in blue uniforms into the Loop to collect subscriptions. As a matter of fact, there was no hospital, and it was merely a scheme to collect money.

"We sent one of the men to the Bridewell. The Dr. Held I am thinking of was not convicted for any crime, but only kept under surveillance for a while. He was a tall, thin man, about 5 feet 9 inches high, smooth shaven, and about 28 years old."

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Johann Hoch was hanged here Feb. 23, 1906, for the murder of his wife, Marie Walcker Hoch, in 1905, by the administration of poison. It developed after his arrest that for nineteen years he had made a business of marrying women, deserting some and murdering others, the motive in each case being to obtain life insurance or other property of his victim. It was well established that in nineteen years he married twelve women, of whom four died under circumstances which left little doubt that they had been poisoned.

Investigation lagged after the execution of Hoch, but the conviction remained in the minds of police and lawyers concerned in his prosecution that the record of his crimes as unearthed by detectives was far from complete.

FORGER OF SAME NAME.

A Hans Schmidt Centre of Sensational Trial in London.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19.—Scotland Yard may be in a position to give considerable information regarding Hans Schmidt. In 1902 a young engraver of that name was the central figure in a sensational forgery case, known as the Barmagh trial. For two years previous to that time the Bank of England officials had been alarmed at the persistent appearance of notes forged so cleverly that the deception was unnoticeable even to their expert cashiers.

Toward the end of 1902 bank detectives and Scotland Yard ran to earth a gang of forgers in Whitechapel. Three receivers, named Philip Bernstein and Solomon and William Barmagh, were arrested, and later this capture was crowned by the arrest of a clever young German engraver, named Hans Schmidt, who had not been long in London. In his secret workroom, which was raided, a complete plant had been installed, at a cost of more than $11,000. Clever though he was, Schmidt had not been dealt with generously by the receivers, so he consented to turn King's evidence, and, though at the time he had notes in circulation valued at a quarter of a million dollars, his offer was accepted and the three receivers were convicted.

Bernstein got twenty years, Solomon Barmagh fifteen, and William Barmagh ten. After sentence and before leaving the courtroom Solomon Barmagh, who had a pistol concealed on his person, blew his brains out. After three years in prison Bernstein and Barmagh told the secret hiding place and the quarter of a million dollars of forged notes was recovered. Thereupon their sentences were reduced to seven years.

Hans Schmidt was seen away from the shores of England by Scotland Yard, and was last heard of in New York about seven years ago. A report appeared in English papers some time ago that he had died in New York, but it was believed that the Bank of England authorities were anxious to give the impression that this prince of forgers had passed away.

MR. GAYNOR'S BODY LIES IN HIS HOME

Taken from the Lusitania at Quarantine Early Yesterday and Carried to Brooklyn.

MRS. GAYNOR PROSTRATED

Rufus Gaynor Overcome Also After Seeing Father's Coffin Landed Safely.

CRUSH AT FUNERAL FEARED

Police Estimate That 20,000 Persons Will Seek to March in the Procession on Monday.

The body of Mayor Gaynor now lies in the family home at 20 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, from which he departed less than two weeks ago for the rest which he hoped would restore his health. The coffin arrived at the house at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, having been taken from the Cunard liner Lusitania at Quarantine through the courtesy of Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, and the health officer of the port. Until 4 o'clock this afternoon the body will be treasured by Mrs. Gaynor and her children. Then it will pass into the hands of the Committee on Arrangements appointed by Mayor Kline for the public ceremonies which will end with the burial service at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the Gaynor lot in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Gaynor was prostrated when she saw her husband's body. Rufus Gaynor, who accompanied his father on his trip in search of health and upon whom heavy responsibility had fallen in the last ten days, also collapsed upon his arrival at home.

Dr. John W. Parrish, the Gaynor family physician, who had been called to treat Miss Ruth Gaynor for an attack of grip, attended her mother and brother. He said that neither was seriously ill.

The crisis for Mrs. Gaynor came when she was left alone in the room in which the flag-draped coffin rested on its bier. Rufus Gaynor's nerves gave way as soon as his father's body was safe on land. On the way from Quarantine in the steamer Correction of the Correction Department, which carried the body to this city, Rufus Gaynor talked with Robert Adamson, secretary to the late Mayor, and gave fuller details of the circumstances leading up to his father's death. He drank several cups of coffee as he sat with Mr. Adamson, and they seemed to calm his nerves.

"Come ashore with me now, Rufus," said Mr. Adamson, when the Correction arrived at Pier A.

"No, I won't leave until the coffin has been removed," young Mr. Gaynor replied. "I couldn't leave now."

And he waited until the last, superintending the lowering of the coffin from the upper deck of the Correction. When the coffin had been put in the hearse, which had been drawn up close to the ship, Mr. Gaynor consented to come ashore. Then he gave way to his grief and anxiety, Mr. Adamson said later. He walked slowly behind the hearse to the automobile waiting outside the pier which took him to his home. As he quit the pier it was seen that there were deep lines in his face, and it was necessary for friends to assist him. Mr. Adamson repeated last night Mr. Gaynor's story of his father's end, as he had heard it.

Story of the Mayor's Death.

"You know how shocked we were when we heard of Mayor Gaynor's sudden death," Mr. Adamson said. "The surprise was general, I think. It appears, however, from Rufus's story that Rufus himself and Miss Gaynor, the trained nurse, were even more surprised. They did not suspect that the Mayor was dangerously ill. The first few days at sea brought some alarm, but then there came a change. The Mayor sat up, he read freely, and his appetite returned.

"On the morning of his death he was particularly active. He had been talking with many persons whom he met on the ship. He had shown great interest in all the little marine details which he observed. He had eaten a hearty breakfast, and he had even romped about the ship from deck to deck.

"Just after breakfast Rufus asked his father how he felt. 'Fine,' replied the Mayor. After taking much exercise he sat down on deck to read. The last two books he read, it appears, were ex-Ambassador Bryce's book on South America, which a friend on the Lusitania had presented to him, and Emerson's Essays, a copy of which I had provided among a list of books which he took with him.

"It was just after the steward had served luncheon that Rufus went into Stateroom 10, his father's room. There he saw the dishes on the table, untouched. He thought it strange. He ran to the deck, where he had left his father. His father sat well down in his reclining chair. One of his feet was extended and his head rested on one side. Unlike the reports that have been printed, Rufus told me that his father straightened up when he addressed him. It was a feeble attempt, he said, but showed life. In alarm Rufus ran to the nurse. 'I don't like the way father looks,' he said. The nurse ran to the Mayor's chair and bent over him. 'I feel his pulse beating,' she said.

"A Mr. Perry, one of the passengers who had conversed with the Mayor, came along just then. He saw the situation and ran for a doctor. Rufus ran for a doctor, too, while the nurse tested the eyelids for signs of life. She had aromatic spirits of ammonia, and she administered them. The ship's doctor came quickly with instruments for artificial respiration and with a stethoscope. He tried artificial respiration, but that did no good. All the while the Mayor lay flat on his back on the deck of the ship. The doctor tried the stethoscope. When he lifted it a white mark remained on the skin. The doctor shook his head. Rufus saw it and collapsed.

"'Oh, he's all right,' said the doctor, leading Rufus away. Then the body was carried below.

Plans for the Funeral.

Mr. Adamson spent most of yesterday with Dock Commissioner Smith, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, perfecting the funeral plans. Applications for seats at the Gaynor service and for places in the procession have become so numerous that the committeemen fear a great crush in lower Broadway. Commissioner Waldo spent the day in making police arrangements to meet this situation. Here are the plans for the funeral:

Saturday, 2 P. M.—Private funeral at the Gaynor home, 20 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn.
Four P. M., transfer of the body from home to rotunda at City Hall, under police escort.
Sunday, 8 A. M. to sunset.—Public review of the body in the City Hall.
Memorial services in churches.
Monday, 9 A. M.—Special services in the public schools.

11 A. M.—Services in Trinity.
11 A. M.—Overflow services in St. Paul's Parish.

The only officials who have been invited to the private funeral services at the Gaynor home at 2 o'clock this afternoon are Mayor Kline, Dock Commissioner Smith, Secretary Adamson, and Lieut. William Kennel, the late Mayor's bodyguard and friend. Mrs. Gaynor requested that Lieut. Kennel should be present. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Frank W. Page, for many years the pastor and close friend of the family.

Mayor's Flag to Drape Coffin.

At 4 o'clock a squadron of mounted patrolmen will escort the body to the City Hall in Manhattan. The American flag, which was put over the coffin when it was taken to the Lusitania in Liverpool will be replaced by the official Mayor's flag of the city. This flag is of white silk. The field contains 13 red stars, and the city's coat of arms in blue. Underneath is the word "Mayor" in large letters. This flag will drape the bronze coffin as long as the body lies in state.

The rotunda in the City Hall has been draped to receive the body. The two winding marble staircases in the rotunda are outlined in black. The big dome overhead is draped with ten large and ten smaller mourning streamers. Suspended in the dome will be a crystal candelabra. An oil painting of the Mayor will be hung on the marble wall between the two staircases. Persons who wish to see the body must assemble in front of the City Hall on Sunday morning. They will pass out on the north side of the building. The public will be admitted to the rotunda from 8 o'clock to-morrow morning until sunset.

On Monday, the day of the funeral, a serious blockade of traffic is anticipated. The trouble will grow out of the fact that the distance between City Hall and Trinity Church, at Broadway and Wall Street, is only fourteen blocks. Police Commissioner Waldo estimated yesterday that 20,000 persons would desire to march in the funeral procession. The narrow side streets in which the marchers must disband will add to the difficulty of handling the crowd.

The 860 seats in Trinity have all been disposed of to close friends of the Mayor and official representatives at the funeral. To offset the jam which would result if the funeral procession stopped at Trinity, Commissioner Waldo has planned to continue it down Broadway to the Battery as soon as the church is filled. The broad plaza and big park at the Battery, it is estimated, will suffice to hold the uniformed and civilian marchers until the short services are over. It is planned to retrace the steps after the services and allow the marchers to continue to Brooklyn and disband at Borough Hall. Only these specially invited are to continue to Greenwood.

Route of Procession to the Grave.

The route to the cemetery will be from Trinity Church in Broadway to Park Row, over the Brooklyn Bridge to Clinton Street, to Montague Street, to Court Street, to Schermerhorn Street, to Flatbush Avenue, to Eighth Avenue, to Prospect Avenue, to Fourth Avenue, to Twenty-fifth Street and Greenwood Cemetery.

Some of those who have been disappointed in obtaining seats in Trinity will be accommodated at St. Paul's near Trinity, where the Rev. William Montague Geer, Vicar of the chapel, will conduct a memorial service. The choir of St. Paul's will sing. No seats will be reserved.

Among many applications for seats in Trinity one was received yesterday from the Push Cart Peddlers' Association, which Mayor Gaynor befriended. Secretary Adamson sent the association five seats. There will be 400 peddlers in the funeral procession. The Washington Irving High School pupils asked permission for twenty-four girls from the school to put a wreath on the Mayor's coffin while the body lay in state. This was granted.

At Mrs. Gaynor's request, the English flag will be represented among the emblems in Trinity Church in appreciation of the extraordinary honors paid to her husband by the Lord Mayor and Corporation of the City of Liverpool. A special design with the American and English flags intertwined has been ordered to fulfill this request, and the flags will have a place of honor on an easel near the chancel. Mrs. Gaynor asked also that the British Consul and his deputy should have seats in the family pew at the Trinity service. Capt. J. T. W. Charles of the Lusitania has been invited also to sit in the Gaynor pew.

The invitations for the Trinity service were not sent out from the Mayor's office until yesterday afternoon. Col. Roosevelt, when asked earlier in the day whether he would attend, said that he had not been invited. The list of those invited included Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Adamson said. When all but twenty-five of the tickets had been sent out a telegraphic request came from Speaker Smith of the Assembly for sixteen seats for the Assembly's committee. These were sent forthwith.

All the departments of the Federal and State military forces will be represented at the funeral. Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commanding the Department of the East, and two aids will represent the army. The navy will be represented by Capt. Albert Gleaves, commanding the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Rear Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow, commanding the Atlantic fleet, will be present with two officers of his staff. Dudley Field Malone, Third Assistant Secretary of State, will attend the funeral on behalf of the State Department, and Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan and an aid will represent the National Guard of New York State.

Police Commissioner Waldo requests that all civic organizations which are to participate in Monday's funeral procession send their representatives to Room 211 at Police Headquarters at 11 o'clock this morning for final instructions.

A report that the body of Mr. Gaynor was lying in state in the rotunda of City Hall was heard in City Hall Park late yesterday afternoon. It spread among the thousands who pass through the park to go to the Subway and bridge. There was a rush through the big doors overlooking the park on the south. Hundreds of persons pushed into the corridors before the police could stop them. The workmen who were decorating the interior of the building had to help the police drive out the mob. The big doors were closed to prevent further trouble.

ARRIVAL OF THE BODY.

Mrs. Gaynor's Desire for Simplicity Observed Strictly.

In a drizzling rain and a light fog, the body of William J. Gaynor was lowered from the Cunard liner Lusitania off Quarantine at 4:55 o'clock yesterday morning. Two hours later the coffin was brought to Pier A, at the Battery. At 8 o'clock in accordance with the arangements made by the Funeral Committee and approved by Mrs. Gaynor, the body was put on a bier in the Gaynor home at 20 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn. The removal of the body from the liner at Quarantine was without precedent, it was said.

Simplicity marked every step in the transfer of the coffin to the Gaynor home, as Mrs. Gaynor had requested that there should be no ostentation. A police guard of picked men was the only feature of the cortege to distinguish it from the ordinary funeral procession. Only the members of the Committee on Arrangemnts, who stayed in session until a late hour at the Waldorf-Astoria on Thursday, knew the exact plans for the removal of the body from the Lusitania. It had been announced unofficially that the body would be brought to a pier in Brooklyn.

With Commissioner of Correction Patrick C. Whitney and Deputy Commissioner William J. Wright in charge, the Department of Correction's boat Correction departed from the foot of East Twenty-sixth Street at midnight on Thursday. Police Lieut. William Kennel, the late Mayor's personal bodyguard, and a picked body of patrolmen and firemen were also aboard. The Correction waited at the foot of West Thirty-fifth Street for the adjournment of the committee at the Waldorf. Among those who went aboard the Correction from the Waldorf were Robert Adamson, the Mayor's secretary; Bridge Commissioner Arthur J. O'Keeffe, Health Commissioner Ernest J. Lederle, Congressman Herman A. Metz, Controller William A. Prendergast, and Harry Vingut and W. Seward Webb, the sons-in-law of Mayor Gaynor. The Correction steamed down the bay toward Quarantine at 9:15 o'clock in the morning.

A police patrol boat departed from Pier A a little later carrying Mayor Kline, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, Chairman of the Committee on Funeral Arrangements; Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, and Water Commissioner Henry S. Thompson. The tug Manhattan was provided by Commissioner Smith for the newspaper reporters, and this followed the other boats to Quarantine. The drizzle, it was said, made the day not unlike the one on which Mayor Gaynor's body was taken to Liverpool from the Baltic. The fog hung low, and even large vessels were indistinguishable until they loomed up a few ship's lengths distant.

Passengers Astir on the Lusitania.

The Lusitania was sighted from the Manhattan at 4:15 o'clock in the morning. The big liner had arrived off Quarantine at 1:12 o'clock. Her hull was outlined by the electric lights in her cabins and two of her decks were lighted. The steerage was dark, but many passengers could be seen on the decks of the first and second cabins. Some of these onlookers were women.

The Correction approached the Lusitania on the starboard side, and her Captain was directed by the Captain of the Lusitania to steam around the stern to the port side. On the port side on Deck "C" many sailors could be seen tugging at a cable. A coffin wrapped in the American flag was soon brought to the deck. A cable was then run through one of the Lusitania's davits and was wrapped many times around the coffin. As the Correction drew near a steam-winch lifted the coffin from the deck many times as if to test the security of the cable.

The Correction had been alongside the Lusitania for some minutes when some one called through a megaphone to the newspaper tug Manhattan asking if Commissioner Smith or Commissioner Waldo was on the newspaper boat. The tug had been mistaken seemingly for the police boat, and as the Captain of the Lusitania would not release the body of Mayor Gaynor to any one on the Correction to the ship without the authority of the State Health officer, the officials on the Correction were in a quandary. The Correction backed away from the liner, but as she did so the police boat came in sight, and she had among her passengers Dr. Matthews of Health Officer Thomas O'Connell's staff. The Correction drew alongside the Lusitania again and the police boat tied up to the Correction.

Dr. Matthews was the first person to go aboard the Lusitania, thus carrying out to the letter the ironclad rule governing the admission of persons to incoming ships. The Commissioners and police guard followed. The coffin containing Mayor Gaynor's body was lowered to the fore deck of the Correction without further delay. The steel outer case weighed 1,150 pounds. Within it was the oak coffin which contained the body. Rufus Gaynor, son of the Mayor, and the trained nurse who accompanied the Mayor on his trip, did not witness the lowering of the coffin. Mr. Adamson met them in the ship's saloon and accompanied them to the Correction by a companion ladder lowered from another part of the ship. On the way to Manhattan undertakers transferred Mayor Gaynor's body from the oak coffin to one made of bronze. It is in this coffin that the Mayor's body will lie in state upon a catafalque in the City Hall. This coffin weighs 600 pounds. The trip to the Battery was made slowly, as there was much time to spare before the hour arrived for taking the body to the Gaynor home. It was still dark when the Battery was sighted, and for nearly an hour the Correction drifted off the Battery wall. When the first light of day was seen in the east the Correction's flag was run up at half mast. The police boat which followed in the Correction's wake and the Manhattan also displayed flags at half mast.

Heads Bared as Hearse Passed.

It was 6:45 o'clock when the Correction rounded the curve at the Battery. Police Inspector Thomas F. Myers, when he saw her, ordered Sergt. John W. O'Keefe, bugler of Traffic Squad A, to sound "Attention!" Eighty-five mounted men, the pick of the department, lined up along the curb in front of Pier A in military formation. The notes of the bugle brought longshoremen and the inmates of near-by lodging houses to the pier. It took but a few minutes to bring the coffin ashore, and at 6:55 o'clock the cortège departed from the pier. When it had advanced half the length of the pier, a gray-haired laborer who had been at work there dropped his broom and took off his cracked green derby hat. He did not move while the procession passed.

The old laborer's example was taken up along the line. Longshoremen held their caps to their chests, and there was not a sound along the curb except the clatter of horses' hoofs and the chugging of a few automobiles which had been provided for the funeral escort. One of the men on the curb leaned forward and broke through the line when the auto hearse was directly opposite him. He was not unruly, but seemed anxious to see the coffin. He said that he was Duncan Buchanan, 81 years old, of Hempstead, L. I. He had come all the way to town to see the arrival of the body, he said.

"I am a much older man than His Honor was," he said, mournfully, "but he was a great friend of mine; a great friend. That may sound strange, as I never spoke to him in my life. But I heard him talk many times. There goes a good man, a good man. I am sorry to lose him."

Directly behind the hearse on the way down the pier came Rufus Gaynor, accompanied by Commissioner Smith and Mr. Adamson. He wore the same tweed Summer suit that he wore when he sailed with his father on the Baltic. He was overcome by grief, and showed clearly the effects of the long strain to which he had been subjected. Behind him walked Miss Gaynor, the nurse, who is not a member of the Mayor's family. The others who had been aboard the Correction and the police boat followed.

When the hearse got to the street the detachment of mounted policemen formed half in front of it and the other half behind. Those from the Correction and the police boat entered the automobiles which had been in waiting and these autos in single line followed the police. The route through Manhattan was up Broadway to Park Row and to the Brooklyn Bridge.

Few Astir in Broadway.

Not more than 500 persons, it was estimated, saw the hearse on the way to the bridge. There was little street traffic at that early hour, and the progress of the procession was not interrupted. At the Brooklyn Bridge a crowd of a hundred persons stood with bared heads while the hearse turned into the roadway. There were flags at half mast on both the Manhattan and Brooklyn towers of the bridge, and down below in the East River the Correction, on its return to the Department of Correction's pier, passed with flag at half mast.

A detour was made in Brooklyn to avoid all streets where the early morning rush to the trolley cars and Subway is heavy. The route from the bridge plaza lay up Liberty Street, across Fulton into Clinton Street, north in Schermerhorn Street to Flatbush Avenue, and up Flatbush Avenue to Eighth Avenue. The Gaynor home is less than a block from Flatbush Avenue.

Many flags at half mast were seen in Brooklyn, and as the time advanced more and more persons appeared in the streets. Everywhere great respect was shown to the Mayor's memory. Children as well as older persons were out when the procession arrived at Flatbush Avenue. The word spread, and when the hearse turned into Eighth Avenue a crowd had collected on the corner.

Three little boys broke through the police lines and came directly in front of the Mayor's home at 20 Eighth Avenue before they were stopped by Sergt. McDonald of the Bergen Street station. The sergeant was about to send them away when his superior, Capt. Bernard J. Hayes, came forward.

"Let them stay where they are," he directed. "I think if the Mayor were alive he would want those boys right in front of his house. I know he wouldn't chase them away."

The mounted escort lined up in Eighth Avenue, between Flatbush Avenue and Lincoln Place, and filled the block. The horses faced toward the Gaynor home. When the hearse stopped in front of the brownstone steps leading to the house five patrolmen and five firemen, under command of Lieut. Kennel, stepped up, and, with heads bared, lifted the coffin to their shoulders. The coffin, still draped in an American flag, bore many wreathes of flowers. The patrolmen and firemen, all powerful men, carried the coffin without difficulty.

Rufus Gaynor and the two sons-in-law of the Mayor followed the coffin. Miss Gaynor, the trained nurse, followed them, and most of the members of the Committee on Arrangements entered the house also. They stayed only long enough to see the coffin put on the bier in the drawing room. Then they departed. The members of Mr. Gaynor's family stayed in seclusion in the upper part of the house while the body was being carried to the bier.

Four patrolmen were put on guard directly in front of the Gaynor home. Two more were stationed at Lincoln Place and two more at St. John's Place. Persons on foot were allowed to walk by the house, but the street was closed to other traffic. These men were picked to carry Mayor Gaynor's coffin: Patrolmen Frederick P. Lanfers, Charles Egan, James Collins, Adolph Brune, and John Wagner, Firemen Andrew Ott, Gustave Kettler, Jeremiah Murray, Fred. J. Murphy, and Frederick Schultz. The same men will carry the coffin at the funeral service on Monday.

From persons on the Lusitania it was learned that on Wednesday night, the last night at sea, the passengers in the first cabin had the usual entertainment for charity. After the concert Walter W. Price of this city made an address, in which he extolled the late Mayor's virtues. A resolution was read by Capt. Philip Lydig, also a passenger, in which sympathy for the Gaynor family and for the city were expressed. The dance that usually follows the concert was abandoned, out of respect for the dead.

MANY EXPRESS SYMPATHY.

Condolences Sent to Mayor Kline and Members of Gaynor Family.

Many expressions of sympathy over the death of Mayor Gaynor have been received at the office of Mayor Kline and at the Gaynor home in Brooklyn.

"I have just returned from Northern Michigan, where I was when Mayor Gaynor died," said Brand Whitlock, Mayor of Toledo, Ohio, in a telegram received by Mayor Kline yesterday. "I send to-day in your care a wreath for his bier with all my sympathy."

Seven men who were passengers with the late Mayor on the Baltic sent joint condolences. They were Capt. James Leyland, Judge G. T. Cann, E. McCormick, W. Hetherington Taylor, W. W. Osborne, E. Hughes, and James R. Hall.

"We feel that this country has sustained a distinct loss, this city a Mayor who unswervingly strove to do right, and his family a head of whom they could be justly proud," was part of the resolution which was signed by the passengers.

At a meeting of the First Rumanian-American Congregation, at 89 Rivington Street, these sentiments were adopted:

We shall ever remember the occasion in December, 1910, when, as a guest of this congregation, in a most eloquent and logical address, he laid bare his great heart and showed that he fully understood and did justice to the Jew.

Samuel H. Trigger, President of the Motion-Picture Exhibitors' Association of New York, which controls 950 theatres and halls in the city, announced yesterday that all of these places would close for two hours on Monday in memory of the late Mayor.

The American Museum of Natural History, of which Mayor Gaynor was an ex officio trustee, will be closed to the public until 1 o'clock in the afternoon out of respect to Mr. Gaynor on the day of his funeral. The Produce Exchange will close until noon on Monday.

At Grace Methodist Church, in West 104th Street, near Columbus Avenue, the Rev. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the church, will conduct a memorial service to-morrow evening. The speakers will include Collector of the Port Mitchel, Borough President McAneny, and Robert Adamson, secretary to Mayor Gaynor. The Rev. Mr. Reisner will read extracts from personal letters he received from Mr. Gaynor.

Selecting a building contractor solely because he happens to submit a low estimate is as hazardous as selecting a wife solely because she has blond hair and blue eyes.

Neither a low estimate nor blond hair and blue eyes are to be despised, but at best they are but relative terms.

A woman's disposition is more important than her beauty, and a Contractor's ability to give economical results in the final analysis is far more important than the meaningless promise in an optimistic first bid.

NO FRENCH WELCOME TO MRS. PANKHURST

Paris Amazed at Mrs. Belmont's Remark That She Was Received with Open Arms.

KNOWN TO FEW THERE

Came to French Capital Secretly and Kept Out of Limelight—Sailing Plans Unchanged.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Cablegrams received here reporting Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont as saying on the arrival of the Imperator at New York that "Paris received Mrs. Pankhurst with open arms" have amazed the French capital.

As a matter of fact, only half a dozen people know the English suffragette leader here, and they are all newspaper correspondents watching her movements.

Since her arrival in France on Aug. 16, Mrs. Pankhurst has spent most of her time at a quiet hotel in Deauville recuperating her broken health. Nothing like a reception in her honor took place, if only because the state of her health did not admit of it. From there she came to Paris secretly a week or so ago, staying with her daughter Christabel at a small hotel near the Place de la Madeleine, whose chief recommendation from her viewpoint is that it keeps her out of the limelight.

A number of Parisian and American social leaders whom THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent saw today, professed absolute ignorance of Mrs. Pankhurst's whereabouts, and were certain that no sort of honors were paid to her in Paris. They characterized Mrs. Belmont's extraordinary statement as an attempt to influence the immigration authorities at New York to admit the English woman to the United States without trouble. It is the exact opposite of the truth, they assert, to say, as Mrs. Belmont is reported, that "an enlightened land like France welcomed her," and that "we would be the laughing-stock of Continental Europe if we excluded her."

French feminists have always condemned the militant methods of which the Pankhursts are the chief advocates, and people generally in France at least do not take her seriously. If Mrs. Pankhurst's name was mentioned in the press it was either critically or in connection with a humorous review or cartoons.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent called on the Pankhursts to-day and saw Christabel Pankhurst, who said her mother, though recovered in health, did not wish to be interviewed. She merely repeated what was said at the outset—that nothing the New York authorities are said to threaten will interfere with her mother's plans.

Mrs. Pankhurst sails on La Provence on Oct. 9. After her American tour she will return direct to England, where she will go on another lecture tour. She does not think the English police will rearrest her. Christabel, who will continue to reside in Paris, has taken a new flat.

LANSBURY TO LECTURE HERE.

Coming as Pankhurst Aid—Christobel's Articles Stir Suffragettes.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—George Lansbury, ex M. P., now out of jail under the "Cat and Mouse act," intends to visit America in November to lecture on syndicatism and also to aid Mrs. Pankhurst's suffrage campaign.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns that there is much dissension in the ranks of the Women's Social and Political Union over a series of articles appearing in The Suffragette by Christabel Pankhurst, in which she seeks to bring the fight into British home circles. Her articles state in the plainest language facts not usually found outside medical works. It is even hinted that the Government may take action seeking to suppress the publication.

Suffragettes, while attempting to defend Christabel, declaring that the subject needs the attention which militants apparently dare give it, admit that many wealthy supporters hint at the withdrawal of their support on account of their belief that the young woman's articles are transgressing proper bounds.

NECKLACE THEFT HEARING.

Finder of Stolen Jewels Saw Man and Woman Near the Spot.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—August Horne, who found the pearl necklace that was stolen in transit to its owner, Max Meyer, was in the Bow Street Court to-day at the hearing of the four prisoners, and briefly recounted the circumstances under which he made the discovery. He saw a man and woman entering an omnibus as he picked up the pearls, but did not connect them in any way with the pearls until questioned by the police, to whom he gave a description of them.

Mr. Quadratstein, describing how he came to play the part of an amateur detective, said when he interviewed the prisoners in the First Avenue hotel he and his cousin, Brandstatter, went with loaded revolvers in their pockets. Quadratstein added that he was sorry now he didn't attempt to hold up the men who produced the necklace, but explained that at the time he was thinking of the reward and not of the capture of the offenders.

LONDON LAUDS OUIMET.

Find His Golf "Amazing," but Still Believe an Englishman Will Win.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 20.—The struggle for the American open golf championship was followed here with keenest interest. Special correspondents of British papers cabled columns daily of the play.

While recognizing that the English competitors had to meet formidable opponents, there is firm confidence here that either Vardon or Ray will finish at the top. The amazing performance of Ouimet has not shaken that confidence, but if the American wins to-day, then Englishmen will certainly applaud the victory as heartily as though it had gone to one of their fellow-countrymen.

Ouimet's performance is the subject of much praise. The Daily Chronicle says the unusual finish is the first in the annals of golf. The Daily Mail describes the final round as a superb feat. The Times correspondent at Brookline says whoever wins there is only one hero of the championship, and that is Ouimet.

LONDON OMNIBUS STRIKE IS HALTED

But the Danger of a Complete Tie-Up of British Railways Is Still Serious.

LEADERS ARE INSISTENT

Strike Spreads to Sheffield and Other Industrial Centres—Manchester Paralyzed.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The strike situation in London was improved to-night. The busmen who had not already gone out agreed to a truce, pending arbitration of their demands on the employers by the Board of Trade. Meanwhile, however, the motormen and conductors of the Tilling Omnibus Company will remain idle.

Two of the motor bus companies, which have agreed to recognize the men's unions, will continue to operate their vehicles, even if arbitration fails.

The danger of a railway strike is not yet over. The Liverpool strikers have accepted the offer of the managers to reinstate men who are willing to handle traffic which, under the law, the companies must accept, but they made their acceptance conditional upon the acquiescence of the men in Birmingham and other strike centres to the plan.

The Birmingham labor leaders are still attempting to force a general strike. They met the committee of the national union to-day and the result of the decisions reached will be announced to-morrow. The door has been opened for a recession by the strikers through the announcement that goods, which the strikers had refused to handle, were both union made and handled in Dublin.

The strike has extended to Sheffield, Crewe, Derby, and other places.

Dublin was quiet to-night, but the number of strikers there has increased. The police adopted unusual measures to-night to handle the daily parade of strikers, which the strike leaders had planned for to-night instead of to-day.

A heavy rainstorm, however, caused the strikers to seek cover, thus breaking up the parade.

At Manchester the trade of the port is paralyzed. Five thousand dockmen are now on strike and the port is closed to business.

HAILS BRITISH PRIZE.

Standard Regards the Colombian Concession as Trade Triumph.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 20.—The Standard to-day hails as a new triumph for British trade the concession which Lord Murray, acting on behalf of Lord Cowdray's firm, Messrs. Pearson & Son, obtained from Colombia. The concession, according to The Standard, practically amounts to exploiting virgin territory in Colombia. It is for a term of forty years, and includes building railways, docks, quays, and canals; laying down telegraph and telephone systems, and all work in connection with the exploitation of oil deposits, and entailing the expenditure of huge sums of money.

"It is well known," says The Standard, "that representatives of American and European firms have been in South America for some time, trying to gain the concession which Lord Murray secured."

NEW HUMPERDINCK OPERA.

War Scenes to be Conspicuous in "The Market Woman."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Prof. Engelbert Humperdinck's new opera, which is nearly completed, will be called "The Market Woman." It deals with episodes of the Prussian war of liberation of 1813. The characters include Field Marshals Blücher and Gneisenau.

The dramatic features, for which Robert Misch is responsible, have a strong military background, including scenes of the battle of Leipzig.

The three principal singing rôles are soprano, tenor, and basso profundo.

PRINCESS TO BE CREMATED.

Sophia Will Be First Royal Woman to be Incinerated.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Further details of the suicide of Princess Sophia of Saxe-Weimar are very fragmentary in character. The family still adheres to the story about "disease of the heart," notwithstanding denials from semi-official agencies.

Princess Sophia's body will be cremated in Heidelberg and the ashes will be sent to Weimar, where they will be kept in the family vault. The Princess is said to be the only woman among royalty whose body is thus disposed of. A relative of hers was the first man of royal blood to be incinerated.

It was to try the effect of a change of scene that the Princess's father suggested the trip to the Tyrol. It appears that for weeks Princess Sophia had been in a state of deep melancholy.

Herr von Bleichroeder arrived in Heidelberg to-day to be present at the funeral service.

The Princess was most popular in Heidelberg. Not only was she an excellent musician, playing several instruments, but she also was a thorough sportswoman, enthusiastic in following the hounds, and an excellent shot. She was especially fond of Winter sports.

Among aristocratic students the Princess was admired greatly. She often was asked to preside at their convivial gatherings.

Princess Sophia's home life was not happy. Her elder brother's affairs, among other things, weighed heavily on her spirits. Her father also invariably was in financial straits, and was supported mainly by gifts from relatives in Weimar.

TARIFF DEADLOCK FEARED NEXT WEEK

Conferees Adjust Several Vexed Questions, but Others Will Delay Returning Bill.

NO FREE-ART RESTRICTION

House Demand Prevails—Duty Off Ferro-Manganese — Senate Not Cutting Revenue, Says Simmons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Though the Tariff Conference Committee to-day settled a number of vexed qustions, there are still half a dozen disputed points remaining over which the House and Senate managers are practically deadlocked. The most that the conferees now hope is to finish all the dutiable schedules and the free list by to-morrow night, leaving the income tax section and the administrative clauses to be taken up next week. This makes a report on Monday impossible, and both Houses will probably then adjourn until Wednesday. Both sides are appealing to President Wilson over the disputed points.

The long dispute over ferro-manganese was settled, the House receding from its impost of 15 pr cent., and accepting the Senate amendment putting the metal on the free list. The House provision was drafted for the sake of revenue, but the Senate managers insisted that the article was controlled by the Steel Trust and a free market was necessary to competition.

A compromise was effected on angora goat hair and its manufactures. The Senate partially receded from its free list amendment, and a rate was fixed at something over 10 per cent. ad valorem. The House rate was 20 per cent. The duties on mohair, it is understood, were fixed somewhat lower than the House rates of 40 per cent.

While the conference has decided against the publication of exact figures as to agreed items, it is known that undressed furs will go in the free list, as in the Senate amendment.

The House managers won a complete victory in inducing the Senate conferees to accept their provisions for free art without the restrictions the Senate would impose. The Senate amendment limited this provision to paintings, sculptures, and the like twenty years old or over, and so defined sculpture and provided that bronze statues produced in the modern way, with casting done at a foundry, would not be entitled to free entry. The House managers were authorized to rewrite the whole provision.

The House provision of 15 per cent. on chamois skin and 10 per cent. on pianoforte and glove leathers was accepted, with the addition of the Senate provision for a 10 per cent. levy on enameled upholstery leather. The Senate amendments to the aluminium paragraph were accepted, levying a duty of 2 cents a pound on aluminium, aluminium scrap, &c., in crude forms, and 3½ cents a pound on aluminium in plates, bars, strips, or rods. The House rate had been a flat 25 per cent.

The conferees decided to free list pig iron and other cheap grades of iron, cutting down the House rates on many forms of manufactured iron.

The Senate gave way in its demand for specific rates in the silk schedule, levying a definite duty on each pound of imported silk products. The ad valorem plan proposed by the House was adopted with slight reductions on certain articles.

Chairman Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee said this afternoon that it was a mistake to assume that the Senate amendments did not provide sufficient revenue. The House managers have feared that a heavy deficit would occur, but Mr. Simmons said the amendments as they now stand would provide in normal years a surplus of $16,000,000. For the current year, he said, the receipts would be sufficient.

Twenty-seven employes in the glove shops at Gloversville, N. Y., laid siege to the tariff conference room to plead with Representative Underwood and Senator Simmons for the retention of the Senate duty on gloves. Neither would receive them.

MORE ANTI-TRUST WORKERS

McReynolds to Expedite Inquiries by Using Federal District Attorneys

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Attorney General McReynolds is making a vigorous effort to expedite pending anti-trust investigations and to keep abreast with current complaints of violations of the Sherman law.

As a step in that direction the Attorney General has decided to use the services of the Federal attorneys throughout the country to the fullest extent possible instead of confining anti-trust inquiries largely to the few special assistants in the Department of Justice. The plan is to reinforce the staff of special anti-trust lawyers in the department with the services of the Federal attorneys. As new charges of monopoly and restraint of trade are received they will be referred in many instances to nearby Federal attorneys. In that way it is expected the anti-trust work, which is growing fast, will be well distributed and the crowded condition at Washington relieved.

It was pointed out to-day that a great task confronted the Attorney General and G. Carroll Todd, his assistant in charge of anti-trust work. Many cases are pending in the courts, including those filed in the closing days of the Taft Administration, and these must be prepared for trial. In addition, important investigations have been begun and scarcely a day passes that the department does not hear of some new combination.

Besides the investigation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, that of the American Smelting and Refining Company is being expedited.

WILL RUSH MACHINE GUNS.

War Department to Issue Them to Militia Without Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Lieut. Col. Harry C. Hale, U. S. A., Chief of the Militia Division of the War Department, has decided to expedite the issue of machine guns to State troops. The use of these guns by militia has not been encouraged because of defects in the design. These have been overcome. It is believed the new model practically is perfect, and certainly is a powerful weapon against rioters.

The general staff of the army has decided it is unnecessary to organize special machine gun companies, which would necessitate a thirteenth company organization in each regiment, but a machine gun platoon is to be made up of skilled men detached from each company in a regiment. The War Department has decided not to issue these machine guns to the National Guard until regimental organizations conform to those of the regular army, with a full complement of men and officers, and proper housing is provided for the guns.

Wherever machine guns are asked for the War Department will send specially qualified officers to make an inspection and train the gunners. Where there is special interest in machine gun work the Secretary of War will permit the organization of a special or thirteenth company attached to a regiment of militia. This will provide an incentive among men who are qualified to act as officers.

Army officers commended to-day the idea of machine gun protection for the Wall Street district in the exigencies of a great fire or natural catastrophe followed by riot. A single machine gun of the latest improved type planted on the sidewalk in front of Trinity Church, it was said, would command a mob from three lines of approach, and rake Wall Street from end to end, making impossible anything like a raid on offices or bank vaults. By several it was said one machine gun would be of far greater advantage to Wall Street in such a situation than the desired regiment of infantry to be stationed on Governors Island.

CANAL OPEN AT BOTH ENDS.

Suction Dredges Are Now Making Atlantic Entrance Navigable.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—With the opening of the Panama Canal from the Miraflores Locks to the Pacific Ocean, communication also is being established on the Atlantic side between the great Gatun Locks and the sea. This has followed the removal of the railroad trestle between the locks and the ocean. To make the opening navigable about 187,000 yards of earth in the railroad dike must be removed and two pipe-line suction dredges are engaged in the work which should be completed by Oct. 1.

When the work is completed there will remain only one obstruction to free communication in the whole length of the canal—the dike at Gamboa, which restrains the waters of Gatun Lake from flowing into Culebra Cut. A big suction dredge now is removing the earth and silt that has accumulated in the bed of the canal between this dike and Gamboa Lake since the cut was made three years ago, and early in October another, and the last, tremendous blast will destroy the dike itself, leaving a clear waterway across the Isthmus.

DANIELS WANTS BROUGHAM.

Must Be Second-Hand, Secretary Advertises, and Presumably Cheap.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Secretary Daniels, of the Navy, is in the market for a brougham, second-hand and cheap, and Navy Department employes expect to see soon a fleet of dilapidated land-cruising craft of that description moored outside the Secretary's office. Mr. Daniels advertised in a local paper for the brougham this morning. He believes in carrying out the Democratic policy of economy, therefore, his advertisement reads:

Proposals will be received and opened at the office of the Chief Clerk of the Navy Department at 10 o'clock A. M., Tuesday, Sept. 23, for furnishing a second-hand, light, extension-front brougham, or a light, roomy, straight-front brougham, either to have dark green interior trimmings. Bids should contain a description of the vehicle and state when and where same may be seen.

The advertisement, as a guaranty of good faith, is signed "Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy." The Secretary is said to have scoffed at advice to purchase an automobile—something equipped with turbine engines, armor-plated and having torpedo tubes. Although ruler of the navy, Mr. Daniels still confesses his love for the horse.

MOOSE WILL LIVE, IS GROSSCUP'S VIEW

Party Had Too Much Sail and Too Little Ballast, Says Ex-Judge.

HE MAKES A PROPHECY

Expects That a Successful Organization Eventually Will Be Built on Progressive Principles.

Ex-Judge Peter S. Grosscup of Chicago, who, while on the Federal Bench, made several decisions which attracted a great deal of public attention, and last Fall forgot a long difference with ex-President Roosevelt and became an enthusiastic Progressive, arrived at the Waldorf yesterday with an optimistic view of the general situation in this country. Judge Grosscup thinks the country will not go to the dogs in trying to adjust itself to the new tariff when the bill becomes a law, as several Republicans of prominence have been heard to remark in the Waldorf lobby of late.

"I think business conditions are all right," said Judge Grosscup. "I look for some amendment of the Currency bill in the Senate, so as to make it more practicable for the banking interests, but with such amendments and the currency matter out of the way I don't see why the country cannot get along well under the new tariff, and it is my opinion that it will.

"Do I believe the income tax will work out? Well it has always worked out in England. I think after we get accustomed to it, we won't mind it very much. The trouble will be to get used to it. They say that it is a mighty hard thing to persuade a man to buy his first automobile; but after he has purchased his first machine it is very easy to sell him the second car. It will be hard to pay the first income tax, but after that it will become natural, and nobody will mind it. It is a light tax, after all, and you won't have to pay on the first $3,000 of your income."

Judge Grosscup's attention was called to some letters which have been appearing in the newspapers of late with reference to the present and future of the Progressive Party. He was asked whether he thought the party was going out of business.

"The economic principles on which the Progressive Party was founded are not going to smash," he replied. "The mere hysterical fringe that surrounded the party at the start will disappear. The difficulty was that there was not enough ballast and too much sail to the craft at the start; but such ballast as there was was all right, and it still exists.

"At some time or other, either the Progressive Party or a reunited Republican and Progressive Party, as opposed to the Wilson Administration, is bound to build a successful political organization on the economic principles the Progressive platform announced."

"Do you think the agitation for votes for women and the greater latitude women take is in some measure responsible for what is claimed to be an era of looser morals?" he was asked.

"I don't think morals are looser than in the past," Judge Grosscup replied, "quite the contrary. I think there is much more freedom of speech and less restraint. There was a time when certain subjects could not be mentioned in polite society. Morals then were much looser than they are now. Freedom acts on morals like spring water on sewage. It tends to purify morals rather than to stimulate immorality."

EXTEND COLUMBUS DAY.

Boston Moves to Make It a Pan-American Holiday.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—A movement to make Columbus Day a generally recognized Pan-American holiday, by joining the observance in this country with Discoverer's Day, already an event in several Latin-American countries, is to be launched here during Boston's Columbus Day celebration.

John Barrett, Director of the Pan-American Union, will be the principal speaker at a meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall, and it is expected that he will sound the call for general observance of Oct. 12 as a holiday by American countries.

CITY REALTY TOTAL GOES UP $150,000,000

Tax Department Gives Out Estimate of Assessment Increase on October Rolls.

$8,010,000,000 TOTAL VALUE

$15,000,000 Added to Municipality's Borrowing Capacity—Personal Assessment Remains $342,000,000.

The total valuation of New York City realty has been increased $150,000,000, according to estimates made public yesterday by the Tax Department. This will add $15,000,000 to the municipality's borrowing capacity. How far the tax-rate will be affected will not be determined until the Tax Commissioners make public the assessments on Oct. 1.

With the increase the real estate assessment total is $8,010,000,000, and in addition to this amount there is about $2,000,000,000 in realty owned by churches and other organizations that is exempt from taxation. The personal assessment remains at about $342,000,000. The jump in the realty total is mostly in Manhattan on the west side above Forty-second Street and is due to the completion of new apartment houses, loft and other buildings in time to go on the new rolls.

The increase was surprising to many because of the fact that a dull market had caused a drop in building activities. There has been a marked depreciation in property valuations during the year around Twenty-third Street and on the lower east side generally. The cut in values has also affected lower Broadway. The Tax Commissioners say in explanation of their failure to increase the personal assessments that while the value of personal property remains fixed, in the nature of things realty increases naturally from year to year.

The increase this year, according to the Commissioners, is a normal one, the high mark having been established in the Low administration in 1906, when the total was raised $1,400,000,000 over 1902. The next highest boost occurred during the Gaynor administration in 1911, when nearly $800,000,000 was added. The total value of real estate in this city now is equal approximately to the value of all real estate in all the other counties of the State.

Author of The Inner Shrine

[BASIL KING]

Advertisement

¶ This new novel, "The Way Home," touches greater depths of human nature than even "The Wild Olive" or "The Street Called Straight." It deals with the most important things of life, single life, married life, and church life, and portrays the inner motives of a self-centered man. It is the story of a struggle between the spiritual and the material in the average man—a series of tense, emotional situations in which a strong man who was far from being a hero found himself. He found, too, a tower of strength in the love of the woman he had misunderstood.

The Iron Trail
By Rex Beach

Of course you remember Kipling's "If" about the man who could keep his head in every emergency. Well, here he is, the hero, as Rex Beach has drawn him in his new Alaskan story. There were plenty of things to stand up against, too; other men's scheming, lack of funds, storms, glaciers, and misrepresentation. But he won his fight against Nature as he won the heart of an unusual heroine. The scene of their wild wooing on the bridge threatened by the flood is more dramatic than anything the author has ever written.

The Desired Woman
By Will N. Harben

In the pages of Mr. Harben's newest book one encounters life in Georgia of to-day in all its intensity. It is the Georgia of great mills and big enterprises, of heavy speculation and the sophistications of people in great cities, as well as of simple mountain folk and their homely ways. Its keynote is the inevitable triumph of love and tolerance, the far-spreading influence of good impulses.

The Golden Rule Dollivers
By Margaret Cameron

This story is pure fun. Two incorrigible optimists, when they became owners of a touring motor car, tried to share their pleasure with others. Their kindness led them into all kinds of predicaments. This novel has a laughter-compelling quality about it that is irresistible, and adds greatly to the reputation the author has made as an inventor of humorous situations.

The Argyle Case
By Arthur Hornblow

This is the novelization of one of the most successful plays, and is based upon the romantic experiences of the famous detective, William J. Burns, in bringing a certain band of criminals to justice by his unusual methods. The love story which runs through it is simple and delightful.

Explains in a simple, lucid manner the principles and mechanisms involved in human flight, and tells boys how to design and construct model aeroplanes, gliders, and man-carrying machines. Accurate, comprehensive, and up to date. Instead of mere theories, here are actual facts and results, the experiences of noted aviators and builders.

GRAND JURY FAILS TO INDICT THAW

Objects to Saddling Dutchess County with Trial Costs and Jerome's Expenses.

CHARGE MIGHT FREE HIM

Fugitive's Lawyers Divided in Fight Before the New Hampshire Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 19.—The Dutchess County Grand Jury has refused to indict Harry K. Thaw for conspiracy in connection with his escape from the Matteawan Hospital. The reason is that should Thaw be brought back and tried the county would be responsible for all the costs of prosecution, including the salary and expenses of William Travers Jerome, who was sent to Canada as Special Assistant Attorney General in the Thaw case.

This was the opinion expressed to-night by Justice Morschauser, and as far as could be learned it was the chief ground upon which the jurors based their refusal to indict Thaw. It is believed by the legal fraternity here that should Thaw be brought to trial on a conspiracy charge it would automatically declare him sane and thus defeat the purpose of extradition.

The Grand Jury also has been considering the case of Howard H. Barnum, the Matteawan gate keeper, who was accused of complicity in Thaw's escape, but no result has been announced.

Among the witnesses examined by the Grand Jury were Dr. Kieb, Superintendent of the Matteawan Hospital, and William Gordon, proprietor of the Holland House at Beacon, where the men who aided in Thaw's escape remained while the plot was being arranged.

SPLIT IN THAW CAMP.

His New Hampshire Counsel Anxious to Keep in the Spotlight.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 19.—There were persistent rumors of a split among Harry Thaw's lawyers to-day. One of the New Hampshire attorneys said that all the arguments against extradition would be made by members of the New Hampshire bar. Then he added:

"You need not be surprised if some of the New York lawyers withdraw from the proceedings before Tuesday."

When ex-Gov. William A. Stone was questioned about the reported split, he said:

"I have heard nothing about it."

"Are you in charge of Thaw's case?" he was asked.

"No, not a bit of it," he replied, "Thaw is directing how things shall be done. He is the Captain."

Thaw refused to discuss the matter.

Trouble has been brewing since the Federal writ was sued out before Judge Aldrich. This writ has been referred to as the best piece of generalship executed in Thaw's interest since his arrest in Colebrook, and some of the New Hampshire attorneys feel that they have not received their due share of credit for the move. Thaw had been told, it was said, that his case would be regarded in a much more kindly light by the residents of New Hampshire if he left it in the hands of New Hampshire lawyers.

In the direction of preventing an open breach the task of presenting the principal argument for Thaw at the hearing on Tuesday has been allotted to ex-Justice William Chase, for many years a member of the New Hampshire Court of Appeals.

Moses Grossman of New York said a few days ago that he expected to speak in Thaw's behalf.

The impression here to-day seemed to be that Gov. Felker would sign the extradition papers, thus transferring the case to the United States District Court. One closely associated with the Governor said to-day that he did not think Mr. Felker would hesitate long before granting the request of the New York State authorities, and that a decision might be reached Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning.

By granting extradition, this man said, the Governor would place the entire Thaw question upon the shoulders of the United States Government, thus permitting Thaw to fight it out in the courts. The fact that the Governor sits alone on matters of extradition is pointed out as another reason why he would not assume the burden of freeing Thaw in this State.

Gov. Felker has received thousands of letters and telegrams in regard to the Thaw case from all over the United States and Canada. Practically all of these messages have asked for the release of Thaw, but, strangely enough, few of them were from residents of New Hampshire. An active campaign to arouse sympathy for Thaw has been started in Pittsburgh. Printed forms which had been sent out from there, containing evidence in behalf of Thaw, reached Concord to-day.

The present plans are to hold the extradition hearing in the Senate chamber, which is somewhat larger than the Council chamber. It is probable that only the persons directly interested, the newspaper correspondents, and members of the bar will be admitted.

Thaw's mail was so heavy to-day that he retained another stenographer to help answer the letters.

SIFT PRECEDENTS FOR THAW.

Nationwide Inquiry Regarding Extradition of Insane Persons.

Harry Thaw's attorneys are making inquiries through official channels throughout the country to ascertain if there is any precedent for the action of the New York State authorities in asking the extradition of Thaw, an insane man, on a charge of crime.

Moses H. Grossman of the Thaw counsel said yesterday that all along it has been his contention that Thaw could not be extradited on a criminal charge, and that his inquiry, which was nearly completed, had convinced him that law and precedent were all against such extradition.

"Never, so far as I can find," said Mr. Grossman, "has there been an extradition of an insane man on a charge of crime. In fact, never before the Thaw case has there been an application for extradition in such circumstances. All authorities I have been able to reach agree on this."

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 19.—A telegram received by Gov. Pothier to-day from a New York law firm, of which Moses Grossman, attorney for Harry Thaw, is a member, asked if this State ever applied for or granted the extradition of any insane person charged with crime. The question was answered in the negative.

GERMAN PARTY DRENCHED.

Exchange Professor and Family in the Rain While Caretaker Slept.

The caretaker at the Deutsches Haus at Columbia is being made to bear the whole blame for the drenching that formed the reception at the University early Thursday morning of the new German exchange professor, Dr. Karl Rathgen, his wife and daughter, and Secretary Frank D. Fackenthal of the University. The story came out yesterday. The party had just come from the Imperator and sought lodging at the Deutsches Haus. In a heavy downpour of rain they pounded and knocked in vain, while the water trickled down their backs and thoroughly drenched them.

When Secretary Fackenthal started out as the official representative of the University to meet the German exchange professor, he had not deemed it necessary to warn the caretaker at the Deutsches Haus to keep awake if necessary the entire night, to be ready to let the party into the house which is to be their abode for the coming year. The Imperator was late in docking and it was midnight before the customs officers were ready to let the Rathgen family depart for their American home. With Secretary Fackenthal they took a taxicab to the Deutsches Haus and dismissing the taxi, ran for the door.

All that happened after that ring before the Rathgen family was safely housed in the Deutsches Haus is still more or less a mystery. Some say that after Secretary Fackenthal had generously raced about the campus, with no protection from the rain, trying somewhere to find a key to the Haus, he succeeded in arousing Provost William H. Carpenter, who lives next door to the Deutsches Haus, and that he took the dripping party in until repeated pounding on the dividing wall woke the caretaker and the Haus was thrown open. Others say that Secretary Fackenthal scaled the wall to the second story, where he was nearly shot by the caretaker, who just then woke up.

FEEDING HENS ON ONIONS.

At Least, That Is What George C. Boldt Says the Waldorf Does.

Col. W. R. Nelson of Kansas City ate some plain boiled eggs at the Waldorf yesterday, and soon afterward encountered George C. Boldt in the lobby.

"What's the secret of your eggs?" demanded the newspaper proprietor, according to a bystander. "They seem to have more taste to them than just plain hen product. What do you put in them?"

"We don't put anything in the eggs," replied the hotel proprietor. "But I'll tell you a secret. We feed the hens on onions."

Then both had a laugh, but a serious-minded person had overheard Mr. Boldt's answer, and a little later was discovered asking one of the assistant managers whether they kept the chickens on the roof that laid the eggs for the hotel and when and how often the onions were fed to them.

JAMES J. SHAW GUILTY.

Convicted of Trying to Steal Funds of Bronx Sewer Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 19.—A jury in the County Court here found James J. Shaw guilty to-day of attempted larceny of the funds of the Bronx Valley Sewer Commission, of which he was Secretary. Shaw was formerly President of the Board of Education of White Plains.

The specific charge on which he was tried was the use of a Bronx Valley Sewer Commission draft for $2,645 to pay off a mortgage on his home. His reputation had been so good before his indictment that for the first time in the history of the county a Justice of the Supreme Court bench, Joseph Morschauser of Poughkeepsie, testified as a character witness for Shaw.

Shaw was removed from his place as Secretary when his use of the $2,645 draft became known. His defense was that he had been so intoxicated in the early part of February that he did not know what he was doing.

Pile Morgan Will at Hartford.

HARTFORD, Sept. 19.—The will of J. Pierpont Morgan was offered for probate here to-day. The action was purely formal. Charles A. Goodwin and A. Toscan Bennett filed certified copies of the will.

"A novel that places Mr. Vance in the front rank of American writers."

Joan Thursday

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

"JOAN THURSDAY" is the soul-story of a clever young shop-girl, who, leaving home because of its unattractiveness, goes upon the stage, and finally achieves a great success in the legitimate drama. Written from a thorough knowledge of conditions of the theatre, this strong novel pictures stage life as it is.

"Joan Thursday" is an important contribution to American fiction—a story unlike anything Mr. Vance has hitherto written.

SPECULATORS AT CENTURY.

Vanish from Side Streets Before the Police Arrive.

Ticket speculators made their first appearance at the new Century Opera House before the performance last night. Several buyers of tickets were accosted in the side streets before the hour for the beginning of the opera arrived, and when the management learned of this a telephone call was sent to Police Headquarters with the request that detectives be sent to arrest the offenders. Police from the nearest police station arrived after a short time, but the speculators, who had learned of the move, had vanished.

At last night's performance there was one of the largest audiences the Century Theatre has held at any time during its career.

OUIMET TIES GREAT ENGLISH GOLFERS

Twenty-Year-Old Schoolboy's Wonderful Performance in National Open Golf.

THRILLING PLAY NEAR END

Youngster Seems Out of It Midway in Round, but He Ties Vardon and Ray at 304.

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 19.—An American youth, Francis Ouimet, a stripling scarcely out of his teens, carved a niche for himself in international sporting history here to-day when he tied with England's famous professional golfers, Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, in the final round of the national open championship. As the result of his wonderful exhibition of nerve and golfing skill, he will be America's sole representative in the 18-hole three-ball medal play-off of the tie which exists to-night between the trio, each of whom turned in a card of 304 for 72 holes contested during the last two days.

Ouimet's performance lifted the nineteenth annual open tournament of the United States Golf Association out of the usual classification accorded a national championship and brought the contest to a standard little short of such international competitions as the Davis Cup tennis matches, the America's Cup yacht races, and the polo contests. Of the half-dozen home-bred and transplanted professionals, not one could keep pace with the golfing of Ray and Vardon, and all hope of retaining the titular honors appeared lost until Ouimet was found making his lone stand mid rain and mud against two players old enough to be his father.

America's Lone Hope.

When the gallery realized that in this home-bred amateur, born and brought up on the edge of the Country Club course, rested America's chance of winning the championship, the tournament ceased to be a purely golf competition and developed into an international contest between the representatives of Uncle Sam and John Bull. The spectators lost that placid attitude and whisper that ordinarily marks the golf gallery and rooted and cheered Ouimet on in a manner that is typical at baseball and football games. The scenes that attended Ouimet's march over the last four holes have never been equalled on an American or European golf course.

Enthusiasm ran the gamut from despair to elation; silence was followed by outbursts of cheering that could be heard from one end of the course to the other. When Ouimet's second shot from the seventeenth tee landed dead on the edge of the home green, five thousand spectators massed themselves in a gigantic ring of breathless humanity about Ouimet, and his playing partner George Sargent. The American youth needed the hole in one to win and two to tie. He gazed long down into the bowl where the cup lay, dried his hands, and made a 35 foot putt that just missed the hole and rolled three feet beyond. A sigh arose from the crowd and all was still again. Ouimet looked once at that little stretch of sodden turf that lay between him and another chance for the title; gently tapped the ball and stepped back to watch its progress.

Slowly it rolled to the edge of the hole, curled around the lip for an inch or so and then droped in for the four, which tied him with Ray and Vardon.

Instantly a yell went up, which must have been heard in Boston. The gallery swept past ropes and guards and closed in on Ouimet in a solid phalanx. He was lifted to the shoulders of the advance guard and carried toward the clubhouse surrounded by several thousand cheering, yelling golfers, who forgot their golf in the enthusiasm of being just Americans cheering an American victory. Many not realising that Ouimet was an amateur and not a professional, thrust bills of large denominations at him only to be met with a smile and a shake of the head, which took the sting out of the refusal made necessary by their mistake.

The rain beat the ball down during flights from the tee, and the dense atmosphere formed a resisting force far greater than is the case on a clear day. The heavy turf took all the roll out of the ball, giving long drives of the Ray and Vardon type an advantage not to be lightly passed in a competition of the calibre of open championship.

A Cosmopolitan Field.

When the first pair started out on the final half of the title journey the field consisted of fifty-five players. Of these three were English representatives, Ray, Reid, and Vardon; Louis Tellier was the standard bearer of France, and the remainder consisted of a few home-bred professionals and amateurs supported by a number of Scotch and English professionals entered from American clubs. Reid and Vardon were tied for first place with 147, Ray and Strong for second with 149, McDonald Smith and J. M. Barnes were third with 150, and Ouimet led the fourth-place contingent with 153.

Pair after pair teed off in the downpour and then disappeared in the dripping woods that fringe the course. Ray was first to report at home with a card of 41, 35—76. Other pairs reported in rapid order, but none reached the mark of the grave Englishman until Harry Vardon turned in 41, 37—78. This tied the two Englishmen with 226 for 54 holes. When noon arrived the best American card was that of Willie Hagin of Rochester, a 79 for 227.

Right there the gallery began to sit up and take notice. To pick up four strokes on Vardon and two on Ray was a feat that required explanation, and the explanation was that Ouimet was playing golf equal to that of the two Englishmen, who were swinging drivers and mashies when Ouimet was still studying the "three R's."

When the Woodland Club amateur started out on his afternoon round 3,000 sloshed over fairway and rough in his wake. Ray and Vardon had preceded him some time, and reports came in occasionally telling of trouble and brilliant strokes. At the start he took a five because of two putts on the green. He got pars until the fifth, where he took two to get out of a sand pit and two putts for a six. More trouble came at the eighth, where he sliced his ball into a trap and took four to the green and two to hole. He turned for home with a 43, and many of the gallery lost heart, for it was known that both Ray and Vardon had finished and were tied with 304.

Englishmen Praise Ouimet.

Ouimet appeared to crack here, pulling his shots and putting poorly. Fives and fours were marked on his card until he reached the 15th, and many of the gallery deserted his train, feeling that the long-predicted break in his game, due to the strain, had arrived. They did not know Ouimet, however. The Brookline youth arose to the occasion and took the 16th hole in par three. On the 17th he holed for a three one under par and teed off, needing a three to win the title and a four to tie.

It was a climax new to golf in this country, and even Ray and Vardon, who were trailing along amid the swish-swish of rubber-coated spectators, gripped their pipes until the stems threatened to snap under the strain of the clinched teeth. When Ouimet finally holed in with the four that tied him with this great pair of golfers the two Englishmen looked at each other and nodded a silent approval that was followed a moment later by hearty oral praise.

The following are the cards of the leaders:

GREATEST GOLFING PRODIGY.

English Expert's Estimate of Schoolboy on Brookline Links.

By Henry Leach.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 19.—I have seen too many championships in the old country and different parts of the golfing world to write lightly in these days that the like of anything that I now witness can never be equaled for its wonderment again; but after the sobercst reflection I state my conviction that if I lived the length of a dozen lives I should never again be the spectator of such an amazing, thrilling, and magnificent finish to an open championship as that which I looked upon through the drizzling rain in the fading daylight here on the course of the Country Club this afternoon, when young Francis Ouimet (20 years old last May, as he was, and not 22, as many people will have it) was the hero of the stirring drama. He achieved something which was just about as near to the impossible as anything one could think of, and to-night he sleeps (and I know from his phenomenal imperturbability that he really will sleep as most others would not) as the boy who after the severest test has tied for first place in the championship of the United States with two of the finest and most experienced golfers that Britain has ever produced—Edward Ray and Harry Vardon, the latter being admittedly the greatest golfer that the world has ever produced.

No boy has ever done such a thing before, and I cannot believe will ever do it again, and not since away back at the beginning of the present golfing age has an amateur ever come out on top in an open championship, that being when Harold Hilton gained his last success of this kind at the beginning of the reign of the great triumvirate of which Vardon is the chief.

Greatest Golfing Prodigy of Age.

This week in the open championship at Brookline he has far more than confirmed all that I have thought and written about him. He came out brilliantly from the qualifying test at the beginning and then at the finish, when all the rest of American golfing strength was stiff and cold, as we say, after its desperate, exhausting, and fruitless struggle to stop the advance of my countrymen toward the championship, he came out at the very last hour and pulled them up.

Last night Vardon and Ray, with Wilfred Reid, the third factor in the British attack, were all at the head of affairs, and the American outlook was gray and dull. This morning, when it was raining hard, as it did all day, our men hardly seemed to have the grip of their game that they usually have. Ray's play was often loose and Harry Vardon was uncomfortable and unsatisfactory in his putting, as often before. Still, as it turned out, their scoring was better than that of most of their rivals, and they kept their front places, though Ouimet came up and joined them, their aggregates being 226. Hagin and Barnes had closed up also, but McDermott was five strokes behind the leaders. Reid had faded away. In the afternoon round both of the Englishmen labored heavily to the turn, and, despite better play afterward, it seemed when they had finished that they had let their chance of snatching the championship go by. I know that when they had closed their rounds they did not think they had any chance of winning.

Vardon Smokes, Then Plays Better.

Vardon rarely smokes when playing in public, but the tension was so great that he lighted his pipe at the fourteenth hole, and played far better afterward. He told me he wished he had begun to smoke earlier. But there it was, indeed, and dark, hopeless pessimism brooded upon these champions. They felt their expedition had failed. But half an hour later they were smiling again. One after another the three threatening Americans faltered and cracked. Hagin, Barnes, and McDermott were all out of it. So was Macdonald Smith; so were all the rest except this little cocksparrow of a Ouimet, and it seemed that he, too, was done for when he had used up 43 strokes to the first nine holes. A 5 at the short tenth, which followed, seemed to kill his chances, and would certainly have broken the heart of most men. But he kept pegging away, with clean drives, straight approaches, and the truest putting. Yet when he came to the last four holes his task seemed impossible. That was when the thrills were felt most. The par of these last four holes is, respectively, 4, 3, 4, and 4, and when Ouimet tackled them he had only 14 strokes left to tie, meaning that he had to gain one on par somewhere.

At the first of the four he saved himself from disaster by chipping dead from the rough and getting the par figure, and at the short hole he had to sink a three-yard putt for another par, and did it. Only two holes were left, and the extra stroke had still to be gained. He laid his iron approach to the penultimate hole nine yards from the pin, and then sank that long putt with a little hesitation as you or I would in striking a match. Thus, with a 3 he had gained the wanted stroke. He played the home hole for a sure 4, holing a five-foot putt as coolly at the finish as if Vardon and Ray had never been born and he had been a champion until he was quite accustomed to the office.

Then the good American crowd let loose and nearly dislocated his limbs in their joy, and I can forgive them for every whistle and shriek with which they tore the air. They had the full right to be proud of their golfing boy. Being a cosmopolitan sort of golfer, I am proud myself of the game that can produce such a display of nervous strength, for it needs a great game as well as great human stuff to do it. The three of them, Vardon, Ray, and Ouimet, will play off the tie over eighteen holes in the morning, and it will be the greatest tie that has ever been played.

"Home," a dramatic and human novel, peopled with varied American characters and written in racy English, begins in this number. The entire novel, which is anonymous, will appear in four big installments.

Other contributors are Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Ellis Parker Butler, Theodore Dreiser, John Burroughs, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Stephen Leacock, James Davenport Whelpley, James W. Foley, and Oliver Herford.

CHAS. H. HYDE TO GO UNDER KNIFE TO-DAY

Stricken with Old Trouble as He Was Preparing to Meet Body of Gaynor Down the Bay.

TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL

Confident and in Good Spirits Because Doctors Have at Last Diagnosed His Complaint.

Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain, was taken in a serious condition yesterday to the Post-Graduate Hospital, where he will undergo an operation for kidney stone at 8 o'clock this morning. Mr. Hyde has been suffering from what he supposed was colic for the last four years, and an operation was deferred because the trouble was not definitely located.

Mr. Hyde came into the city from his place at Roslyn, L. I., on Thursday. He spent the day at his office, 2 Rector Street, and in the afternoon had the first intimations of the return of his old trouble. It was his intention to go down the bay on the Department of Correction boat, Correction, with the committee members, who were appointed to meet the body of Mayor Gaynor, arriving on the Lusitania after midnight yesterday, but his suffering became so acute toward evening that he was forced to call in his physician, Dr. J. Bentley Squiers of 49 East Forty-ninth Street. On the advice of Dr. Squiers, Mr. Hyde engaged rooms at the Hotel McAlpin for the night and abandoned his plans to meet the Lusitania.

Mrs. Hyde was summoned from Roslyn, and at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the direction of Dr. Squiers, she had the former City Chamberlain removed to the hospital.

At the hospital, Mr. Hyde underwent five X-ray examinations before it was definitely ascertained that his suffering was caused by the lodgment of a large stone, and an immediate operation was decided on.

Mr. Hyde had been suffering from severe intermittent attacks for the last two months. A week ago yesterday he went to the Post-Graduate Hospital, accompanied by his physician. Although he was complaining at that time, he decided to delay treatment at the hospital until after the funeral of Mayor Gaynor.

Mr. Hyde was with Mayor Gaynor for two hours on the night before the Mayor sailed. In fact, he had seen Mayor Gaynor almost daily for the past twenty-four years, and he expressed keen disappointment to his friends yesterday when he was informed that it would be impossible for him to attend the funeral of the Mayor. Mr. Hyde is said to have recalled that he began his associations with Mayor Gaynor in April, 1889, first as an office boy, as he explained yesterday, when he remarked that even in recent years he had continued to serve the Mayor as "office and messenger boy."

Mr. Hyde was cheerful last night, following the diagnosis of his trouble. He said that a great weight was lifted off his mind, and that he was eager to undergo an operation that would relieve him of further suffering. Because of his strong physical condition he believed that the effects of the operation would not keep him long confined in the hospital. He showed no ill effects from the attack yesterday other than a slight fever.

At the age of sixteen, Charles H. Hyde came to this city from Truro, Nova Scotia. After completing a business course in a commercial institution he entered the office of the late Mayor Gaynor. His leisure time was spent reading law, and soon he was identified with the law firm of Gaynor & Leggett. He became a partner of that firm when it was reorganized as Mayer, Grout, Jenks & Hyde, following Mayor Gaynor's election to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Hyde was left in control of the firm, with a lucrative practice, when Grout became Controller, and Jenks was elected to the Supreme Court. His success was rapid.

When Mayor Gaynor was elected to his last office four years ago Hyde wielded considerable influence in municipal politics. He was appointed City Chamberlain by Mayor Gaynor, and on May 1, 1911, was indicted on a charge of bribery in connection with the failure of the Carnegie Trust Company. He resigned the office two days after the indictment was returned. Later he was tried and convicted. He was sentenced to serve not less than two years and not more than three years and six months. The Appellate Division, however, set aside the conviction. District Attorney Whitman has taken the case to the Court of Appeals.

ASK TOO MUCH, SAYS JUDGE.

Plaintiff in Suit for Injury Need Not Supply All Particulars.

Supreme Court Justice Guy handed down a memorandum yesterday denying the application of the Western Electric Company for a bill of particulars from Edith Duty, a sixteen-year-old girl, who sued the company for $10,000 damages for injuries resulting, as she alleged, from negligence. Justice Guy said:

"Without going into the merits of this particular case let me say that the Legislature has passed laws which hold the factory owner responsible in cases where employes get hurt through the negligence of the factory owners. It is not necessary for the injured person to give the names of those in the factory who were negligent. To compel a plaintiff to do that would result in the creation of dummy Superintendents, who would always be able to shift responsibility. It would practically bar every plaintiff from getting his case before a jury."

Miss Duty complained that she had been in the factory about two hours, after starting on her employment, when she was injured, and was unfamiliar with the names of those responsible for her safety.

CLERK COULDN'T STAND IT.

Size of Bills at Hotel Staggered Him, So He Quit.

The new bill clerk who was taken on only a few days ago at one of the big hotels was missing yesterday. He had resigned. Before he came uptown he had worked in the accounting department of a restaurant, where one may eat luncheon for 20 cents, or even 15, and where you can get enough food for 30 cents to make a dinner.

The newcomer struck the first snag when he came to a dinner for three persons which had cost $65.

"This must be a mistake," he said to the cashier. "I don't believe any three persons that ever lived could eat $65 worth. That check must be for 65 cents."

When told it was correct his eyes bulged. According to the cashier, he was continually exclaiming at the size of the bills people were paying for their meals. Finally, on Thursday, he said he had had enough, and was going to quit. He added that he simply could not stand adding up figures that meant dollars when they ought to stand for cents, and he feared he would imbibe terrible notions of extravagance.

ADVICE FOR SARATOGA.

Dr. Baruch Tells How It Can Become a Great Health Resort.

Dr. Simon Baruch, who proposed public baths for this city, returned yesterday on the Lusitania from a trip to Europe of three months' duration. The purpose of his journey was to inspect the various spas and also attend the International Medical Congress in London. In studying the noted spas of Europe, Dr. Baruch had Saratoga in mind. Dr. Baruch said that pleasure seeking and health gaining could not be combined successfully, and if Saratoga wished to become famed as a health resort that city would have to forego the races.

Dr. Baruch visited, among other places, Vichy, Nauheim, Homburg, Marion, and Kissingen. He said that he noted that Homburg had lost popularity greatly since the death of King Edward VII.

"The German Emperor," said Dr. Baruch, "is now trying to revive the vogue of Homburg, but, although he and the Empress take a daily drive when they make it a visit, there are not many people to do them homage, and it is doubtful if the place ever will regain the prestige it lost with the death of Edward VII."

Dr. Baruch's report on his mission in regard to Saratoga will be made to the commission at the Springs. He was accompanied by Dr. Albert J. Wittson, who brought back a trunk filled with notes of their experiences.

Polak is President of the Diamond Workers' Union.

GIANTS LOSE, THEN WIN, IN ST. LOUIS--BIG AUTO RACES IN DOUBT--BOXING--HORSE SHOW

GIANTS BREAK EVEN WITH THE CARDINALS

Matty Touched Up Lively, but Marquard Is a Great Puzzle to St. Louis.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 19.—A larger quota than usual of the local fans turned out for the double bill this afternoon between the Giants and the Cardinals and were rewarded with two first-class exhibitions of baseball, both of which were shutouts. The first game went to St. Louis by the score of 1 to 0, while the New Yorks tucked away the second by the score of 2 to 0.

In the opening contest Mathewson and Sallee were the opposing pitchers, with the local portsider having decidedly the better of the argument. Mathewson was touched up in lively fashion all the way, but gilt-edged support pulled him out of several holes.

A lucky triple by Wingo in the tenth inning broke a row of ciphers and was primarily responsible for the Cardinals shoving their only tally across.

Wingo's rap got away from Snodgrass and rolled almost to the centre field bleachers. A snappy relay from Snodgrass to Fletcher, however, came near nipping Wingo at third base. Fletcher's throw, however, hit Wingo on the back of the head and knocked him out for a few minutes. On recovering Huggins decided to take Wingo's place at third base, and eventually scored the winning run when Quinlan sent a sharp rap to centre field.

Both games were featured by the remarkable playing of Fletcher, who again and again grabbed hot liners or stopped grounders that looked sure for at least two bags. His snappy throws to first base were absolutely perfect and cut down numerous Cardinals.

In the second game in particular Fletcher pulled off two unusual plays. In the seventh inning he leaped off the ground and with one hand speared a hot liner off Mowry's bat. In the ninth inning he stopped Snyder's hot grounder, stooping while running at full speed, getting the ball while still on the run, and snapping it to Merkle for the out. It was a play that is seldom seen and received plenty of applause from the fans.

The second game for six innings was also a pitchers' battle, with Marquard having the advantage over Hopper, the New England League pitcher who a couple of years ago Roger Bresnahan traded to Dick Kinsella for a hunting dog.

Marquard was in great form and started the contest by striking out the first three Cardinals to face him. He struck out five more during the rest of the game, while Hopper was only able to make one of the Giants chop the air vainly. Meyers was the "fall guy" in this respect, failing to connect in the ninth inning when, however, New York had the game safely sewed up.

New York got its brace of runs in the seventh inning when Hopper displayed great wildness. He started off by hitting Fletcher. Fletcher then, to show that he was not crippled, proceeded to steal second. Burns popped up to Mowrey and Shafer favored Whitted with an easy fly. Murray walked and then Hopper proceeded to send one of his giants against Meyers's elbow. The big Indian bowler was not quite sure whether he wanted to go to first base or to a hospital. Umpire Klem waved him to the first station and the bases were jammed. Merkle connected for a single to centre on which both Fletcher and Murray scored, and that was all on ice. Marquard got a single to centre and Meyers tried to come all the way from second base, with the result that he was nipped at the plate on a quick throw by Oeding which ended the inning and also the scoring.

In the first game New York had one or two fair chances for scoring, but each time Sallee tightened up and took the Giants into camp. The Giants' most favorable opportunity came in the fourth inning. Doyle started with a single to centre and then stole second. Fletcher went out on an easy fly to Oakes. Burns walked and Herzog singled to right, but the rap was too short to permit Doyle to score. Murray then forced Doyle at the plate and Meyers was retired by Mowrey and Wingo. In the seventh inning with two gone Merkle sent a wicked double to left, but was stranded on second when Mathewson failed to connect safely. In the other innings the New Yorkers went out in almost one, two, three fashion.

In the second game St. Louis had little chance to make it interesting for the visitors. During the first three innings only nine men batted, and in only the seventh inning was there even a shade of a chance to score. Then, with two gone, both Oakes and Whitted got singles, but O'Leary lifted an easy fly to Snodgrass and ended the inning. The scores:

Cubs Bunch Hits on Perdue.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Chicago bunched hits off Perdue to-day and defeated Boston 6 to 1 in the visitors' last game of the season here. The batting of Zimmerman was a feature, his double driving in the first two runs and his homer netting two more in the third. Leach's double drove in the other two runs in the fourth. Davis replaced Perdue, and, although unsteady, held the locals hitless. The visitors were saved a shutout when Sweeney was hit by a pitched ball and went to second on a wild pitch, scoring a moment later on a single by Myer.

Near Fights In Pittsburgh Games.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 19.—Pittsburgh took the first game, 5 to 2, in ten innings, from Philadelphia this afternoon, and the second was called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness, with the score tied at 3 runs each. Both teams put up a scrappy fight, and there was a near fist fight in both contests. In the tenth inning of the first game Luderus lost his temper when Hendrix elbowed him at first and hit Hendrix in the face with the ball. They started for each other, but umpires and players intervened. Both were put out of the game. In the second game Becker, in sliding into third, brought his foot against Dolan's stomach. Words followed and the two men made a rush, but Umpire Brennan threw his bulky frame between them and players pulled them away. Both continued to play and kept up their jabber at each other throughout the game.

With the score tied at 1 each in Philadelphia's half of the first game, Sherwood Magee stole home in the tenth inning. With one man out in Pittsburgh's half, Carey singled, went to third on Dolan's double, and scored on Viox's out. Wilson then singled, scoring Dolan with the winning run. Hendrix pitched a fine game and had the better of Mayer.

The visitors scored 3 runs by hitting Conselman, the Atlanta recruit, in the second inning of the second game and running wild on the bases. Pittsburgh tied the score by bunching hits off Seaton in the fifth. McQuillan and Seaton then battled with no result until darkness. The scores:

SAVANNAH AUTO RACES IN DOUBT

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 19.—With only ten days left for entering automobiles in the Grand Prize and Vanderbilt Cup races, scheduled over the Savannah course for Thanksgiving week, it is apparent that the races will be declared off because of a lack of entries. The local board having the races in charge has already extended the time for filling entries from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, but there has been no response on the part of those who usually enter events of this kind. The Mercer people have declared their intention of placing cars in both of the events, but outside of them there have been no bona-fide entrances.

Harvey Granger, President of the Savannah Automobile Association, under whose auspices the races should be run, is now in New York getting in touch for the last time with the makers and agents of cars, with the hope of procuring additional entries. He is also there for the purpose of consulting with W. K. Vanderbilt, the donor of the Vanderbilt Cup, with the hope of getting him sufficiently interested in the race to have him endeavor to secure additional entries.

The reason so few cars have entered seems to be that the Savannah Automobile Association has declined to grant any concessions. There has been some correspondence between manufacturers and the automobile race people here about the matter, and they seem as far apart as ever. Mr. Granger attended the recent races at Elgin, Ill., and was astonished at some of the propositions made him there by manufacturers and drivers of cars. The manufacturers demanded that the fees of all cars entering either of the races should be refunded if the cars showed up to start in the events. Other makers demanded that the freight to and from Savannah should be paid on their cars provided they paid the entrance fees for either of the races. These propositions met prompt rejection on the part of Mr. Granger, and when he came home and reported these facts to the Board of Directors his determination not to make concessions along the line indicated was promptly indorsed.

Mr. Granger had been in favor of giving the manufacturers until Oct. 15 to get their entries in, but the Directors determined to make it Oct. 1, and this date has been fixed as the limit. Since this announcement has gone out not a single entry has been received, so it is generally accepted here as a fact that there will be no races over the Savannah course this Fall.

REDS WIN LONG GAME

But Superbas Even Up Matters by Taking Second Contest.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19.—Brooklyn and Cincinnati broke even in a double-header to-day, the locals winning the first game, which went ten innings, 1 to 0, and the visitors capturing the second 2 to 1. Both games were well played, the fielding being sharp, and the pitchers holding up their end. Collins and Moran made spectacular catches in the first contest, while Marsans distinguished himself by a marvelous catch in the second.

In the first contest Reulbach did not allow a hit until the fifth inning. No runs were scored, however, until the tenth, when Kling doubled and scored a moment later on Bescher's single, putting an end to the contest. Brooklyn obtained eight hits, but Packard kept them all well scattered.

In the second game, after one man had been retired in the second inning, Hollitzel walked, stole second, and scampered home when Dodge tripled. This put an end to the run-getting until Brooklyn's half of the ninth inning, when, with one man out, Daubert doubled and scored on Smith's two-bagger. The latter scored the winning run when Fisher singled. The score:

Senators' Recruit Wins Game.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Love, a recruit from Atlanta, who stands 6 feet 7 inches, started his first game for Washington today, and was returned the winner over Detroit, 2 to 1, in the last game of the season between the two teams. The tall pitcher was hit hard and got into many holes during the seven innings he was on the mound. Detroit had thirteen men left on the bases, eleven of them being stranded during Love's regime, the hit needed to win always failing to materialize. Boehling pitched the last two innings for Washington, and held Detroit safe.

Comstock, who started for Detroit, pitched good ball for seven innings, and ordinarily would have won his game. He gave way to a pinch hitter. The score:

BRADEN DIRECT FAST.

Wins Free-for-All Race in 2:03¾ and 2:05 at Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19.—Seven events, including a free-for-all pace which Braden Direct won in straight heats, brought the Grand Circuit harness meeting at the State Fair to a close to-day. All of the races except the 2:17 trot were captured in straight heats. That went to the limit, furnished some of the most exciting struggles of the afternoon, and was finally won by Dr. Thorne.

For the first time since Monday, the sun shone. The track was slow, however, but despite this, surprisingly fast time was made. Braden Direct won the first heat of the free-for-all in 2:08¾, and the last half mile was run in 1:00¼. Walter Cochato was at the black horse's side all the way and they raced neck and neck to the finish. Pickles finished strong in the second heat, but the winner had too much speed in reserve.

THE PUBLIC AND THE IMPEACHMENT.

The High Court of Impeachment, as constituted by the organic law and now organized, will hear the evidence submitted in support of the articles by the managers on behalf of the Assembly, and will determine the issue. Meanwhile the public, while it properly should and will suspend its judgment upon the question of guilt or innocence until the evidence is presented and the finding of the court rendered, violates none of the proprieties of the occasion by forming its own opinion of the procedure. There is, as we view the matter, but one right opinion, and that is that on charges so grave in their nature exculpation should be sought and can be had only by the process of disproof. There have been some curious aberrations of judgment, notably in quarters where there is a disposition to view the impeachment proceeding merely as a Tammany assault upon Mr. SULZER. It has been publicly said by some who hold this view that Mr. SULZER'S honesty has been proved by the moves he has made to expose Tammany graft, and that even if he is guilty of the offenses charged Tammany is guilty of many things so much worse that the Governor's offending must be condoned and excused. We are quite unable to see how such reasoning can be reconciled with the commonest morality, and the question may well be asked what effect must such teachings have upon the mind of youth, upon the minds of young men just beginning to take an interest in politics. The one question, the vital question, for Mr. SULZER'S reputation and the people whose choice has made him Governor is, Is he guilty of the offenses set forth in the articles of impeachment? If he is guilty, he cannot be absolved by the allegation that his accusers are Tammany men and that Tammany is desperately wicked.

A resort to technicalities in his defense is equally open to objection, and on the same ground. Mr. SULZER'S reputation would in no degree be cleared by the success of the contention in his behalf that the Legislature in extraordinary session had no authority to begin the impeachment proceedings. The question between the people and Mr. SULZER can be satisfactorily answered only by the result of a trial upon the merits. Again, the argument has been made that even if he did not acount in his sworn statement for all the campaign contributions he received it was sufficient for him to state merely how much had been spent for campaign purposes—that the rest was his own affair. That is not the law. Section 546 of the election law requires not only the Treasurer of the political committee, but the candidate himself in filing his statement, to set forth "all the receipts, expenditures, disbursements, and liabilities," and the statement must "include the amount received" and the date of its receipt. If it be proved that Mr. SULZER'S statement was defective in these particulars, the law has been violated. The theory and intent of the law are very well set forth in the brief prepared by counsel for the Assembly managers:

> From the time a person is nominated for office he comes under the provisions and direction of the law. He is not yet an officer, but he is seeking to become one, and in order to become one is required to conform to the directions of the statute, the purpose of which is not captious.
> It is genuine, and for the purpose of affording positive information to all interested, to the people at large, not only how much and for what the candidate himself has contributed, but the persons who have made contributions to him, so that there may be no misunderstanding either as to the amount of contributions thus made or the character of those who made them. It was intended that the people should have this information, so that, among other things, during the administration of the officer it could be observed whether there was any attempt being made to reward by official patronage or appointment those who had made undue contributions in aid of the election of the official dispensing such patronage.
> A candidate might receive and appropriate to his own personal use, not expending it for campaign purposes, a large sum of money from some personal friend or some corporation, and the law requires that he shall file a statement of the receipt of the money, so that the transaction shall be publicly recorded in the sworn statement. The purpose of this is plain. Corruption is as flagrant, and the will of the people as surely cheated, when a candidate receives a sum of money with the express or implied understanding that official favors shall repay the debt as when the electorate is actually corrupted by expenditures in bribing voters. The law intends to safeguard that point, and it is in that important particular that Mr. SULZER'S statement, it is charged, was deceptive. When such charges are made, neither the public morals nor the public interest would be safeguarded either by holding the accused guiltless because of the bad character of his acusers or by an acquittal on technical grounds.

THE MAYOR'S FUNERAL.

Without elaborate ceremony, the body of WILLIAM J. GAYNOR was removed from shipboard yesterday morning to the home of the afflicted family in Brooklyn, and for forty-eight hours the privacy of domestic grief will be guarded from the multitude of people who mourn a lost leader. The Mayor died in the hour of his greatest earthly triumph. His administration for four years of the affairs of the municipality had received public approval in a memorable manifestation. The fact that he was the choice of a large number of his fellow-citizens, probably a majority, for re-election, had been attested with unmistakable force.

In the circumstances a public demonstration at his funeral is inevitable, and is assuredly justified. Mr. GAYNOR heartily disliked pomp and ostentatious ceremony, but he respected the will of the people, and it is the people's will, undoubtedly, that his body shall lie in state in the old City Hall, and shall be buried with distinguished honors. We have not for many years had a public funeral in which so many citizens will feel some sort of personal concern. Desire to pay tribute to the memory of a fearless and competent Chief Magistrate is general. But the funeral on Monday will be a purely civic affair, with as little show of ceremony as possible.

A WHITE MINISTER TO HAITI.

In sending MADISON R. SMITH of Missouri as Minister to Haiti President WILSON has shown good judgment. Strange as it may seem, it is the testimony of reputable merchants doing business in Haiti that the Haitians would prefer to have the United States represented by a white man, although for obvious reasons they have received negro envoys without a protest.

The motives for this feeling in the Black Republic are readily explained. The better class of Haitians, while it includes many of pure African ancestry, has a considerable admixture of French blood, with the acompaniment of French sensitiveness to slights, real or apparent. Through superior ability, education, and ambition the Haitians of French descent exert a large influence, and have given the country its two best Presidents, BOYER and GEFFRARD.

Intelligent Haitians want their republic to be treated just as other countries are treated in the matter of diplomatic representation. They want the same kind of American Ministers that other American republics have, not because they prefer white men for racial reasons, but because they object to being singled out for racial discrimination.

In sending Mr. SMITH to Port-au-Prince President WILSON shows that he understands the negro nature. Mr. SMITH will not be isolated in Port-au-Prince, for the European diplomatic colony there is of an excellent standard, and foreign business concerns are represented by gentlemen of good social as well as commercial position.

STATE BANKING LAW REVISION.

Something of the design which occasionally appears in mere coincidence is suggested by the holding of the first formal meeting of the New York Commission for the Revision of the State Banking Law on the very day on which the House of Representatives passed the Administration Currency bill. If the duty lying before this State Commission was at all in doubt it should be made clear by the passage at Washington of a Currency bill which, though greatly improved compared with its original form, is still so far from ideal that the failure of currency legislation at this session would be preferable to the enactment of the bill as it now stands.

The specific object of legislation in the two cases necessarily differs in some respects, but the principles of sound banking are the same whether they are to be applied within a single State or throughout the country. It is just as important for New York to observe scrupulously the principles of sound banking in the revision of law which it is now undertaking as it is for the nation to apply those principles in enacting a new currency and banking statute. The very fact that Congress underestimates its responsibility in this matter, if action is to be regarded as speaking louder than words, should prompt our State Commission to set the highest possible standard in the recommendations which it will in due course make to the Legislature.

Far from counseling any spirit of antagonism between State and Nation in the framing of banking law, we see in this revision of State law a chance for the fullest co-operation, and the law requires that the framers of the Federal bill so far as its provisions are sound and for the setting up by the State of a model for the improvement of the Federal bill so far as it is unsound. It is not yet altogether certain that the Federal Reserve Bank bill will pass as quickly to enactment as the present attitude of a wearied Senate may seem to suggest. The labors of this State Commission may have progressed far enough before the Currency bill becomes law to have some effect in molding the Washington bill into sounder form. Certain it is that a Federal banking law would suffer by comparison with a statute of this State to the extent to which the State set a higher standard.

The power of the Commission is limited to recommending a form of law to the Legislature. Let it recommend so sound a law that the Legislature cannot do otherwise than give it sanction. The Commission's work is not to be confined, however, to the mere codification of existing statutes. It is called upon to recommend changes in and additions to the existing banking law of the State. The opportunity should not be lost to set up a statute which can serve as a model for future State banking legislation.

THE CHANCES IN GOLF.

Mr. FRANCIS OUIMET, who made such a good beginning in the National Amateur Tournament, distinguished himself again yesterday in the contest with some of the world's most famous professional golfers at Brookline, Mass. His score of 225 for 54 holes, an average of a fraction over 37 for each nine holes, indicates golfing ability of a high quality, and it was 12 strokes better than the score of Mr. JEROME TRAVERS. Mr. OUIMET, however, is not yet nearly the equal of the amateur champion in steadiness, in self-control, or in the kind of skill which enables a player to turn seeming defeat into victory at a critical moment. That he tied with both RAY and VARDON is due, of course, chiefly to their comparative unfamiliarity with the course, on which the quality of the turf differs from that to which they have been accustomed.

Mr. OUIMET, however, is assuredly the most interesting newcomer in the front rank of amateur golfers and the one likely to be most talked of in the next year. He has style and courage and other good qualities, and he will keep the golfing enthusiasts "guessing" until he either takes the first place or gives way in the popular eye to some other newcomer of extraordinary qualities. As for the Open Championship contest, no records have been broken so far, and the play in the finals now seems likely to be spoiled by bad weather.

DANIEL BOONE'S TRAIL.

The commercial road-building interests that are working to open a large Congressional pork barrel in behalf of a national highway system are resourceful. They pretend to be patriotic. We have received a circular which announces that, in memory of DANIEL BOONE, the pioneer who opened the West to colonists and outfought the Indians in their own fastnesses, an open pike is soon to be built over the first trail that BOONE blazed in 1775 from Cumberland Gap to Crab Orchard Springs, connecting the northern system of roads and the Lincoln Highway with the great southern and southeastern group of roads. The circular continues:

> The story of the development of BOONE'S Trail into a modern motor highway is a tale of adventure not surpassed in American history, and is now offered for the first time for the purpose of acquainting the public with the history of the trail and the work that is being done.
> The story is offered to the newspapers for free publication, sumptuously illustrated. It will serve, undoubtedly, to popularize the movement for appropriating at Washington half a billion dollars for a national highway system, money which the ambitious road contractors are anxious to get hold of with the least local oversight possible along the length of the routes. There can be no objection to neighboring States clubbing together for the construction of interstate highways. They know what they want in the way of good roads, and their local officers should see that they get it. But we have no system of inspection from Washington that will assure the economical expenditure of Federal moneys over vast distances throughout this country. The States themselves must be very careful how their appropriations for good roads are spent, as New York has found to its cost. If Kentucky, Tennessee, and adjacent States wish to convert DANIEL BOONE'S Trail into a motor highway, that may be worth while, and it may be undertaken by them without prospect of scandal.

EARTH HUNGER.

An article on "Earth Hunger, or the Philosophy of Land Grabbing," by WILLIAM GRAHAM SUMNER, appears in The Yale Review for October. It is an unpublished address by the late Prof. SUMNER given at Yale in 1897, and acquires its timeliness by the examples of "political earth-hunger" which have since led to the two wars in Africa, in Eastern Asia, lately in the Balkans, and by the need of just such counsel as it contains in contemplation of present conditions in Mexico.

The philosophy of earth hunger, according to Prof. SUMNER, is based upon the capacity of the land to yield subsistence to men at a given stage of civilization. When the area of land is large in proportion to the population, the masses are the gainers by their control of this land. But as conditions increase, unless the science of intensive cultivation advances in due proportion, people possessing ordinary resources will become hungry for more land as for more easy circumstances of living.

But Prof. SUMNER distinguishes between economic earth-hunger and what he calls "political earth-hunger," which would not only colonize a new land but transfer political jurisdiction to it. That gratifies national vanity. If the new and less-populated territory contains already an adequate Government which assures law, rights, and police safeguards, it means only the incurring of a useless burden to displace this régime. Only when the new country is barbarous and ill-governed it becomes necessary to impose upon it the political power of the more highly ordered and civilized invaders. That is an expensive and troublesome necessity, without certain economic advantage, and it may be a means of weakening and not of aggrandizing the conqueror nation. It is manifestly more to the interest of the United States, for example, that Mexico should be self-governing, assuring full guarantees of protection and safety to those who invest in the industries of that country, than that we should intervene and take possession of the country.

Economic expansion must be had only by the more crowded nations. We have not in this country arrived at a point where its growing population need push across the borders into sparsely settled territory; in fact, in the present knowledge of agriculture and the arts we should probably be better off with a larger population per square mile. We have undertaken to train the Filipinos in the principles of self-government, then to free them, and the undertaking, as every one knows, has been costly. We can afford to be very patient with the forces across the boundary to the south of the United States that are making for the establishment of a self-controlled Government.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Earnest Plea for Less Noise.

One of our correspondents points out this morning a considerable number of city activities that could easily be made either noiseless or much less noisy than they are now, and says, as is true, that these perfectly practicable changes would result not only in making New York a vastly pleasanter place in which to live but in increasing the material prosperity of no small part of its inhabitants.

He might, had he chosen, have lengthened his list almost indefinitely, for nearly every city noise could at least be mitigated. He might also have emphasized the fact that noise usually—always, perhaps, except when a sound of some sort is itself, as in the case of music or conversation, essential to the attainment of a desired end—is an evidence of wasted energy, and therefore as hateful to the enlightened economist as to the nervous invalid.

That we endure the innumerable clamors and roars and crashes we do with the approach to resignation we feel is due in part to the common assumption that they are an unavoidable accompaniment of urban advantages, and partly to the belief that the prosperity of a city is directly proportioned to its noisiness. Both the assumption and the belief are fallacious, but we have heard so often of "deadly silence" that we forget how injurious noise can be and in how many ways. Yet a perfect machine—one in which friction had been reduced to nothing and the entire available force applied to the doing of useful work—would be silent whether running or standing still, and we know how proud an inventor is when he can claim with something like truth that his particular product—an automobile, typewriter, or what not—is noiseless.

Noiselessness in action is rarely to be attained, however, without some trouble, and often it involves more or less of immediate expenditure. Until community interests preponderate more than they do—and as much as they should—over those of individuals or small groups, everybody will probably go on making about all the noise he finds convenient or profitable or expense-saving to himself. Incidentally, everybody will go on growling about the noises made by other people, but only a few will really try to do away with or decrease the noises they consider particularly obnoxious.

The Assembly's Mistake.

That the Assembly at Albany should have sent to jail a man who defiantly refused to give to it information which he had claimed to possess was action which it could hardly avoid taking—after he had been put on the stand and had conducted himself as he did. Those of us, however, who have a tender regard for the dignity of the State feel something of regret that the solemn process of impeachment should have been attended with a sorry little squabble like this, especially as it revealed powerlessness rather than power on the part of those who put GARRISON behind the bars.

Could the Assembly have threatened him with a punishment alarming enough to make him speak, the situation would have been different. Instead, its penalty has given him what he probably regards and enjoys as fame, and though his preference for incarceration will doubtless wane rapidly as the days pass, the chances are that he will stay where he is until the tedium of not too harsh confinement outweighs the perils and humiliations of confessing that the accusations he made were the products of an irresponsible imagination. At any rate, this seemed to be the cause of his recalcitrant behavior, rather than any real disinclination to tell what he knew.

The Assembly can hardly hope to punish with imprisonment all the people who express doubts as to the possession by every New York legislator of unstained and unstainable honor, and our jails are already so crowded that common humanity forbids any attempt at adding to their population even as many of us are as explicit—when not on oath—as GARRISON was in telling the naughty things that Assemblymen will do and why.

Just the Place for Thaw.

So much higher and more enthusiastic are the honors paid to THAW by the people of Concord than were those he received in Coatlcook that the inhabitants of the smaller town may well be pained to see four of its sons of "the place on the map" so suddenly and recently acquired. That apprehension doubtless accounts for the plot of the Coaticookese—if one there was—to recapture the homicidal paranoiac to whom their tender hearts and soft heads turned so lovingly.

The explanation of Concord is not so easy, but then, that city, unlike Coaticook, accustomed us long ago to action on its part of a highly puzzling nature. Did it not long rejoice over the presence in its midst, or at least on its edge, of a woman, who, as "first citizen," ranked about where THAW does as "distinguished guest"? Of course, they are not at all alike in their illusions, but sensible folk have as much, or rather as little, use for the one as for the other.

Concord liked Mrs. EDDY and was proud of her, perhaps because she brought a lot of money into the town, perhaps for other reasons. Why, therefore, shouldn't it like THAW—why shouldn't it suggest that he buy the house in which Mrs. EDDY lived and so make it and its magnificent fretsaw decorations the objective point of a double pilgrimage? He, too, will be good for the hotel and livery stable trade, and he, too, is the victim of a persecution that in time he may come to call "M. A. M." after the manner of his illustrious predecessor in Concord's affections.

OFFERS BODY FOR AUTOPSY.

Willing to Undergo Medical Examination After Death.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much interested in Edward H. Cleveland's letter anent the value of autopsies. I recall reading, a few years ago, of the difficulty experienced by doctors during the Middle Ages when only four dissections were permitted a year in Paris because of the superstitious prejudice against cutting up dead bodies. We can easily realize what a handicap this was to the progress of medical and surgical science.

I have for some time hesitated between disposing finally of my own dead body by cremation or by willing it to some hospital for dissection. Up to date I have no organic trouble that would make it of special value for an autopsy.

Since reading that letter I have come to a decision, and will make my friends and relatives understand my wishes.

The next point to consider is how this is to be carried out. Will some one conversant with such matters let the public know through your columns just what is the least difficult procedure for those one leaves behind?

I find it easier to dispose thus of my own remains than to consider doing so with those I love. An autopsy seems more easy than a dissection from this point of view, for one feels that such an operation is in the hands of genuine scientists, who will not handle irreverently what remains of those beloved whom death has claimed.

Any practical suggestions will be gladly received. Living or dead, one wants to help ever so little to the onward march of progress.

Having thus stated my desire to co-operate in any such movement, it will probably be my lot to die by drowning or in an explosion. B. J.

"Common Sense" Judges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your statement that sometimes Judges, when they find nothing in the books, put something there which then becomes law, reminds me of what a Judge of an Austrian Court of Appeals told me last Summer. He said the prime requisites for an able Judge were sound common sense (Gesunder Menschenverstand) and a capacity to make the law already printed in the books suffice for the purpose of deciding the case in hand rationally. Selling Cocaine to Minors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A man recently caught selling cocaine to children was sentenced on Monday to one year's imprisonment and $500 fine. A law passed some years ago makes it a felony for any person caught carrying knockout drops, (chloral.)

Why not petition our Legislature to pass a law making it a felony to sell any kind of dangerous drugs to minors?

SUNDAY MAGAZINE CONTENTS.

The whole inside story of the scandal which caused the downfall of Charles Stewart Parnell is apparently about to come to light. William O'Brien's publication of Parnell's letter to him in which he said "that it will be shown that the dishonor and discredit were not on my side" has precipitated such a storm of controversy that Mrs. Parnell is reported to have abandoned her intention of publishing her memoirs posthumously, and to be ready to give them to the public now.

Meanwhile one who was in close touch with the whole situation and with all the parties to it has written for THE SUNDAY TIMES the most intimate revelations of the affair that have ever been published. This writer is the one who conceals his identity under the name of "A Veteran Diplomat," and what he has to reveal of the relations between Parnell, Gladstone, and O'Shea and of the origin and progress of the tragedy will astonish many who believed they knew the whole story. It will appear in the Magazine Section of the SUNDAY TIMES tomorrow.

When President Wilson appointed Dr. Henry van Dyke to an important diplomatic post, he appointed not merely a poet and a philosopher, but a man with very definite ideas on the subject of diplomacy. Dr. van Dyke's ideas on what should hereafter be the aim of American diplomacy are novel and unusual, and he has set them forth in a striking interview, which will appear in the Magazine Section to-morrow and will be of especial interest to peace advocates.

The arrest of five prisoners in London in connection with the mysterious robbery of the $650,000 pearl necklace, which has engrossed the interest of two continents, is likely to lead to the revelation of the whole conspiracy. Meanwhile, enough is known of the facts to form one of the most engrossing stories of crime and detective work ever recorded outside the pages of fiction, and this story will be told graphically in THE SUNDAY TIMES.

The denunciations of the two red light plays, "The Lure" and "The Fight," and in particular Prof. Muensterberg's article in last SUNDAY'S TIMES, have moved Bayard Veiller, author of "The Fight," to a pungent defense of such plays. Mr. Veiller is a crisp and caustic writer, and in his defense, which will appear in the Magazine Section to-morrow, he indulges in some characterizations which will make some of his critics writhe—especially Police Commissioner Waldo.

Oscar Hammerstein has been made into a character in fiction. Robert Hichens is the man who had the courage to put the only Oscar in a novel, and how did it will be described in THE SUNDAY TIMES.

Frank B. Williams, special counsel of the New York Heights of Buildings Committee, in Germany studying how European cities cope with such problems, and from Frankfort he writes an extraordinarily interesting article telling of Germany's building regulations and of how their application here would help to solve our home questions.

There will be two pages showing the latest Paris fashions; an interview with R. Fulton Cutting on the way in which to awaken the civic conscience of the State as that of the city has been awakened; some remarkable facts gleaned by Owen Johnson, the novelist, during a year's stay in Italy, about the way in which immigrants are returning and rehabilitating Europe with American money; a pen picture of W. J. Gaynor as one of his intimates knew him; a startling article on "The Girl Who Disappears," and the activities of the white slavers; articles by Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart on the Balkans, and ex-President Reyes on South America, and other features, any one of which is the equal of anything to be found in the high-priced magazines. They will all appear in SUNDAY TIMES.

THE REIGN OF NOISE.

Why Do Not Property Owners Unite to Make New York Quiet?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why should New York be such an inferno of noises as it has become? Why do not real estate men and landlords realize that this diminishes the value of their property by at least 10 or 20 per cent.?

Thousands of people move to the country and endure all the discomforts and expense of commuting simply because they are driven out by the noise. Why should it be allowed?

Why should the Manhattan Elevated be allowed to use on its cars motors whose boom and burr can be heard for fully a mile? The elevated of Berlin is quiet enough. Why should the surface cars be equipped with the same kind of motors, so that it is almost impossible for many people to sleep in their vicinity? Surface cars can be made almost noiseless. Those in London make no such infernal racket. Why should the cars be equipped with those heavy gongs whose clang is enough to scare you out of your wits? There is no need for this They do not have them in Europe.

Why should not the delivery wagons and express wagons and milk carts be compulsorily equipped with rubber tires, so that they should not add their high staccato rattle to the rest of the din?

Why should the Fifth Avenue Stage Company be allowed to put on vehicles that have made life a burden for every resident along its route? The European buses do not whine and grind like a sawmill.

Why should the steamboats in the river be allowed to toot and hoot to their hearts' content? And why should the outgoing of an ocean liner create such a din that nobody within a mile can hear himself think?

There is no need.

Why should the subways be constructed so that you cannot hear yourself talk? They seem designed to secure a maximum of reverberation. The new subways in Berlin and the new Nord Sud in Paris are models of quiet and smooth running.

And why should the automobiles be allowed to use the abominable Klaxton horns and the like, and to hoot and shriek at every pedestrian in the street as though he had no right to be there? Less than 2 per cent. of the people of New York own or use automobiles. Does New York exist for their comfort? Have the other 4,000,000 people here no title to consideration?

Why should steam riveters and electric hammers be allowed to disturb the peace of the community when it would be perfectly possible to put a muffler over them and deaden at least two-thirds of the noise?

It is an oft-quoted saying of Schopenhauer's that "Sensitiveness to noise is a test of intelligence." Twenty years or more ago New York, in spite of its Belgian blocks, was a fairly quiet and livable city. To-day it is a horror.

Any intelligent physician will tell you that a considerable part of the nervous troubles and nervousness of New Yorkers is due simply to the excessive noise. It is becoming increasingly difficult in New York City to find a quiet place in which to sleep.

Is not this an imbecile state of affairs?

And is there not enough public spirit and interest on the part of property owners to put an end to those simply intolerable conditions? C. S.

THE ENGINEER'S STATUS.

His Social Service and Obligations Not Fully Appreciated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a fact that the standing of engineers in this country is not as high as it is abroad. One reason may be because we have developed so fast and quick results have seemed so essential that in many things the "best engineering practice" has had to step aside for "more practical engineering." This explains a measure of the criticism which is so often made of the excess refinement practiced by recent graduates. Or, in other words, an analysis of much commercial engineering of to-day would reveal the fact that the "practical engineer" makes quite as many sacrifices to commercialism against good engineering as the fledgling graduate does against practical engineering. Incidentally, these sacrifices have to be paid for in the end by the public, and this possibly, in a measure, accounts for such undervaluation of engineers as a class as obtains to-day.

To explain further, there is to-day a large proportion of loss of property and life through fire and accidents or deterioration of material which could have been prevented by competent engineers through timely and proper supervision and advice concerning same. And, conversely, a continuation of such waste argues a lack of proper appreciation of the true function of engineers by the public at large. It also argues a lack of proper grasping by engineers individually and as a class of their real obligations and possible service to society.

As President Humphreys truly says in referring to engineering, "There is lots of room at the top," but the top is hard climbing and can only be attained by that proper number of engineers when the public at large is properly educated to the many social errors that can be cured by correct engineering and the need they have for the services of the engineering profession. Then the engineers doing their part in the fullness of the public confidence, one will say of the profession more and more, "By their works shall ye know them."

THE MENTAL ATTITUDE.

Whenever you are ill at ease, or out of sorts, or blue,
There's always some one standing by who sweetly says to you:
"Why don't you get your mastery with complacency imbued?
What in the world's the matter with your mental attitude?"

When I am ill with anything, from headache to the gout;
When too much care or too much work has put me down and out,
There's always some one near to ask, in manner mild or rude,
"Why don't you change the bias of your mental attitude?"

Now, I am fairly normal, and I can philosophize
When there's nothing much to bother and the sun shines in my skies;
I can warble a cantata with an airy interlude
And go in for competition as to mental attitude.

But I'll bet my bottom dollar that no sort of man exists
Who will not respond to nature when fate hits him with both fists;
And the man who likes misfortune when it's got him hacked and hewed
Is the loon who's long since parted with his mental attitude.

LUBANA SHELDON.

SCARLET FEVER.

Dr. Doty Takes Issue with Dr. Murphy's Eucalyptus Oil Theory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. John B. Murphy of Chicago, in an interview published in THE TIMES yesterday, states that evidence was presented at the recent International Medical Congress to the effect that if scarlet fever patients are rubbed with eucalyptus oil contagion may be prevented. The following quotation appears in the interview:

> If a child is rubbed daily with the oil directly the case of scarlet fever is discovered, no one else will contract the fever, and there is no need of going to the expense of quarantining the house or separating the child suffering from the fever from its parents.

There is so much in this statement that is antagonistic to the views held by practical sanitarians of to-day and so directly opposed to our present knowledge of the subject and so dangerous in its teaching that I am quite sure Dr. Murphy simply refers to this theory as one of the many presented at the above meeting without giving it his personal indorsement.

Probably no diseases have been more carefully studied than scarlet fever and measles because of the frequency of their occurrence and the dangers that follow in their wake, largely in the form of serious and distressing sequelae. In neither disease has a specific organism been identified, therefore it is only by the most careful observation and practical experience that we are able to add to our knowledge of the means by which they are transmitted from one person to another. Formerly it was believed by the medical profession that both scarlet fever and measles, particularly the former, were transmitted chiefly by "desquamation." This refers to the scaling off of the dead skin which practically always occurs in these diseases. Curiously enough there has been but little scientific evidence to support this theory beyond the fact that desquamation to some extent is always present, and therefore offers rather a plausible explanation for the transmission of infection.

During the past fifteen or twenty years indisputable evidence has been presented that our theories regarding the means by which certain infectious diseases are transmitted are wrong. Yellow fever was formerly believed to be caused by infected articles such as clothing, baggage, &c.; now we know that it is transmitted only by a variety of the mosquito called the Stegomyia. Malaria was attributed to poisoned air, but it is really due to infection transmitted by another variety of the mosquito, the Anopheles. Plague, which was supposed to be caused by the transmission of the infectious organism through the medium of various articles, is probably caused chiefly by infected rats through the medium of fleas which infest them. More recently satisfactory proof has been presented indicating that typhus fever is transmitted by the body louse and not by clothing, bedding, &c. During this period of careful study as to the cause of infectious diseases investigators have slowly but surely obtained satisfactory evidence that the principal causes of infection in scarlet fever and measles are the discharges from the nose, throat, and ears, some of which are always present during the activity of these diseases. Furthermore, there is reason to believe that continued investigation will show that desquamation is a negligible factor in the transmission of infection.

The medical profession now recognizes the danger from the various discharges, and the most scrupulous care is taken in their prompt destruction and the most careful attention is given to cleanliness in connection with the patient, particularly the hands of the attendants, in order that infection may not be transmitted through this source. The value of this modern method of treatment has been fully confirmed both in private and hospital practice.

I am not familiar with the statistics to which Dr. Murphy refers, and which were presented at the meeting of the International Medical Association, relative to the use of eucalyptus oil, but I do know that it would be impossible to present definite and satisfactory proof in confirmation of this theory without a most careful and extended investigation on the part of sanitarians throughout the world, which would necessarily involve a period of years. I am sure this has not occurred.

Instead of the careful isolation of a scarlet fever patient during the active stage of the disease, which is regarded as the most effective means of preventing its extension, and in place of the utmost care in the prompt destruction of the discharges and cleanliness of the hands, as well as cleanliness in other directions, the theory to which Dr. Murphy refers substitutes the anointment of the patient with eucalyptus oil as the preventive measure. Even if this agent has definite germicidal action when applied to the skin, which may be questioned, it would in no way avert the danger from the discharges which constitute the principal media of infection.

I am quite sure that the theory to which Dr. Murphy refers will gain little or no headway in the medical profession, the members of which so fully understand the danger of infectious discharges in connection with the care of scarlet fever; however, with the public the statement that eucalyptus oil has been recommended for treatment in this disease is quite apt to discourage prompt medical attendance upon the patient, which should always be secured, and will rather give license to home treatment and belittle the necessary isolation of the patient, the prompt destruction of discharges, and careful attention to cleanliness, the most potent factors in the prevention of this disease.

Bachelors by Necessity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Two or three days ago you published a good letter from a "Bachelor Girl"—as she prefers to call herself—and yesterday The Herald printed a few quite fair lines from a "Bachelor."

The latter called attention to what has frequently come under my own observation, that not a few men remain bachelors by no means from choice springing from self-indulgence, but on the contrary from altruism, and because the claims of kindred on their resources are too great.

Man and Monkey.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask a question, timely on account of certain lectures recently given in England? If man is descended from the monkey family, why does the monkey never improve? He just remains a monkey. WILSON AIMS TO WIN SENATE'S SUPPORT

Will Urge Democrats Opposing Currency Bill Not to Obstruct Party Programme.

NO REPORT BEFORE OCT. 6

Long Delay Foreseen—Republicans Back Country Banks' Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—In view of the open opposition of a majority of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency to the Owen-Glass Money bill, President Wilson has decided to bring his personal influence to bear upon Senators in the most direct manner possible. After talking last night with Senator Reed of Missouri, who has expressed disapproval of the measure, he is expected soon to invite Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska to confer with him on the subject. These Senators and others who are opposed to rushing the passage of the bill will be urged not to obstruct the party programme. Similar tactics were found effective in regard to particular items in the Tariff bill, and the friends of the Administration, in the face of many discouraging signs, hope that they will also prove successful in currency legislation.

The difficulties confronting the bill in the Senate were strikingly indicated to-day when Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, admitted that a report from his committee could not be expected before Monday, Oct. 6, while it might be still further delayed. Mr. Owen has been the bill's most optimistic supporter in the Senate, and until a short time ago gave the assurance that his committee would report the measure to the Senate almost immediately following its passage by the House.

Mr. Owen's statement to-day is in closer accord with the forecasts of other members of the committee. But how a favorable report is to be wrung from the committee, which is now seven to five against the measure, is as much a problem as ever. The recalcitrant Democrats of the committee might be swung back into line by caucus action. But President Wilson and Mr. Owen, apparently unwilling to stake the fate of the measure upon slender Democratic control, have announced that there would be no currency caucus in the Senate.

Owen's Statement.

"The passage of the banking and currency bill by the House of Representatives," said Mr. Owen, "after weeks of debate in the Democratic caucus and discussion at length in the House itself, argues prompt and favorable action in the Senate.

"Every student of this question will agree on the necessity and urgency for prompt action. It has been six years since we had the gigantic national calamity in the panic of 1907, which led to the creation of the Monetary Commission, and its proposed remedy upon which the Government expended out of the public treasury nearly $300,000.

"The retiring Administration, through Franklin MacVeagh and his annual report of Sept. 2, 1912, declared that the most important fact in connection with the banking and currency legislation was its urgency, emphasizing the extreme necessity of protecting this country against a repetition of the frightful catastrophe of 1907.

"The President of the United States appealed in person to the House and Senate urging them to lay aside their personal comforts and conveniences and perform this great duty so urgently needed by the country, and the Senate and House have responded in a very patriotic spirit.

"The Senate hearings have already taken over 500 pages and the Senate Committee is giving the matter daily consideration. The full committee will be present on Monday, when we shall hear Samuel Untermyer, who, as counsel, drafted the Pujo report.

"I hope to see a report on the bill within two weeks of next Monday, but of course, it is difficult in the extreme to forecast with precision the time which will be required."

If the bill is not reported before Oct. 6, or some later date, it is certain that it will not be passed by the Senate before November is well advanced. Divergence of opinion as to the bill is so wide that the regular session may begin before the bill passes. It seems almost certain that, if the bill is put upon its passage, it will carry various amendments, and these will tend to delay final enactment by sending the bill to conference.

Republicans Averse.

Mr. Owen has at various times expressed the hope that the bill would find material support among the radical Republicans. But so far that support in the Senate has not shown itself. Criticism of the measure from the smaller country banks seems to have completely checked advocates from that quarter.

Mr. Bristow of Nebraska, the radical Republican member of the committee, has bitterly denounced the bill, and there seems little likelihood that Mr. La Follette of Wisconsin will support it.

The country banks of Wisconsin are almost unanimously against the measure, according to a statement made today before the Banking and Currency Committee by Andrew J. Frame, President of the Waukesha National Bank of Waukesha, Wis. Mr. Frame told the committee that he had sent out 450 letters to Wisconsin banks, mostly in the rural districts, asking if they would voluntarily join the proposed monetary system. Of the answers, 300 were emphatic "noes." Only 2 said "yes" outright, and 9 answered in the affirmative with qualifications.

Mr. Frame said that the burdens imposed by the Owen-Glass bill were incommensurate with the returns the country banks could expect from its operation. He suggested that the assessment on member banks for subscription to the capital stock of the regional reserve banks be reduced from 20 per cent.

TELLS OF FINDING ANOTHER RAPHAEL

Lawyer Here Is Commissioned to Sell It for Its St. Petersburg Owner.

FIXES PRICE AT $250,000

Painting Is a Madonna Originally Bought, Says the Owner, for an Insignificant Sum.

Some American with a hobby for collecting old masters regardless of cost has a chance to acquire a genuine Raphael, according to Elias Rosenthal, an attorney, of 302 Broadway. He has been commissioned by his friend, Dr. Messala W. Pogorelski of St. Petersburg, the possessor of the picture, to negotiate the sale here of a long lost and only recently discovered Raphael Madonna. The asking price is 500,000 rubles, about $250,000.

The romance of the long-lost Raphael is told in vivid fashion by M. Schebulev, the art critic, in a recent issue of "Solntze-Rossii," or "The Sun of Russia," a monthly magazine devoted to art. Here is a translation of his account:

"In the history of art, the following lines will be written. The beginning of the twentieth century was notable for two incidents, one the pitiful disappearance of Leonardo da Vinci's La Gioconda, the other the joyful discovery of the new Madonna of Raphael Sanzio in St. Petersburg. I will tell its story as it was told to me by the happy owner, Dr. M. W. Pogorelski:

"'This painting was bought at the end of the eighties in the last century from a little monastery in Northern Italy, by the rector of the Riga Educational Circuit, V. K. Krause, a lover and admirer of Italian art, for a comparatively small sum of money. It was sold as a production from the brush of an unknown but undoubtedly great painter, and was sold together with the frame as we see it to-day.

"'I obtained the painting in 1895. The painting is in oil and measures 87 by 72 centimeters, (approximately 35 by 29 inches.)

"'The original painting was spoiled by several cracks in the canvas, running both vertically and horizontally, and, generally speaking, the original canvas was almost destroyed, in consequence of which about 100 or 150 years ago it was pasted upon a new canvas.

"The restorer to whom it was intrusted at the time apparently did not try to hide several of the cracks but preferred to fix the painting in a primitive manner by filling up the cracks with oil paint and then smoothing it over as best he knew how, thereby blurring to a certain extent the contours of the painting. In other words, that vandal restorer covered almost the whole of Raphael's original painting with a coat of oil paint.

"'Luckily, the original lacquer proved to be very durable and strong and prevented the new coat from becoming chemically assimilated by the paint of the original painter.

Put on New Canvas.

"'In 1912, when I noticed that this surface paint began to crack, I invited M. Sidorow, the senior restorer of the Imperial Hermitage, to inspect the painting and ordered him to transfer it upon a new canvas. Sidorow, who is a specialist in the transplanting of paintings from canvas and wood, performed his work in a remarkable manner.

"'After this work was done an unexpected discovery was made, which created a sensation in the art world. After Sidorow had removed from the surface of the painting all the lacquer and paint applied by the various restorers, the bared picture appeared in a remarkable state of preservation and original beauty.

"At once it was apparent to the experts that the painting was almost identical with the Madonna of Raphael known under the name of Madonna Niccolini, or the large Cowper Madonna. (It once was the property of the Countess Niccolini, and much later belonged to Lord Cowper.) Thus was established the first fact, the composition of our Madonna belongs to Raphael.

"The question then arises, are the previously known Madonna Niccolini and the newly found Madonna both originals or is one a copy, and, if so, which is the copy, or, if both are originals, which was painted first?

"'It will not dispute the genuineness of the Cowper Madonna; it was never doubted by any one. It would seem that either the Cowper Madonna or ours must be a copy, but that is impossible for our Madonna, although of the type of the Niccolini Madonna, in details shows several differentiations which the copyist, no matter how unconscientious, would not have made. For instance, in the Cowper painting the background is the blue sky of heaven, while our background is brown.

"'Our Madonna is plainer, more primitive than the Cowper, and that speaks for the fact that it is older, and that the Cowper Madonna is a variation, although authentic.'"

Value of the Painting.

After referring to the fact that the opinion of experts as to its authenticity was subsequently corroborated by photographic proof, a fraction of a Raphael signature being discovered by photographic means along the edge of the Madonna's bodice, M. Schebulev concludes:

"To speak of the market value of this newly discovered Raphael is useless—one million, two million, three million rubles, perhaps. But what a joy that in exchange for the lost Gioconda this unknown Madonna of Raphael came down into the bereaved art world!"

In a statement prepared for the owner, M. Sidorow, the renovator to the Imperial Hermitage, who brought the lost Madonna to light, says of his work:

"The restoration was begun by me in May and terminated in December of the year 1912, and was performed in my studio in the Imperial Hermitage of St. Petersburg.

"During the process of restoration of this Madonna it was found that the canvas had been lined, and, judging by the old condition of this lining, it must have been applied at least 100 to 150 years ago. The original canvas, however, was found to be very worn out, of still more remote antiquity, entirely in keeping with canvases of Raphael's epoch. This canvas was found to be in many places worn out, with large rents."

Mr. Rosenthal, to whom the owner, Dr. Pogorelski, has intrusted the negotiations for the disposal of the Raphael in this country, said yesterday that he expected to dispose of the painting in this country without difficulty at the owner's price of 500,000 rubles.

"If J. P. Morgan had been alive I would have sold it within twenty-four hours," he said. "Mr. Morgan was a cinch to approach on matters of art. And he never lost anything by being approachable, either. He knew his business."

KAISER HONORS AMERICANS.

Gifts of Gems to the MacLennans Recently at the Royal Opera.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Emperor William recently presented to Mr. and Mrs. Francis MacLennan, Americans, who had sung at the Berlin Royal Opera House for five years, handsome presents as a mark of his esteem. The occasion was their departure for Hamburg, where they are now engaged.

Mrs. MacLennan, whose stage name is Florence Easton, received a brooch composed of rubies and diamonds, and marked with the imperial monogram. Her husband received a scarfpin of sapphires and diamonds.

The gifts were acompanied by a letter from Count von Hülsen, the Impresario General, saying that the Emperor wanted the Americans to be assured of his sincere appreciation of their "loyal services."

The MacLennans have already won a warm place in the affections of Hamburg opera goers, having appeared thus far in "Aida," "Mme. Butterfly," "Pagliacci," and "Tannhäuser."

KEITH'S NAME NOT IN CASE.

His Circuit Not Mentioned in the "Vaudeville Trust" Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Reports received here yesterday that Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger of Philadelphia had authorized his attorney to file charges with the Department of Justice that Marcus Loew and others had formed a theatrical vaudeville trust in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law were untrue, as far as they mentioned the name of B. F. Keith, the vaudeville circuit owner.

Neither Mr. Keith nor any of his theatrical enterprises appears in the charges in any way. It is stated authoritatively that they are not mentioned or involved in the complaint and that there not only is no intention of mentioning them but also no warrant for doing so.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Fred. G. Nixon-Nirdlinger denied to-day that the recent sale of Chase's Theatre in Washington to B. F. Keith, the vaudeville circuit owner, was in any way conected with his complaint against the so-called vaudeville trust. Nixon-Nirdlinger said he did not have now and never has had any business relations with Mr. Keith.

DR. F. W. F. ROSS, NOTED SURGEON, DIES

HIS TUBERCULOSIS CURE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross died here to-day.

Dr. F. W. Forbes Ross in 1912 announced the discovery of a new local anesthetic in The Lancet. He claimed for his anesthetic that it was a harmless and non-poisonous antidote to shock. Dr. Ross was an M. D. of Edinburgh University, a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, and a well-known London surgeon. He was at one time clinical assistant of the North London Consumption Hospital and civil surgeon to His Majesty's Horse Guards Hospital.

In 1907 he advocated in a letter in The Medical Record the putting of consumptives on a diet of the raw flesh of cattle known to have tuberculosis. He argued that the lean raw flesh of such animals contained in it an anti-toxin generated in the blood, which is capable of assisting tuberculous patients in their fight against the disease.

BRYAN PRAISES LAWMAKERS

Says Democrats Deserve Credit for Voting Tariff Reform.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 19.—Secretary of State Bryan, in his Commoner to-day, in a signed statement under the caption, "They Listened to the People," commends Democracy for the passage of the Tariff bill.

"Only in the case of two articles," says Mr. Bryan, "has there been any considerable effort to retain for an important product the benefits of a protective tariff—namely, sugar and wool." Further, he comments:

"The Democratic Representatives from the wool-growing States should be applauded for the courage which they have manifested in defying the clamor of special privilege and casting in their lot with the overburdened masses.

"The sugar interests have made an even more stubborn resistance to the demands of the tariff reformers, due largely to the fact that this industry is distributed over a large number of States and is concentrated in its benefits. And here, too, the President won because of the overwhelming demand of those who have borne a heavy burden for the benefit of the relatively limited number who have profited by the tax. Those Senators from the sugar States who have stood for free sugar should receive the plaudits of the taxpayers. They have been faithful to the many rather than subservient to the few.

"When the history of the present tariff struggle is written, credit will have to be conceded to nearly all the Democratic Senators and members for resisting the temptation to put local interests above the general welfare. In the discussions of the tariff question heretofore allowances had to be made for the pressure of local beneficiaries upon Democrats, who, in principle, repudiated the doctrine of protection but, in practice, found it difficult to make their votes harmonized with their speeches.

"It is cheering to the legislator to receive commendation from the rank and file of his constituents—and he is entitled to it when he votes right—to offset the abuse which is sure to come from those who recognize that they can no longer convert the Government into a private asset in business."

MORE SPEED TRAPS SET IN NEW JERSEY

Two Recently Established on Route to Coast—News of the Road for Motorists.

Much speeding on the routes to the Jersey Coast of late has brought into existence two new speed traps. One of these is on St. George's Avenue, one mile north of Rahway, on the route by way of Newark, Elizabeth, &c., to the coast resort section. The other is in South Amboy. Near the first of these snares a detour is necessary, which has been posted by the New Jersey Motor Club. This detour is at Rahway, on the road from Newark to points to the south. A turnout is made at St. George's Avenue, and the signs are followed to a point where this thoroughfare can be taken up once more at the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks. Another necessary detour, reported by the touring department of the Automobile Club of America, is on the main route between Bound Brook and New Brunswick. Union Avenue should be followed to the cemetery, then a left turn made into Main Street, followed by another left turn with the trolley tracks, which are followed to the New Brunswick road. The route from Newark to Plainfield by way of Westfield also requires a detour near Fanwood. Resurfacing work on the Hudson County Boulevard is going on apace, and this popular highway will soon be in excellent condition.

Changes will soon be put in operation on the timetables of the boats operated on Lake George and Lake Champlain. Most of the Sunday and extra trips were discontinued shortly after Labor Day. On Lake George through trips were discontinued on Sept. 9. The steamer Mohican will perform longer service during the month of October. On Lake Champlain the through service between Plattsburg and Montcalm Landing, Baldwin, and Lake George will be discontinued on Sept. 27. The steamer Ticonderoga will perform longer service on Lake Champlain between Burlington and Plattsburg until about Dec. 13.

In addition to the many miles of hard-surfaced roads which have been constructed during the past two years, the country roads of New England are more satisfactory for motoring than they have been in several years. Practically all the highways in the upper part of the State of Vermont have received the attention of the State Highway Department, to their very great betterment. There are, of course, many grades of varying degrees, but the roads are all graded and are kept in generally good condition. Some sections of New Hampshire abound in good automobile roads. In the vicinity of Pike there are more than 2,000 miles of attractive highways within a radius of twenty miles. There has been a sufficient amount of rain during the Summer months to keep the country roads in prime condition.

The route department of the Touring Club of America announces an important detour on the Shore Line to Boston, the main road between New London and Mystic, Conn., being closed for construction. The following alternate is offered, the roads being good and the scenery superior, if anything, to that on the regular route:

Programmes are being arranged in many cities and towns along the route for a dedication of the Lincoln Highway on the night of Friday, Oct. 31. There will be parades, old-fashioned torchlight processions, concerts, motion pictures of road building and many speeches, according to present plans. At these meetings it is planned to broach the scheme of renaming each section "the Lincoln Way." Local designations are to be dropped. Markers will individualize the highway. These will be of red, white and blue, a strip of white, fifteen inches wide, separating three-inch strips of red and blue, respectively. A letter "L" in blue will be on the white section. The first of these markers was placed, on Monday, at Clinton, Iowa. It is planned to have school children plant trees along the route in the thirteen states traversed by the proposed road on Arbor Day, 1914.

The automobile school of the West Side Y. M. C. A. has purchased two of the new Knight sleeve-valve motors for use in its course of instruction. One of these is a four-cycle and the other a one-cycle motor.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following reports of Assistant Chief Examiner Murray:

Transmitting the application of George C. Hogan for a special examination for promotion to Captain, who submits a certificate of the Medical Officer of the Fire Department showing that he was ill on the day of the regular examination and remained away under orders. Mr. Murray recommends that a special examination be given; also that the Fire Department be informed that the Commission will receive applications for special examination from all persons legally entitled thereto, provided they are made through the regular channels of the department, up to October 1, and that all members of the department be so notified.

Relative to a letter from the Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity in which he says that the promotion list for Second to Third Grade Clerk, Division of Lamps and Lighting, contains two names that should appear upon the list for the Division of Gas and Electricity—George Bittler and Morris Goldberg—and requesting that the list be separated accordingly. Mr. Murray recommends that the request be denied.

Recommending that the Commission deny the request of the Police Commissioner for an examination for promotion to Third Grade Stenographer and Typewriter, to be open to Second Grade Clerks, because such clerks are not considered to be in line of promotion to Stenographer and Typewriter.

Relative to the request of the President of the Bronx that the name of Joseph J. Lindon, Axcman, be certified for promotion to Rodman, Grade B, on the list on which he stands third. Mr. Murray says there is one name on a preferred list for Rodman, Grade C, and recommends that both lists be certified.

Recommending that the following requests for promotion examinations be granted: Department of Public Charities, from First to Second Grade Clerk; Bureau of Licenses, Mayor's Office, from Inspector of Taxicabs to Taximeter Expert; Office of the President of Queens, from Typewriting Copyist, Second Grade, to Stenographer and Typewriter, Third Grade.

Competitors will be examined in practical questions in heating and ventilating, drawing, design, training and experience.

Applicants must have had not less than four years of practical experience in the designing or installation of heating and ventilating systems in large buildings. A technical degree in heating and ventilating engineering will be considered equivalent to not over two and one-half years of the four specified. The age requirement is 18 years or over on the date of the examination.

Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

EDUCATION NOTES.

City Supt. Maxwell will submit at next Wednesday's meeting of the Board of Education the report of Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training.

In a report just made to the Board of Education the Local School Board of District 44, Queens Borough, says that the condition of Public School 90, Second Street, near Shaw Avenue, Woodhaven, and Public School 61, Elm Street, near Union Place, Brooklyn Hills, is disgraceful. It says also that there is no luncheon at the Richmond Hill High School for pupils who come there from a distance, and asks: "How do you expect children to be proficient in their studies if their empty stomachs or stomachs filled with lollypops or popcorn?"

The Committee on Studies of the Board of Superintendents is preparing new courses in history, nature study, hygiene, and physical training.

Under the law which went into effect last January a child may leave school and go to work at the age of 14 years, provided he has attained the prescribed grade in his studies and has received what are called "working papers" from the Board of Health. Without these "working papers" he cannot give up his studies for work, but must remain at school until his sixteenth year.

LABOR LOBBY ACTIVE, LITTLEFIELD FOUND

Gompers Ran Powerful One from 1899 to 1908, Ex-Congressman Tells Committee.

WITH N. A. M. TO OFFSET IT

Denies Association Aided His 1906 Fight, as Mulhall Said, but Admits Individual Members Did.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The House Lobby Committee abandoned work on its report to-day long enough to hear former Representative Charles E. Littlefield of Maine, who, according to Martin Mulhall, former lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers, was one of the chief allies of that organization in the House.

Mr. Littlefield testified that, beginning with his entrance to Congress in 1899 until he resigned in 1908, he found "an active, energetic, and powerful labor lobby headed by Samuel Gompers." When Gompers opposed legislation, Mr. Littlefield said, many members of the House found it convenient to side with labor. Mr. Littlefield said he did not intend to criticise members of the House for their position on labor bills.

"But," he explained, "when Gompers and the labor people became active the tall timber was thickly populated and there was plenty of space in the open."

Mr. Littlefield frankly told the committee that his views on labor legislation coincided with those of the manufacturers, and that early in his Congressional career he gladly accepted the aid of the National Association of Manufacturers through Marshall Cushing, then its Washington representative.

"Cushing was doing what he could to counteract the influence of Gompers and the Federation of Labor," he said.

Mulhall, he continued, went to his district in 1906 to help in his campaign.

"The more I saw of Mulhall," said Mr. Littlefield, "the less I liked him. I told the National Association of Manufacturers not to send him to my district again."

Mr. Littlefield added that in this campaign he faced the opposition of Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor. He denied Mulhall's testimony that the National Association of Manufacturers spent $60,000 in his district in the campaign. He produced an affidavit from the cashier of a Rockland, Me., bank, where Fred Wight, the Treasurer of the District Republican Committee, banked at the time, showing deposits of $20,660. He added that part of this money came from individuals who were members of the National Association of Manufacturers, but contributed as an individual and not over contributed, and said money went to support the State and county ticket as well as to help him.

Mr. Littlefield asked permission to make a statement about Irvin Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin, who was Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee when Mr. Littlefield was one of its conspicuous members.

Mr. Littlefield said that he had known Mr. Jenkins for years, and that he thought it only proper, since he was dead and could not speak for himself, that some one should defend his character. He said he believed Mr. Jenkins to have been a man of the highest integrity and honor. He referred to the testimony of Mulhall that the National Association of Manufacturers had him appointed a Judge after his retirement from Congress.

"I know when he was appointed Judge," he said. "I know the National Association of Manufacturers had nothing to do with it. I saw him when he came back to this country." Then he added, as his voice broke and he fumbled for his handkerchief, "and I know that he died a poor man."

Former Representative John J. Gardiner, probably the last witness to be heard by the committee, denied many of Mulhall's statements charging the things he did or did not do at Mulhall's dictation when Chairman of the House Labor Committee, and that he named a sub-committee of his committee at the dictation of James A. Emery, Washington representative of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"No man," said he, "neither the Speaker, nor a representative of the National Association of Manufacturers, nor of the American Federation of Labor ever suggested any men for sub-committees of the Labor Committee while I was Chairman."

Mr. Gardiner denied also that he shelved with a sub-committee an eight-hour bill that Mulhall said he buried to avoid the anger of the National Association of Manufacturers. He said he did not remember any given bill in his campaign in 1910 by the National Association of Manufacturers, although he did see Mulhall in his district several times in that period.

FAVOR LABOR SAFETY BILL.

Committee Decides to Indorse New Measure Proposed by Mann.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The Mann bill for the creation of a Bureau of Labor Safety—to serve as a great Federal clearing house for the dissemination of advice on safety plans and devices of all kinds—will be favorably reported by the House Committee on Labor early next Winter. Mr. Mann explained to the committee to-day the merits of his bill and found the members unanimously in favor of it.

The bill contemplates the creation of this new bureau as part of the new Department of Labor. Representative Lewis of Maryland, Chairman of the Labor Committee, suggested that the proposed bureau be amalgamated with the existing Federal Bureau of Mines, and that both be placed under the jurisdiction of the Department of Labor. The Bureau of Mines is now under the Interior Department.

Mr. Lewis thought the transfer of the Mines Bureau to the Department of Labor not only would be logical, but would relieve the Secretary of the Interior of a great deal of work. Secretary Lane is ill in California, and his breakdown is attributed to overwork.

The bill provides for a Commissioner of Labor Safety, at $4,500 a year, and the new bureau is to investigate and examine labor safety plans and devices of all kinds. It also would be the duty of the bureau to gather, compile, and publish useful information concerning the use of labor safety devices.

Mr. Mann said to-day that he thought the country had reached the condition where it was necessary to think a little of flesh and blood as well as of profits. For years, he said, the country had gone ahead developing industrially and mechanically rather than along lines of conservation. The industries of the country had put in vast quantities of fine machinery without paying much attention to its safety aspects.

"The time has now come," said Mr. Mann, "when we have got to face this situation."

Mr. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, wrote to the committee recommending the Mann bill. Mr. Wilson told of what had been done abroad along this line and said that some countries had established Government bureaus which had strong police powers in the matter of labor safety.

"Our form of government," said Secretary Wilson, "would not permit of the establishment of a Federal Bureau, having police powers, to regulate the use of safety devices except in those classes of industry which come under Federal jurisdiction, such as interstate commerce. For years Congress has exercised jurisdiction in the regulation of safety devices to be used by interstate transportation companies. The greatest value which would accrue from the establishment of a Federal Bureau of Safety would be that it would act as a clearing house for all the information available in the various States and foreign countries. Performing this function, it would be of immense value, not only to the wage workers but to the country generally. I therefore recommend that the bill be passed."

Secretary Wilson said that in Europe much attention had been given accident prevention, both by factory prevention departments and by associations of employers.

INCREASE IN PEACH YIELD.

Falling Off in Other Crops Is Shown by State Reports.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—A marked increase in the yield of peaches and a falling off in various other crops of the State are shown by reports received recently by the State Department of Agriculture. The lake peach belt in Western New York is 85 per cent. of last year's crop—the largest ever grown—and the peach-growing counties of the Hudson Valley show percentages at least double that of a year ago.

Corn is very short, averaging 63 per cent. of last year's crop, which itself was short. The hay crop for the State as a whole is light. Buckwheat shows a marked falling off from last year.

The yield of wheat, rye, oats and barley practically is the same as in 1912. The severe frost of last week seriously affected buckwheat, beans, and late potatoes in various sections.

Apples, Fall, 44; Winter, 37; Baldwins, 32; greenings, 47; pears, Bartletts, 96; Kiefers, 78; other varieties, 86; plums, 64; peaches, 118; quinces, 64; grapes, 52; potatoes, early, 55; late, 62; beans, 68; cabbage, 53; hay, 83; corn, 63; wheat, 95; rye, 92; oats, 92; barley, 93; buckwheat, 67; hops, 78; alfalfa, 825.

NEW JERSEY'S WATERWAYS.

Meeting to Formulate Plans for Their Development.

In response to a strong demand from practically every section of New Jersey the State Chamber of Commerce has accepted the task of formulating a State policy for the development of New Jersey's waterways. Boards of Trade, business houses, and individuals in every community which is affected by existing or proposed waterways will participate in a public meeting called for 1:30 P. M. Friday, Sept. 26, in the offices of the chamber, in Jersey City.

J. Spencer Smith of Tenafly, President of the New Jersey Harbor Commission, will speak on "New Jersey's Greater Harbor and Transportation Facilities," Curtis R. Burnett of Newark, ex-President of the Newark Board of Trade, under the title of "Newark Bay Development," will touch upon the interests of the several cities contiguous to Newark Bay. Mayor Donnelly of Trenton, President of the New Jersey Ship Canal Commission, will show the benefits accruing to New Jersey when the great chain of inland waterways is completed. The subject of his address is "New Jersey's Relation to the Intra-coastal Waterway Project." Following this there will be a general discussion led by George B. Gifford of Bayonne.

NORTH WESTERN GAINS.

Earnings for Common 9.82 Per Cent. Against 7.43 Last Year.

The Chicago & North Western Railway Company earned gross revenue in the fiscal year ended on June 30 of $83,035,921, an increase of $9,837,329 over the preceding year. Operating expenses required $58,252,780, and there was left for dividends, after meeting taxes, rentals, depreciation and sinking fund charges, as well as fixed charges, $14,675,023, a gain of $3,207,692 over 1912. There remained for the common stock after paying the usual 8 per cent on the preferred issue, the equivalent of 9.82 per cent. against 7.43 per cent. last year.

The annual report to be issued to-day shows that 56.50 per cent. of operating costs, or more than $32,000,000 was paid out for labor, as against 57.59 per cent. in the previous year. Maintenance of way and structures demanded the expenditure of $11,500,000, two large items being for being 79,400 tons of rails and 2,717,525 new ties. Maintenance of equipment cost $11,568,496 against $5,569,853 in 1912.

The balance sheet showed total assets amounting to $413,588,846, of which property investment represented $336,655,000. Working assets were tabulated at $40,189,253. Profit and loss surplus amounted to $56,438,744, after the account had been credited with $3,775,000 for 1913.

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway Company, a large portion of whose stock is owned by the North Western, reported for the year total operating revenue of $15,135,426, a gain over 1912. Net earnings amounted to $2,084,603, an increase of $194,350.

SUES STRAUSS & CO.

Joshua Van Veen, Ex-Partner, Seeks Return of His Stock.

Joshua Van Veen, who was a stockholder in the corporation of Strauss & Co., Inc., makers of electric and commercial signs, and who held 100 shares therein, and previous to its incorporation was one of the partners in the firm, has started action against Ben Strauss and William Yaeger, stockholders of the company, to return to him 100 shares of stock. A complaint was served upon the defendants, in which it was alleged that in December, 1911, Mr. Van Veen demanded that he should be elected a director of the company, and in reply the defendants said Mr. Van Veen's stock would be worthless unless he sold it to them, and that the book value of the stock was $30 a share. The complaint alleged that the defendants made fraudulent entries and credited money to themselves so as to keep the books from showing a profit.

ST. PAUL PREPARING TO UNIFY ITS DEBT

With Bond Issue of $110,000,000, General Mortgage for $600,000,000 May Be Made.

QUITE THE USUAL WAY NOW

Great Northern, Burlington, and New York Central Have Adopted This Same Financial Plan.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway has under consideration a comprehensive financial plan intended to unify the funded debt of the system and to provide for its needs for a long time to come. The scheme is still in its preliminary stages, but the first steps toward carrying it into effect may be taken at the annual meeting of the stockholders, to be held Sept. 27.

The size of the mortgage and the question whether it should be made to cover the Pacific Coast extension as well as the old lines of the St. Paul system were said yesterday to be among the questions which were still undetermined. It was believed, however, in banking circles that the unification of the system's funded debt would not be confined to the old system, but would take in the Puget Sound lines as well.

The St. Paul now has outstanding a total of $455,000,000 of bonds, including the bonds on the Pacific Coast extension, which amount to more than $178,000,000. Out of this total, however, the company holds in its own treasury not less than $156,000,000. Its bonds in the hands of the public fall just a little short of $300,000,000. The new bond issue, according to the terms which are now being discussed, would provide, however, not only for the outstanding bonds, but probably for the full amount of the various classes of bonds which have heretofore been authorized. In round numbers about $110,000,000 of bonds have been authorized above the amount already issued to the public, or held in the treasury. This brings the total amount of bonds up to $565,000,000. If all of these bonds are to be covered by the new mortgage, as is thought likely, with some margin for future issue in addition to the bonds already authorized and unsold, the amount of the new issue might easily be as high as $600,000,000. It is not expected that the St. Paul will make any effort to refund its existing bond issues, but will leave them to be provided for as they mature by issues of the new general mortgage bonds through which the funded debt of the system will be gradually unified.

The step proposed by the St. Paul is in keeping with plans which have been adopted by other railroads for the simplification of their bonded indebtedness. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy in 1908 authorized an issue of $500,000,000 to take care of existing bond issues and to provide for its future needs. In 1911 the Great Northern provided for a bond issue of $600,000,000, the largest ever authorized. That, too, was for the purpose of caring for all existing bonds of that road and for the raising of money from time to time required.

A somewhat similar plan is now being worked out by the New York Central, which proposes to consolidate a number of its lines now controlled through stock ownership and to place a general mortgage on the consolidated properties.

It was said yesterday that the St. Paul contemplates no early issue of bonds, and that in planning this consolidated mortgage it is merely looking to its future needs. Its present requirements, it was said, have been amply provided for by the financing arranged early in the year.

MOUNTAIN TRAFFIC LARGE.

Ontario & Western Will Need More Cars for Its New Business.

The New York, Ontario & Western Railroad Company announced in the annual report issued yesterday that passenger traffic to Summer resorts along its lines increased so substantially in the past season that accommodations were difficult to supply. The purchase of many new passenger cars will have to be made, the report said, before the next rush to the mountains begins.

The company earned in the year ended on June 30 a total revenue of $9,454,349, a gain of $945,405. Operating expenses and taxes were exactly $335 more than in 1912, at $6,449,041, and there was left for the common stock $1,211,633, the equivalent of 2.08 per cent. on outstanding shares as compared with 0.81 last year.

Vice President Kerr reported that while the demand for anthracite coal was more active than usual in the Spring and Summer months, production was hampered by petty strikes which restricted tonnage carried over the road. He expressed a hope that a moderate increase of rates, at least, would soon be allowed without further advance in wages, or it would soon not be possible to make all needed additions and betterments to railroad property.

JERSEY CENTRAL EARNINGS.

Equivalent to 26.73 Per Cent. on the Outstanding Shares.

Gross earnings of the Central Railroad of New Jersey amounted to $30,326,411 in the fiscal year ended on June 30, a gain of $2,496,721 over the preceding year. Net income was reported in the annual statement issued yesterday as $14,195,181, and a balance for the stock amounting to $7,332,882 remained after taxes and fixed charges had been paid. This was equivalent to 26.73 per cent. on the outstanding shares, as compared with 21.90 per cent. in 1912. Dividends aggregating $3,292,416 were paid, and the surplus of $4,040,466 was spent entirely in additions and betterments, according to the bookkeeping shown in the statement.

The report said, however, that during the year expenditures for additions and improvements had amounted to $7,858,000, of which $1,287,000 had been charged to capital account and the remainder taken from surplus.

In the balance sheet road and equipment were valued at $5,846,000 higher than in the previous report, at $148,548,656. Total surplus was set forth as $14,137,857, and total assets reached $119,346,178.

FRISCO TO MAKE PAYMENT.

Receivers of Road Get Court Order to Pay Off $1,500,000.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 19.—Receivers for the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway system to-day were ordered by Judge Sanborn of the United States District Court to make payments of approximately $1,500,000 as principal and interest on bonds and mortgages of the company, and for extensions and operating expense. The order of the court to pay $74,000 interest due on the first mortgage of the Ozark, Cherokee Central Railway permits the company to retain a part of its line connecting the eastern and western portions of the system.

The receivers told the court that there was on hand $2,300,000 in cash to pay interest and maintain the system.

Hadley Now a Railroad Director.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 19.—President Hadley of Yale announced to-day that he had accepted his election as a Director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. He was elected at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the road Yesterday.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Rolls for Mechanical Music Fall of Reduction—Glove Boxes Free.

Wooden rolls to which were attached sheets of paper especially prepared, and perforated for the pneumatic production of music when utilized in connection with self-playing instruments, are parts of musical instruments within the meaning of the Tariff Act of 1909, according to a decision of the Board of United States General Appraisers.

Collector Mitchel exacted duty at 45 per cent. ad valorem, under paragraph 467. M. Welte & Sons, the importers, asked to pay 25 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 416 on music in sheets. The Board held that as the perforated rolls were indispensable for the operation of the instruments, the Collector had not erred.

B. Stern & Co. lost on natural leaves, dyed and prepared for ornamental purposes. Duty was taken at 60 per cent. ad valorem under the present tariff. The firm asked for a reduction on the ground that the leaves had merely been dipped in glycerine to preserve them. The Board granted free entries to paper boxes containing gloves consigned to F. B. Vandegrift & Co., under the act of 1909, as usual coverings, reversing the Collector, who had levied duty.

DRY GOODS TRADE GOOD.

Marshall Field & Co. Report Business Better Than Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

Distribution of dry goods, both for the week and for the first half of September, has developed in larger volume than during the corresponding periods a year ago, reflecting the high prices farmers are receiving for their crops, and still further emphasizing the fact of low stocks on merchants' shelves.

Our retail department shows a good gain in sales and cash receipts for the month to date. Totals of transactions in the East through our New York salesroom show a substantial gain in comparison with those of the same date in 1912.

Collections are normal, although ahead of those of the corresponding week a year ago, due to increased business. Not a great deal of differences is noted in collections from the drought affected sections.

Cotton goods prices are still very firm, and some lines of cotton dress fabrics are being placed at value. Plaids are the novelty of the season in silks, dress goods, and dress trimmings. Checks of various kinds are also good.

"The large sale of moderately priced jewelry of artistic design through dry goods stores," says the statement, "indicates a greater demand for luxuries than might be expected at this time."

TRADE PRESS MEN AT ANNUAL DINNER

AN ADVERTISING SYMPOSIUM

Need of Service to Consumers Emphasized by Prof. Cherington—Publishers' Talks To-day.

A big increase in attendance marked the second day of the eighth annual convention of the Federation of Trade Press Associations of the United States, at the Hotel Astor, yesterday. More than 500 publishers, editors, advertising men and educators were present.

The morning session was given largely to an advertising symposium, over which H. M. Wilson of the McGraw Publishing Company of this city, presided. Prof. P. T. Cherington of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard, spoke on "Advertising as a Business Force." The need of service to consumers in advertisements was the keynote of Prof. Cherington's speech. G. B. Hotchkiss, assistant professor of English at New York University, followed with a talk on advertising English. Among other things he said:

"Advertising English is not literature. The sooner this fact is taken to heart the better for the cause of good advertising. Not all advertising men realize this in practice; some of them do not recognize it in theory. I have heard very interesting discussions between advertising men of various problems of copy, and in some of these discussions the real purposes of advertising were lost sight of entirely. No greater harm can be done to advertising than by measuring it by the standards of a fine art."

Other speakers at this meeting were F. R. Davis, advertising manager of the General Electric Company; Harry Tipper, advertising manager of the Texas Company; O. H. Blackman of the Blackman-Ross Company, C. M. Wessels of the C. M. Wessels Company, H. E. Cleland, a department manager of the Hill Publishing Company; O. C. Harn, advertising manager of the National Lead Company; Dr. H. L. Hollingsworth of Columbia University, Brock Matheson of the Motor World, and Charles Shanks of the Winton Company, who demonstrated how advertising space in a trade journal should be sold, and John A. Hill, head of the Hill Publishing Company. Mr. Hill told of the relations that should exist between the trade papers and their advertisers.

"Any worth-while ad. in a worth-while paper," he said, "is part of the advertiser's selling organization, and he ought to keep in close touch with it. The advertiser and the publisher and all their employes ought to be close friends, seeking one thing—better results. The advertiser cannot afford to ignore the fact that the trade paper is a  friend, telling the reader in the text how to do things.

"The advertiser should make the most of his opportunity, not to get write-ups in the paper, but to keep the service departments of the papers he uses thoroughly posted on the laws of his business, so that they can furnish 'make-it-pay' copy."

After the advertising symposium came a business meeting, at which C. H. Root, President of the United Publishers' Corporation, told the story of The Dry Goods Economist, the oldest trade paper in the country. Mr. Hill then told the history of his publications. Mr. Hill was once a locomotive engineer, but now heads five engineering journals. A. C. Clifford outlined the evolution of the McGraw Publishing Company, speaking for J. H. McGraw. Others who spoke of growths of prominent trade papers were G. W. Cope, senior editor of 'The Iron Age;' C. Hollis, publisher of The American Lumberman, and E. A. Simmons, head of the company which publishes The Railway Age Gazette.

The afternoon session was devoted to an "educational" mass meeting, at which the speakers were H. M. Swetland, Frank Alvah Parsons, William H. Ingersoll, Dr. Talcott Williams, Richard H. Waldo, Prof. Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University, and Herbert S. Casson of the H. K. McCann Advertising Agency.

The annual dinner of the federation was given last night at the Astor, the speakers being Tom Daly, Charles F. Moore, Dr. Nacy McGee, Will Irwin and Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, and William A. Marble, President of the Merchants' Association of New York. John Clyde Oswald of The American Printer presided. The convention will close to-day with a publishers' symposium, to be led by E. R. Shaw of The Practical Engineer, Chicago.

To Tour Iowa for Currency Views.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, Sept. 19.—United States Senator W. S. Kenyon, who is visiting his home here, announces that he will tour the State to interview business men, bankers, and farmers on the currency question. He expressed the opinion that there would be no currency legislation at this session of Congress.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Business confidence is strengthening and there is slightly more disposition to extend operations further into the future. Most advices indicate a larger volume of trade than a year ago, while some industrial centers report more machinery active, with a reduction in the number of unemployed. Labor troubles exert a retarding influence in a few sections, but disturbances of a serious nature are absent. Lower temperatures have had a stimulating effect on distribution of merchandise at retail and the Fall season appears to be opening up fairly well. There is a scarcity of many staple lines of dry goods for quick delivery, and, though the demand has subsided, the higher price level is well maintained. Jobbers are doing a fair business and the recent large purchases will keep the mills busily engaged for two or three months to come.

Bradstreet's says:

As trade broadens optimism spreads, and the result for the week is a relatively cheerful trade report. Most advices indicate activity in jobbing lines or a tendency in that direction. Actual wants, following a prolonged policy of starving stocks, is the foremost factor in broadening demand. Coupled with this are a number of other activity-making characteristics. Thus, sanguine influences manifested by the cheerful feeling of visiting buyers are radiated by the marketing of crops at good prices; copious rains in Southwestern drought afflicted sections, which have improved Fall pasturage and soil conditions for seeding to Winter wheat, and stimulants afforded by Fall festivals and a somewhat enlarged turnover in retail circles, following comparatively low temperatures in the early part of the week. Though the uplift has not been uniformly favorable in all branches of trade and industry—in fact, there are quite a few laggards—it is significant that many of the returns indicate that trade, especially in dry goods, is well ahead of last year. At the same time, marketing of crops tends to slightly improve collections, about which there has been much complaint for a long time past.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

One of the specialty shops is showing white chiffon waists, in plain models, with the open neck effect. The long kimono sleeves are finished with straight, tight cuffs of black velvet edged with a frill of chiffon. The necks and fronts, to the waistline, are finished with a band of black velvet.

A new woman's coat is a three-quarter length model of orange plush. It is cut on straight lines, with the seam below the normal waistline. Long sleeves are placed in drooping shoulders, and the sleeve bottoms as well as the coat bottom are shirred with a band of skunk fur. The coat fastens with two large fancy buttons on the left side, one close to the neck and the other below the waistline. The collar is of fur.

A draped turban of purple beaver is one of the latest millinery effects in New York. Encircling the brim of this hat is a wreath of dahlias. Another turban featured by the same dealer is an elongated effect of baby lamb. On the right side is a high trimming consisting of a gold curled ostrich quill and black aigrettes.

Men's Fall waistcoats are cut with either flattened or soft-rolling collars. One model has only two lower pockets, which are placed so high that the necessity of upper pockets is done away with. Fancy waistcoats in faint stripes and indeterminate checks are coming into vogue again.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

A New French China Body.

A new French china body has been evolved by Charles Martin & Co., Limoges, France, after three years of experimenting. It is termed a "boneless" bone china by J. H. Venon, the American agent of the firm, and is made entirely of Limousin materials, instead of the clays and calcined bone usually brought into Limoges from other countries for the manufacture of bone china. The development of the new material resulted from the need of a body that would permit the application of enamel colors, a thing that the usual hard body of French china manufactured in Limoges would not do. A new palette of colors had also to be made for the decorations, but the effect is said by Mr. Venon to be well worth the time and effort that were expended in producing it. The new china will arrive in New York in time for display about Oct. 1. Its coloring is said strogily to resemble the gorgeous hues of the Sevres pâte tendre of the late eighteenth century.

Silk Buried 39 Years Still Good.

A strange and interesting relic of the Mill River flood in Massachusetts in 1874 came to light recently in the discovery on the farm owned by A. S. Warner of William Skinner & Sons, at Florence, Mass., of a quantity of sewing silk which had been washed away in the destruction of the Skinner silk mill at Skinnersville. The silk had in all probability been buried for thirty-nine years, but while the wooden spool on which it had been wound had rotted away, the silk retained its lustre and its tensile strength was apparently unimpaired. Florence is six miles from the site of the mill that was destroyed. In the Mill River flood, which, until the Johnstown flood was regarded as one of the greatest disasters of its kind in the country's history, about 150 lives were lost. The silk scattered down the valley from the Skinner mill has been coming to light at various times, the latest find weighing about a half pound. It is being shown by Mr. Warner at the local office of the Skinner firm. The last previous find occurred about sixteen months ago.

Don't Fear Clothing Competition.

A belief that is said to exist among New York tailors to the effect that there will be more foreign clothing than piece goods imported under the new tariff, was discredited yesterday by the heads of a number of large retail clothing houses. The consensus was that while imports of fabrics would undoubtedly show a considerable increase, the American taste did not tend toward foreign-made clothing, ready-to-wear overcoats, because of its inferiority. It was said by the head of one of the firms that no foreign country could build clothes that compared with the American products, and that the lower tariff rates, while they would enable the retailer to name prices about $3 lower than he could to-day, would not increase the sale of foreign garments in this country. Regarding overcoats, he said that English models were very attractive to the American trade, and that sales of those garments, under the new tariff, would undoubtedly be stimulated. He added, however, that the American manufacturers were copying the foreign coats so successfully that the trade would in the end prefer the domestic product.

Jute 1,100,000 Bales Below 1912.

According to cables received here by Smith & Schipper, American agents of Becker, Gray & Co., Calcutta, the 1913 yield of jute will amount to some 8,630,000 bales, or about 1,100,000 bales less than in 1912. This shortage, it is said, will have a direct effect on the prices of carpet yarns and twines, and will affect indirectly future quotations on bagging, linoleum and other products in which it is used. The market is said to be bare of stocks of jute, with the record price of 8 cents a pound being quoted on September-October shipments. The effect of the Calcutta cables was evident yesterday in the advance of a quarter of a cent a yard made in burlap cloth, or hessian cloth, for burlap. Reports were current of attempts to buy goods held in bond, but, from all accounts, holders were unwilling to sell to any extent in anticipation of higher prices.

Novelties in Artificial Flowers.

According to a report from Paris in Women's Wear, a novel assortment of artificial flowers are featured there for the Winter season. Chamoisine flowers, made of the rubber cloth termed "peau de chamois," are among these novelties. Single roses with foliage of chamoisine are sold for hat adornments or corsage garnitures. Among the most striking novelties are gardenias and roses made of white kid, and having the petals faced with black velvet. These kid flowers are also made in pink, mauve, light blue and other colors. The foliage is carried out in the same idea, being made of white or dyed kid, with the under side of black velvet. Large roses made of duvetyn, in various colors, are also being used for hat trimmings. A camellia made of shell pink velvet, having the outer petals outlined with iridescent beads, is another feature.

Prices Decline at End of Day—Tariff Changes' Effect on Our Foreign Trade.

Prices yielded again on the Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon, mainly, it seemed, under the pressure of realizing sales. In some parts of the list a good deal of strength had been displayed before the decline which gained headway in the last hour of trading, and the results of the dealings were somewhat checkered. There were net gains here and there among the active issues, while the burden of the day's movement was downward, as was shown by the fractional decline recorded in the average of closing prices. The news of the day could hardly be held responsible for the change in prices, which seemed to be the product of internal rather than of external factors.

Those who are disposed to minimize the element of spontaneity in such movements as have lately been occurring on the Stock Exchange were able to find a good deal in yesterday's dealings to bear out the impression that efforts were being made to maintain activity in the market and to carry along the movement which lately has been lifting prices. There seemed to be more of design than of accident in the recent frequent shifting of leadership between Reading and Union Pacific. Profits apparently were being taken in the latter yesterday, while Reading, on a larger volume of trading, moved up to a new high record for the year. The stock retained some of its advance, while Union Pacific, which it superseded in the forefront of trading, yielded more than a point of the improvement which it had shown the previous day. The recurrence of weakness in the Rock Island Company stocks and in the collateral trust bonds of the railroad company fitted in with the day's repetition of the old rumors concernig the company, but hardly with the information regarding the company's position accepted in well-informed banking quarters. The renewed decline in these issues naturally made the market more or less distrustful. In some quarters this distrust had to do with the character of the movement in the new securities rather than with the position of the company itself.

Net gains in both issues of American Woolen, which moved up to new high prices for the year, directed attention to a stock whose fortunes have been regarded as more closely linked than most with the results of the coming change in the tariff. The advance in these shares, and the fact that they were selling higher yesterday than at any previous time this year, suggested that the tariff changes, so far, at least, as the woolen industry is concerned, were more feared in the dim prospect than they are now that the passage of the Tariff bill seems very near at hand. The process of changing the country's tariff policy has undoubtedly been exerting checks in some directions, but now on the eve of the enactment of the law it is noteworthy that relatively little concern is being expressed in business circles. The statement of the country's foreign commerce for the month of August directed renewed attention to one effect of the pending change in the tariff. Exports for that month showed an increase of nearly $20,000,000 compared with August a year ago, and were the largest ever recorded for the month, but imports were smaller by $17,000,000 than in August, 1912. The excess of exports amounted to more than $50,000,000, a new high record for August. For many months imports have been held in check by the coming tariff changes. It will be interesting to note the influence which the passage of the Tariff bill will have upon the merchandise import move. Solid satisfaction is to be taken meanwhile in the continued expansion in the country's exports which have been adding largely to our merchandise credit trade balance.

Yesterday's offering of $10,000,000 Baltimore & Ohio equipment trust bonds was very quickly absorbed in a way which bore testimony to the continuance of good demand for investments. Such securities move more easily than long-term bond issues, but there has been little evidence of speculation in practically all high-grade securities to afford much encouragement. Money has hardened somewhat recently, but this does not seem to have caused any set-back in the investment demand for securities, although it has perhaps checked temporarily further expansion in that demand. The indications were that the New York banks had gained upward of $4,000,000 on the week's currency movement, and this had some effect on money market sentiment. Even should yesterday's estimates of the extent of the week's cash gain not be fully borne out by the bank statement to-day, it is evident that some of the cash which the Treasury has been turning over to the national banks of other sections in the shape of special deposits for crop-moving purposes is finding its way to New York.

Treasury Deposits.

Of the $50,000,000 which the Treasury plans to put into the banks of the South and West to facilitate the movement of the crops, $16,000,000, according to advices received from Washington yesterday, have already been placed with the banks. It was on Aug. 18 that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo issued his circular explaining the terms upon which the banks could obtain a share of this money. The Treasury statement of the following day showed that there was on deposit with the national banks $53,400,000. For two or three weeks the deposits did not increase. As late as Sept. 4 the Government's deposits with the national banks amounted to no more than $52,800,000. Since then they have increased largely, but they have been subject to minor fluctuations. The Treasury statement for last Monday showed that the Government had $63,200,000 on deposit, but the statement of the following day showed that this had fallen off to $62,600,000. The latest figures at hand show a net increase in the Government's deposits of $9,200,000, since the circular of Aug. 18 was issued.

Combining Against the Farmer.

A railroad man who is much interested in farming and who cultivates a farm of three hundred acres not very far from New York, has come to the conclusion that not all of the combinations in restraint of trade are to be found among the railroads and the great industrial concerns. He thinks that he has seen evidences of a combination among the owners of canning plants who are the only customers available for part of the product of his farm. These canning plants are not owned by any trust, but this man's experience with them suggests that they have adopted the ways of the worst of the trusts.

Manipulation Sheets.

Among the rules of the Railroad Commission of Illinois on the installation of interlocking devices, one finds that petitions for inspection must be accompanied by a document described as a "manipulation sheet." Some would find in this a suggestion which the Stock Exchange might adopt. Quite possibly it would have been more useful in the past than now, that manipulation in the stock market is officially frowned upon. What might not have been revealed in the old days if the active Stock Exchange house had to send in with their Clearing House sheets a "manipulation sheet!"

Railroad Earnings in July.

Gross earnings of seventy-four railroads increased in July to the extent of 4.98 per cent. over July, 1912, according to figures prepared by Dow, Jones & Co., while net income declined 6.45 per cent. The aggregate gross return was $214,843,655, an increase of $10,-179,705. The aggregate net return was $53,880,187, a shrinkage of $3,720,411. Fifty-eight roads reported for the month advances in gross income amounting to $10,849,939, and sixteen announced decreases aggregating $670,234. In net earnings twenty-seven companies reported a combined increase of $1,967,666, and forty-seven had a total falling off of $5,688,077.

More Expense for Oil Producers.

A letter sent out to stockholders of the California Petroleum Corporation, as an explanation for the passing of the common dividend recently, indicates that the operating companies controlled by the corporation will have to put a large portion of yearly earnings back into the business if they would keep moving ahead. Ralph Arnold, a geologist, who examined the properties and made a favorable report on them a number of months ago, has examined them again, and this is what he said in the letter: "In order to protect the earning power of the (American Oilfields) Company, its production must be maintained in times of uniformly or slowly rising prices. Assuming a yearly production of from 5,500,000 to 6,000,000 barrels, I should say it would be necessary to bring in as new production 1,200,000 to 1,300,000 barrels properly to offset the probable decrease in old production, and allow a proper factor of safety. At an estimated cost of $25,000 to $30,000 apiece, these new wells would require between $750,000 to $900,000. I would, therefore, recommend the expenditure of at least $850,000 per year, to be used for the drilling of new wells, this exclusive of the amount which is required to clean and repair old wells which is chargeable to cost of production."

Equipment Notes Quickly Taken.

The strong position of the investment security market received further demonstration yesterday than has been given recently in the increasingly confident talk of bond men about their business. The $10,000,000 Baltimore & Ohio 4½ per cent. equipment trust notes approved by the directors on Wednesday were oversubscribed about five times, and subscriptions were closed within a very few minutes after the offering was made. The Street has heard from time to time since mid-Summer that large investors, including institutions and industrial companies with large surplus funds, have been displaying a marked inclination to buy railroad equipment notes which mature serially within a few years. Three months ago the majority of securities of this sort were sold on a 5½ per cent. income basis.

Rock Island Issues Go Lower.

A resumption of selling in the Rock Island issues, which made these stocks prominent in Wednesday's trading, carried quotations for both common and preferred yesterday down to within hailing distance of their lowest prices of the year. The preferred shares, at the bottom figure of the session, were within 2 points and the common within 3 points of their minimum when the whole market was down in June. Coincident with the pressure exerted against the stocks, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific collateral trust 4s were sold down from 54⅛ to 52, and the refunding 4s touched a low level for the year at 77. The Street was again full of vague rumors regarding the company's earnings and prospects, but no tangible factor could be discovered to account for the decline. The stocks and refunding bonds made a moderate recovery toward the close.

Tobacco Stocks React at Close After a Further Sharp Advance.

The upward movement in the tobacco issues was continued yesterday until near the close, when a reaction occurred. British American tobacco rose 1½ points, to 27⅝, losing a fraction of this gain at the close. United Cigar Stores' closing quotation represented a small fractional loss, although at its highest price it was ⅝ of a point above the previous night's closing figures.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. Southern District of New York.—In the matter of EPICUREAN COMPANY, INC.,

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Lexington Avenue Corner in Trade for Morningside Heights Apartment—Big Lease Near Times Square—Dyckman Deal—Long Island Farm Sale Opposite Vanderbilt Estate—Good Leasing Market.

In accordance with the report as published earlier in the week, the Jacobs Construction Company, builders and owners of the nine-story apartment house known as the Kingscote, at 419 and 421 West 119th Street, confirmed the sale yesterday. The house occupies a plot 150 feet on the north side of the street, between Amsterdam Avenue and Morningside Drive West, by 62 feet deep. It was erected a little over a year ago, and has been held at $450,000.

The buyer is the corporation known as the 138 East Thirty-eighth Street Company, and in part payment gave the property at that designation, being the southeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, occupied by a four-story dwelling on plot 24.9 by 100. In the deal it was held at a valuation of $125,000. The Jacobs Construction Company will probably improve the corner.

$125,000 Times Square Lease.

An important lease in the Times Square section was announced yesterady by the Cross & Brown Company, which leased to S. Karpen & Brother, a Chicago furniture house, the store, basement, and first loft in the twelve-story building now being erected at the northeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street by the Times Square Improvement Company, Harry Fischel, President.

The space comprises approximately 18,500 square feet, which has been leased for an aggregate rental of $125,000.

The Times Square Improvement Company secured the Thirty-seventh Street corner under lease last March from the Hobart estate of San Francisco for a term of twenty-one years.

It was originally planned to improve this site with a loft building and theatre, but the theatre improvement was abandoned shortly after, and a twelve-story loft building was started on the enterprise. The site has a frontage of 180 feet on Broadway and 154.10 feet on Thirty-seventh Street.

More Dyckman Apartments.

A builder has purchased from Paul Halpin a plot of four lots on the east side of Nagle Avenue, 100 feet south of Elwood Street. Two five-story apartment houses, each covering a plot 50 by 125 feet, will be erected by the buyer.

The Private Dwelling Market.

Dr. George E. Brewer has sold to an investor his residence at 61 West Forty-eighth Street. The property consists of a five-story English basement dwelling, on a lot 21.6 by 100, Columbia College leasehold. Maurice Werthelm negotiated the transaction.

The three-story dwelling, 140 West Twenty-fourth Street, on a lot 18.9 by 98.9, has been sold by the American Mortgage Company to an investor. It was purchased at foreclosure sale last March by the sellers for $19,200. Owners of the abutting property on Twenty-third Street, the Robarts Company, are reported to be the buyers.

Bronx.

A plot, 90 by 120 feet, on the east side of Hoffman Street, 310 feet north of 184th Street, has been sold to a builder for improvement, by the Brunswick Realty Company. Three frame houses occupy the site at present.

Anna M Jones purchased from the Benenson Realty Company 421 and 423 East 157th Street, two new six-story flats with stores, each on plot 50 by 100. The buyer gave in exchange the four-story flat, on a lot 104.10 by 25.11x regular, at the southeast corner of Brook and Wendover Avenues; also a four-story apartment on Crotona Avenue, in the vicinity of 183rd Street. The deal involves about $200,000.

Brooklyn.

Sales at Manhattan Beach Estates during the past week include a plot 40 by 100, on the west side of West End Avenue, to Robert H. Holley; a plot 99 by 100, on the west side of Coleridge Street, to Louis Levy; a plot 40 by 100, on the west side of Amherst Street, to W. S. Lakin; a plot 40 by 100, on the west side of Beaumont Street, to Jennie Heinemann, and a plot 40 by 100, on the west side of West End Avenue, to George W. Cunningham.

Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold at Midwood Manor, two lots on Coney Island Avenue, near Avenue J, to W. J. Fite; Midwood Manor West, one and one-half lots on East Fifth Street, near Avenue J, to John G Anderson; also one lot on East Sixty-eighth Street, near Nineteenth Avenue, to C. C. Mrs. E. R. Chapman and others have just purchased the John H. and the John T. Wooley farms, opposite W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s Lake Success property. The combined farms comprise about 88 acres, with large frontages on Hyde Park, Great Neck, Little Neck, and the Westbury Roads. It is the largest acreage deal that has been made for several months in that section of Nassau County. The buyers will hold the property for investment.

Ross F. Tucker, President of the Concrete Product Company, has purchased for $27,000 three plots near the entrance to the Estates of Great Neck, and has started the erection of three houses of hollow tile with stucco finish.

S. Osgood Pell & Co., in conjunction with Clark T. Chambers, have sold for the Wampage Realty Company a large plot at Sands Point to Harry T. Galpin of New York. Mr. Galpin will at once commence the erection of a country residence and garage. The plot overlooks Manhasset Bay, adjoining the estates of Frederick C. Hicks, Robert Hoe, Clarence H. Eagle, and others.

EMPLOYE AIDS ROADS IN WAGE DISPUTE

DILLON STICKS TO GUNS

Men, Put on Their Defense by Chairman Low, Defend Their Course Before the Board.

A. B. Garretson, President of the Order of Railway Conductors, had a bad quarter of an hour yesterday with one of his own witnesses in the arbitration of the demands of the conductors and trainmen of the Eastern railroads. The witness was Claude Dillon, a freight conductor of the Baltimore & Ohio.

He had been on the stand nearly all day when the question of "double-headers" came up. The men contend that the railroads have effected many of their recent economies by making trains so long and heavy that two or more locomotives are required to haul them, and that this practically doubles the work of the conductors and trainmen, while they receive no extra compensation.

They therefore ask in their proposed scale that "time and a half" be paid to crews handling trains with two locomotives and "double time" if more than two locomotives are used. The Mallet locomotive, which is realy a double locomotive, is counted as two in this clause.

Elisha Lee, Chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers, and W. W. Atterbury, one of the railroad representatives on the Arbitration Board, have brought out several times that this would mean $7, $8, or $9 a day for each man. Mr. Garretson has met this each time with the assertion that the men do not expect to make so much money if the clause is approved, but that it is intended to be prohibitive. If the roads had to pay one and a half or double rates, he argued, they would not run the big trains. That was what the men desired to accomplish, he said.

Dillon didn't seem to have this argument in mind—or, if he did, he didn't agree with it. After it had been shown that on his particular run, with the kind of trains in vogue, he would receive 8.36 cents a mile instead of 4.18 cents, Mr. Garretson asked:

Witness Surprises Questioner.

"Do you thing you would ever have an opportunity to earn that 8.36 cents per mile?"

"Yes, I think so," the witness surprised him by answering.

"Do you think the company would operate these double-headers even if they had to pay double wages?" persisted Mr. Garretson.

"I do," said the witness, "because if they can double up trains they will eliminate half of the trains."

"What object would they have in paying one crew the same as they would have to pay two crews?" asked Mr. Garretson. "Do you think they would rather pay you double than to spend the same amount on two men?"

"Yes, I do; because they would have to pay only one engineman."

Mr. Garretson went up to the witness and drew for him diagrams of one train with two engines at each end and two trains with one engine at each end and demonstrated to the satisfaction of everybody in the room, except the witness, that the long train would call for twice as many engineers and firemen as the two smaller ones and that under th proposed rule the expense would be exactly the same. Dillon nodded his head at each point, and Mr. Garretson exclaimed triumphantly:

"Then what difference would it make to the company?"

"None," said the witness firmly "aside from the engineman."

Conductors' Leader Surrenders.

Everybody laughed, and Mr. Garretson gave up, saying, "Mr. Chairman, I surrender."

Dillon also said, however, in the course of his testimony, that the companies could not divide the heavy trains to avoid double pay, as they would not be able to get the increased number of trains over the road.

"Very much obliged, Mr. Dillon," remarked Elisha Lee, as the opposition witness left the stand.

The union leaders were also put to their guns to defend their course in introducing evidence showing increased traffic and work since 1900, since the conductors and trainmen had received wage advances as recently as 1910.

"I see no need," said Seth Low, Chairman of the board, "of showing conditions prior to 1910, if you got what you requested in 1910 on the basis of conditions then existing."

"We have never got what we asked for," replied W. G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. "Every settlement ever made with a railroad has been a compromise. There have been no increases in the last twenty years that have compensated for the increased duties of the men. The increases in 1910 were from 5 to 15 per cent. below our requests."

The next session of the board, on Monday, will begin in the afternoon, as Chairman Low is to be one of the honorary pallbearers at Mayor Gaynor's funeral.

SAW TRAIN THIEF AT WORK.

Man Followed Pickpocket Who Snatched Woman's Handbag.

Miss Elizabeth M. Knapp, daughter of Horace Greeley Knapp, an architect with offices at 111 Broadway, was returning to her home at 8,023 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn, at 10 o'clock last evening on a Bay Ridge elevated train, when, at Third Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, a man who had been lounging around the platform reached through the open window and snatched her leather handbag containing $18 and a gold watch worth $40.

The young woman screamed, but the train had started before she could notify a guard. At the Fifty-second Street Station she quit the train and hurried to the Fourth Avenue Police Station, nearby, to tell of her loss. When she arrived the Police Captain was taking the pedigree of a man who had just been brought in by Patrolman Wedening at the request of Ernest Kinscher of 336 Forty-fifth Street, Brooklyn.

Kinscher told the police that he had been on the elevated platform and saw the prisoner, who said he was Harris Doherty, a waiter, of 7,405 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, snatch the handbag. When the thief left the platform Kinscher followed him through Third Avenue to Fifth and thence to Forty-fifth Street, where they met Patrolman Wedening and Kinscher told him of what he had seen. The bag with the money and watch in it was found in Doherty's pocket.

SAVED LIVES; STOLE GEMS.

Donnelly, Rescuer in Westport Wreck, Sent to Prison.

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 19.—Hanford Donnelly of Stamford, who did rescue work in the wreck of the Springfield Express on the New Haven road at Westport last October, was found guilty in the Superior Court late to-day of the theft of jewels valued at $5,500, taken from one of the wrecked cars. The jewels were owned by Mrs. Elizabeth S. James of Chicago. Donnelly was sentenced by Judge Reed to not less than one nor more than five years in State prison.

Witnesses testified that Donnelly acted bravely at the wreck. Mrs. Florence P. Waring of New York said it was through Donnelly's efforts that she was saved from being burned to death in a parlor car.

In bringing in the verdict of guilty, the jury asked for clemency, but the State alleged a previous bad reputation of the accused and opposed a jail sentence asked by Donnelly's counsel.

MAX BLANCK ARRAIGNED.

Charged with Locking Employes in His New Factory—Also Sued.

Max Blanck, one of the proprietors of the Triangle Shirt Waist Company, whose factory in Washington Square was burned in March, 1911, when 140 girls lost their lives, was arraigned in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday on a charge of violating the fire laws by allowing the doors of his factory, at 70 Fifth Avenue, to be locked during working hours.

A patent chain lock was produced in court, and it was explained that three such locks were found in the factory. Inspector Walter J. Dugan of the Bureau of Fire Prevention asserted that in times of a fire panic the employes would not take time to manipulate the chain so as to open it, but would try to pull the door open, which would result in its being fastened more securely.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Blanck, told the court that the type of lock exhibited had been approved by the State Labor Bureau, and that he could produce bureau Inspectors to testify to that effect. Further hearings in the case were postponed until Oct. 2, when briefs will be submitted by both the defendant and the District Attorney's office. Blanck was released in $500 bail.

Affidavits placed on file in the Supreme Court yesterday contained accusations to the effect that Max Blanck had formed the Triangle Waist Company in order to escape his personal creditors under the incorporation laws. This charge was made by the Illinois Surety Company, which is endeavoring to collect on a judgment for $1,533 rendered by the City Court on July 9, by obtaining a lien on its debtor's insurance policies. This insurance, the plaintiff company asserted, amounted to $75,000.

DENOUNCES FELLOW-JUROR.

And District Attorney Promptly Excuses the One Accused.

After the jury was selcted in the trial of Samuel Woltman on a charge of assault, before Judge Tailmadge in the County Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, the court and attorneys for both sides were surprised to see Oscar Christiansen, one of the jurors, rise to his feet to denounce another juror.

"I object to Juror 5," said Christiansen impassionately. "He is unfit to sit on a jury. He will not bring in a verdict in accord with the evidence, but will hold out for a verdict that is unjust. He should not be allowed to sit in this case."

Assistant District Attorney Lee for the prosecution and Isadore Kallet, counsel for the defendant, had previously declared that they were entirely satisfied with the selection of the jury. When Christiansen, howevr, denounced Juror 5, Mr. Lee promptly arose, thanked him, and informed the court that he would excuse Juror 5. The juror was excused, and after another talesman was selected to fill his place the trial proceeded.

Christiansen and Juror 5 both sat in a case a few days ago when the jury disagreed. Christiansen blamed Juror 5 for the disagreement.

CUP DEFENDER OF BRONZE.

Light Yacht Desired by Vanderbilt Syndicate for America's Race.

BRISTOL, R. I., Sept. 19.—The Herreshoff sloop to be built for the Vanderbilt syndicate to enter next year's trial races for the honor of defending America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger will be constructed of bronze. This was decided to-day after a long conference between Robert W. Emmons, 2nd, of Boston, who has been appointed manager of the boat, and "Nat" Herreshoff, the designer. While a heavy steel boat was first considered, it was decided to-day that a lighter boat would be more desirable.

It was said to-night that John B. Herreshoff, President of the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company, which is to build the Vanderbilt sloop, was at Tarrytown, N. Y., to-day on his yacht Eugenia, where he met a group of members of the New York Yacht Club to discuss plans for another syndicate which is planning to have another Herreshoff boat in the trial races.

A. A. ANDERSON'S WILL.

Big Gifts to Presbyterian Home Missions and Bible Society.

The will of Arthur Alexander Anderson, an advertising man, who died on Aug. 22, was filed for probate yesterday. Mr. Anderson was born in Ireland, and emigrated to this country in 1870. The Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in America is to receive $35,000, "to be separately invested and to be known as the Arthur A. Anderson Fund, the income only to be used, and that for mission work in New York City only." A like fund is left to the New York Bible Society.

The only relatives surviving Mr. Anderson are two brothers and a sister living in Ireland, to one of whom, Samuel Edward Anderson, was bequeathed $2,000, the others, Mary and Mathew Anderson, receiving $1,000 each. The residuary estate, the will directs, is to be divided among the legatees in shares proportionate to the specific legacies, so that to each charitable bequest is added 35-74 of the residue, the remainder passing to the relatives.

SCHLEY MUST PAY $35,017.

Court Order Diverts Income to Settle Former Wife's Claim.

A writ of attachment was issued yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Delany against the inheritance of James Montfort Schley, Jr., under the will of his mother, Mrs. Margaret T. Schley. The court order directs George F. Canfield and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Trustees of this inheritance, a life trust fund, said to amount to $500,000, to pay out of the income $35,017 in monthly installments.

Schley confessed judgment in favor of his former wife, Morna Cliff Andrews, under a separation agreement. The payments are to consist of 10 per cent. of Schley's income. Sheriff Harburger, who some time ago received another writ of attachment directed against Schley, reported that he could find no tangible property.

FRITZI SCHEFF BANKRUPTCY

Claims for $3,161 Filed at Meeting of Creditors.

A meeting of the creditors of Miss Fritzi Scheff, the actress and singer, was held in the office of John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, at 45 Cedar Street yesterday. None of the creditors of Miss Scheff appeared in person, and only a few were represented at all. Only four claims were filed, the amount of them being $3,161 for gowns and jewelry.

The schedules showed an interest in real estate at Big Stone Gap, Va., valued at $17,000 and mortgaged for $8,000 and now in process of foreclosure. The schedules also showed claims of $57,673 against the Fritzi Scheff Opera Company. Miss Scheff was at the meeting accompanied by her counsel, Nathan Burkan.

Hampton, Tobacco Vice President.

Benjamin B. Hampton, the former advertising and magazine man, who for about a year has been connected with the American Tobacco Company, was elected a Director and Vice President at yesterday's meeting of the board. William H. O'Brien, for several years an official of the company, was also elected a Director and Vice President.

WANTS NEW HAVEN TO SELL HOLDINGS

TILT AT BOND HEARING

Attorneys for Road Object to Interrogations and Call Lawyer "Prosecuting Attorney."

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad officials were again asked at the hearing to-day before the Massachusetts Public Service Commission why, if the road needs the issue of $67,000,000 bonds, which it has petitioned for, it does not divest itself of some of its steamship holdings and use the proceeds instead of further increasing its funded debt.

The question, asked by H. Larue Brown, counsel for the commission, in his examination of Justin W. Lester, the commission's accountant, followed a statement from the latter as to the New Haven's holdings and those of its subsidiary, the New England Navigation Co., in the stock and bonds of the Eastern Steamship Co. and the Merchants and Miners Transportation Co. It was shown that the Navigation company holds bonds of the Eastern Steamship Co. to the amount of $2,437,500 and $3,250,000 of bonds of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Co. The New York, New Haven & Hartford itself, it was stated, holds preferred stock of the Eastern Steamship Co. valued at $1,462,500 and common stock of $800,000, together with Merchants and Miners stock to the amount of $2,542,500.

These were the two biggest blocks of outside stock placed by Mr. Brown as among the New Haven's holdings. He showed also other holdings in leased lines, which brought the New Haven's apparent stock holdings in its subsidiaries to $30,134,585. If pressed for funds, Counsel Brown said the New Haven could probably realize this amount toward its needs.

Attorney Brown's questions during the afternoon developed several tilts with Charles F. Choate, counsel for the New Haven, and with Commissioner Clinton D. White. Mr. Choate at one time referred to the counsel for the commission as the "prosecuting attorney," and said the New Haven road might appear later as a complainant instead of as petitioner. Commissioner White expressed the opinion that Mr. Brown's questioning was without worth to the commission, and only delayed the hearing.

Just prior to the close of the hearing Mr. Brown took up a new line of examination, that of questioning Mr. Lester as to the earning capacity of certain of the New Haven's subsidiaries. "I want to know what bearing this has on the matter before us," Mr. White interrupted and then quickly said: "I am sick and tired at the waste in time which has resulted from many of the questions asked, and the subjects considered by counsel for the Board. I want to close this hearing and not waste valuable time."

Chairman Frederick D. McLeod, however, announced that, in his opinion, the commission should have the benefit of all knowledge of the New Haven and its 'subsidiaries that were germane to the inquiry.

Just prior to the adjournment of the hearing until next Wednesday, Commissioner Anderson asked Counsel Brown to prepare for the board a statement of what securities of the New Haven's subsidiary companies the road could best dispose of, and at what approximate price. This information, Mr. Anderson said, should include the earnings, if any, on such stock since its acquisition by the New Haven, its original cost and the approximate present selling price.

SAY LODGER SHOT BOY.

Youth, Wounded in the Head, Falls at Mother's Feet.

Charles Kucks, the 17-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Kucks, who has a boarding house at 742 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn, was walking in Eastern Parkway yesterday afternoon when he came upon one of his mother's lodgers, David Evans, apparently the worse for drink and suffering from an ugly gash in his forehead. He helped Evans home, got him to his room on the third floor, went for some hot water to bathe the injured forehead, returned with it and was leaving the room when he was shot in the head. He pitched down the stairs to the second floor, where he landed at his mother's feet.

Mrs. Susan Dowling, another boarder, opened the door of her room on the third floor just in time to see Evans closing his.

"What's the matter?" she demanded, much excited.

"Oh, nothing," said Evans, and closed the door.

The physician who was called to treat the boy was amazed to learn that nothing had been done in the way of notifying the police. He had the boy taken to the Swedish Hospital and summoned a patrolman from the corner. Detectives later broke into Evans's room. He was asleep, and a revolver with one cartridge discharged was found in his room. The boy's condition is grave. Evans was arrested on a charge of shooting the boy.

SURE TEST OF HUMAN BLOOD

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Dr. John B. Murphy, returning home to-day from the International Congress of Medicine in London, made this interesting statement:

"Science can prove absolutely hereafter whether blood stains left on the scene of a crime are those of animals or human beings, a matter of guess heretofore.

"While the chemical composition of human blood has been found distinctly different from any other known form of animal life, the blood of the chimpanzee more closely resembles that of man than it does the blood of other animals, being the first material confirmation of Darwin's theory of evolution ever brought out by science."

The new method of determining the source of blood is based on a chemical analysis of precipitants of the blood, according to Dr. Murphy. Blood from practically every living animal and deposits from the blood of animals extinct for thousands of years have been examined in these tests. The blood of the chimpanzee stands alone among that of animals in its resemblance to man.

"It is the first really scientific evidence confirming Darwin's theory," said Dr. Murphy. "This discovery of the definite gulf between the blood of man and that of all animals and of the close approach of the blood of the chimpanzee to that of man is confirmation from an unexpected source."

PANKHURST AGENT ARRIVES

Miss Wickham Plans a Wide Tour for Militant Leader.

Miss Joan Wickham, organizer for the militant suffragettes of England, advance agent of Mrs. Pankhurst and manager of the lecture tour the militant leader will make in this country, arrived here yesterday on the Cedric.

Mrs. Pankhurst is due to arrive in New York on the 18th on La Provence, Miss Wickham said, and two large meetings will be arranged for her immediately in this city, probably at Carnegie Hall, though that has not been definitely settled. Mrs. Pankhurst will return to England probably the latter part of November to assist the suffragettes to make ready for their campaign at the opening of Parliament. Mrs. Pankhurst has remarkable recuperative powers, Miss Wickham said, and she expects her to be in good condition to make a tour as extended as the time will permit. There will be meetings in Chicago, St. Louis, Boston and other large cities, and the tour will go as far South as possible.

The militant leader will make the white slave traffic the subject of many of her lectures, as she believes that it will be the woman's vote which will suppress it. She will also explain the militancy of the English women.

"Mrs. Pankhurst feels that the women of America do not understand the different conditions in England, that there the franchise must be gained at one time while here it is won State by State," said Mrs. Wickham.

Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the Congressional Committee of the National Association, and Miss Lucy Burns, who is also a member of the committee, came on from Washington to meet Miss Wickham, a fact which goes to show that the National suffrage body in America will at least not oppose Mrs. Pankhurst.

"Mrs. Pankhurst is the heart of the militant organization," Miss Wickham said. "Christabel Pankhurst the brains."

Mrs. John Winters Brannan will entertain Miss Wickham over Sunday.

DOG BITES FOUR CHILDREN.

Mother of One Victim Kills It with Piece of Lead Pipe.

A little black-and-tan dog that had already bitten two children in its run through the streets came snapping yesterday afternoon to the group playing at the entrance of 3,133 Villa Avenue, the Bronx. The children scattered in alarm, two 3-year-olds retreating to the hallway. These were Rose Amanna, whose home was there, and Joseph Propptelba, a neighbor's child.

The dog first attacked the boy and then turned on the girl. As she cowered against the wall it bit her in the arm and was ready for another spring when Mrs. Amanna, who had stepped out into the hall, hit the animal on the head with a piece of lead pipe and as it fell back, killed it with another blow.

When Dr. Dolan, who came with the ambulance and treated both children, returned to Fordham Hospital, he found waiting a four-year-old boy, Tony Conte of 174 East 206th Street. He, too, had been bitten by a black-and-tan mongrel while playing near his home, and, from his story, the police found another boy of the neighborhood, four-year-old Fred Craprese, who had also been bitten.

POLICE HEAD IN BRIBE CASE.

Indicted in Santa Fe Franchise Scandal—New Yorkers Concerned.

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 19.—A sensation was caused here yesterday by the indictment of Police Chief George W. Armijo and Nathan Salmon, a prominent merchant, on charges of alleged bribery in connection with the application made recently for the renewal of the franchise of the Santa Fé Water and Light Company.

It is alleged that a demand was made on the new water company officials for $20,000 to insure favorable action by the City Council. The company is owned by New York capitalists. Edgar L. Street of New York is President.

TRAPPED A WOMAN WHO PAID DETECTIVE

Mrs. Barrick Rode in Elevator Run by Sleuth and Floorwalker Was Also Dwyer's Man.

SHE HANDED OUT $400

Bribery Now Added to the Charge Against Her of Running a Disorderly Resort.

Mrs. Rose Barrick, arrested by Inspector Dwyer's men on Tuesday night as the proprietor of the little hotel in West Forty-fifth Street called the Belmont, went to a Sixth Avenue department store yesterday afternoon, and at the entrance met Detective Jones of Dwyer's staff. He accompanied her to one of the elevators, and they were the sole passengers as it shot up the shaft toward the fourth floor. As the door drew back to permit their alighting at that floor Mrs. Barrick handed her companion four one-hundred-dollar bills.

At that instant the elevator operator snatched the money from Jones's hands, and as Mrs. Barrick stepped hastily from the car a "floorwalker" placed his hand on her shoulder and told her she was under arrest. It took her very few seconds to realize sorewdly that the floorwalker was Lieut. Fitzgibbons and that the operator of the car was Detective Jehelka in a new sort of uniform. She had fallen squarely into an elaborate trap arranged by Dwyer himself, after conference with the management of the store, and when she was locked up later in the day in the East Fifty-first Street Station the charge of bribery had been added to the charge of maintaining a disorderly resort.

Dwyer set the trap after Jones had notified him that Mrs. Barrick was signaling for a meeting. She wanted to "fix" it with him and with Patrolmen Imbriale and Sutter of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, who made the arrests, so that the case against her as head of the resort would fall through when it was called in court. Dwyer told Jones to see her, and the two met on Wednesday evening between 8:30 and 9 o'clock at the Fifty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue entrance to Central Park. Hidden in the bushes near by was George Rensellaer, a stenographer.

According to the stenographic report of the conversation, Mrs. Barrick herself named $400 as the price she was willing to pay, and suggested that Jones keep half of it and pass the rest to the other two men. She was satisfied that they knew how to kill the case in court. The rendezvous resulted in the appointment to meet and do business yesterday afternoon.

In the Yorkville Court Magistrate Schulz set the case over till Wednesday morning when Mrs. Barrick's lawyer asked that the examination be adjourned. Word of the springing of the trap was sent over to the West Side Court, and when the disorderly resort charge came up for hearing, Assistant District Attorney Minton asked that the case go over until Tuesday morning. Mrs. Barrick has a good deal of negro blood in her veins.

WHO IS LORD BENDISH
Hero of the New Novel
By MAURICE HEWLETT
Just Published under the Title
